

The Coaches

Pat Kennedy Head Coach

Most Florida State fan's first experience with new head coach Pat Kennedy came on a night last November when FSU opened its season against heavily-favored Florida. Fans had heard a lot about the fiery, transplanted New Yorker who had already set out on the banquet circuit to drum up support for the Seminole program, but the atmosphere remained skeptical. The Leon County Civic Center was filled to capacity with what would prove to be the largest crowd to ever witness a basketball game in the state. With the annual football showdown the next day, the enthusiastic crowd quickly centered its attention on Kennedy as he shouted, cheered, screamed, stomped, encouraged and inspired his Seminole squad against its intra-state rival. After 40 minutes in front of an audience as frenzied as anywhere in the country, the delirious crowd celebrated an 80-76 FSU victory. It was not satisfied until it brought the team and new coach—waving like a politician on the campaign trail—back onto the floor for a curtain call. The bounce was back in Florida State basketball.

A more dramatic beginning could not have been written for the Kennedy era at Florida State and it soon became obvious that excitement and success are integral parts of the man.

Optimistic, enthusiastic, energetic; the terms just don't seem emphatic enough to describe the man who has managed to change the complexion of the Seminole basketball program in just one year.

Addressing a meeting of incoming Florida State students prior to his rookie year, Kennedy made a strong plea to the eager group of Seminoles. "I just want to tell you that we need your support in order to accomplish our goals here," said the 35-year-old Kennedy. "If you will give us that support, I will guarantee you that our basketball staff will work as hard as humanly possible to put the best basketball team together Florida State has ever had. And just maybe, four years down the road, you can help us cut down the nets at the Final Four."

Naturally, the speech was welcomed with rowdy cheers, but rest assured that those in the room that had been around might have shaken their heads at the optimism. Those same skeptics were undoubtedly the first to give a high-five after the Florida win. And after just one year, some may feel he could speed up that four-year time frame.

just one year, some may feel he could speed up that four-year time frame.

Kennedy has managed to win over the faith, and maybe more importantly, the interest of Seminole basketball fans who had grown complacent. In fact, in Kennedy's one-year coaching tenure at FSU a new home attendance record of over 100,000 fans was set. In addition, he accomplished almost all his pre-season goals that many felt were too lofty.

Kennedy is driven to the point of obsession in accomplishing his coaching goals. This point was illustrated with another story from his first year. A scheduling miscommunication caused Kennedy to miss a speaking appearance before the Atlanta chapter of the Seminole Boosters. Upset, Kennedy asked sports information director Wayne Hogan for addresses in order to write apology letters. "I can get you the address of the President and key members," Hogan replied. "No, I want to know if you can get me the names and addresses of everyone that attended the thing," Kennedy replied. "That's close to 500 people, Pat. Isn't that a little excessive?," Hogan asked. "When you're trying to accomplish what we're after, you need to be a little excessive," Kennedy said.

It is this attitude for hard work and not missing a beat that has made Kennedy one of the most successful young college coaches in the nation. A native of Keyport, New Jersey, he attended King's College in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., on a basketball scholarship. After two years of play, he became head junior varsity coach as a student—coaching that team to a 17-4 record. In his senior year, he was elevated to the position of the school's number one varsity assistant.

After graduation in 1975, Kennedy was named assistant coach at Lehigh University. In 1977, Iona's Jim Valvano asked Kennedy to join his staff. When North Carolina State lured Valvano away from the New Rochelle school after the 1979-80 season, Iona wasted little time in naming Kennedy to the post.

While at Iona, Kennedy's teams defeated some of the nation's best basketball programs and coaches, including Eldon Miller's Ohio State team, Jerry Tarkanian's UNLV Rebels and Bobby Cremin's Georgia Tech team.

A 23-8 record in 1984 led to Kennedy's selection to the New York Metro Area Coach of the Year Award as well as MAAC Coach of the Year. He followed that season with a 26-5 record and was named recipient of the Heineken Award for excellence in college coaching. Kennedy followed Valvano, Lou Carnesecca and Dean Smith as winners of the prestigious award.

Overall, the Kennedy record shows five post season appearances and four conference championships in just seven years of coaching. Kennedy became only the fourth Division I coach in NCAA history to win 100 games in his first five years of coaching.

Kennedy's high level of achievement made him an easy choice when Florida State began looking for a head coach following the 1985-86 season. "After a lengthy and thorough search, we are convinced that Pat Kennedy is the person who will reunite the various constituencies of Florida State's basketball community towards a successful future," said Florida State President Bernard F. Sliger, who presided over the five-member selection committee. "We were impressed with Coach Kennedy's commitment to a well-rounded program and his desire to develop our players emotionally, academically, and athletically." FSU's selection committee, that included members from the faculty, student and booster organization, made Kennedy a unanimous 5-0 selection.

The confidence that the selection committee displayed in Kennedy comes from its belief that it has hired not only an outstanding coach but also a man who understands that education should come first to the student-athlete.

Kennedy's background is strong in this area. Over 95 percent of his recruits at Iona graduated—a fact that was recognized by USA Today newspaper which cited Iona College and Kennedy's program for one of the most outstanding graduation rates in all of college athletics.

Investment counselors on Wall Street, several law school students and several business leaders in major corporations can be counted as former players under Kennedy. "A lot of coaches may pay lip service to academics and their importance," Kennedy says. "But our staff does something about it. If a guy wants to play basketball for us, he better also want to go to class and get a degree, because that's what he really is here for. We tell our players that from day one."

Recruiting talented student-athletes is a specialty of Kennedy's. His first class at Florida State has been ranked among the top five in the country. In his first year at Iona, his recruiting class was selected as the best in the East by Eastern Basketball magazine. That touched off five straight years of being selected in the top 15 in the East by the publication.

It is through recruiting that Kennedy believes the Seminoles can rise into the nation's elite. "The amount of great basketball talent that leaves this state every year is remarkable," Kennedy says. "I believe you can build a great program on that talent alone. We just need to work hard to get those players who are leaving the state to stay at home. And that's why whenever a great high school player is lacing up his shoes to play, we're going to have somebody in the stands watching him. There's a lot of work to be done, but I believe Florida State is a sleeping giant."

Off the court and away from the recruiting trails, Kennedy is a man who has both a keen sense of public relations and also a deep belief in becoming a part of the community in which he works. On accepting the FSU position, a writer asked if it would be tough to take over a program that was currently considered third fiddle to football and baseball. "I am aware of the status of those two sports at Florida State," Kennedy replied. "But that doesn't mean that basketball can't be good here. I want football and baseball to continue to do well and I hope they win national championships. But that doesn't mean basketball has to suffer. We're going to work hard to put a product on the floor. If we're successful at doing that, we can join the other two in terms of something people are going to look forward to".

While at Iona, he took a deep interest in affairs away from basketball and has continued that in Tallahassee. In addition to his youth camps, Kennedy served on several committees for the State of New York Special Olympics. Because of his work with Special Olympics, which included numerous free clinics for handicapped children, he was presented with the 1984 Special Olympics Man of the Year award.

Kennedy brings to his post a strong understanding of administration. He served for five years at Iona in a dual role of head basketball coach and associate athletic director. He was president of the MAAC Coaches' Association since the league's inception and was a member of the NCAA Tournament Selection Committee for the eastern region. The Executive Director of the Pat Kennedy Day Camps, one of the largest of its type in the nation, Kennedy is also a consultant to the Nike Corporation.

Coach, educator, administrator, recruiter, community leader and family man. Pat Kennedy provides solid leadership for the Florida State basketball program.

Pat and his wife Jeannie are the parents of a son, Joseph (4).

ASSISTANT COACHES

Rich Petriccione

Assistant Coach
Iona '81

Firmly established as one of the finest minds concerning the business end of college basketball, Rich Petriccione is in his second year as an assistant coach with the Florida State basketball program. An assistant at Iona since 1981, Petriccione joined his boss Pat Kennedy when he took over the Seminole Program prior to the 1986-87 season.

As an assistant at Florida State, Petriccione has the sizeable duty of overseeing the operation of the Seminole Basketball office. Honing his coordinating and administrative skills while at Iona, he has responsibilities in every area of Florida State basketball. While at Iona, he was in charge of supervising the recruiting efforts, scouting, daily practice coaching, overseeing academic progress and putting together contact systems.

Pat Kennedy on coaching staff: "From the beginning it was my goal to construct one of the finest coaching staffs in college basketball for Florida State. We have fulfilled that goal. A staff must be the foundation for a first class program. This group of assistants that we have brought to Florida State will offer to future Seminoles and our fans a group with great integrity, a work ethic second to none, true concern for the academic and personal welfare of the players, and a keen knowledge of the game and the recruiting process. This group of coaches have always been associated with winning programs. They will continue to work hard to create a tremendous atmosphere for all our players to meet their potential as a student, as an athlete and as a person."

While an undergraduate aid to Jim Valvano at Iona, Petriccione served as athletic coordinator and head basketball coach at St. Phillip Neri School (Bronx, N.Y.) from 1977-1981. During that time he was in charge of both the varsity and junior varsity basketball programs.

Additional coaching experience includes three years as director of the Pat Kennedy-Iona College Day Basketball Camps. Duties included promoting and recruiting for the camp, supervision of all business services, organizing transportation systems and hiring and directing a 25-member staff. In his three years as director, the camp became one of the most successful and well-attended of its type in the entire nation.

Petriccione is a member of the National Basketball Coaches Association, New York Coaches Association and the National Federation of Interscholastic Coaches Association.

An honor student, Petriccione graduated from Iona College with a Bachelor's of Arts degree. The pre-law major finished with a 3.6 grade point average. A six-time Dean's List student, his list of achievements include membership in the Iona College Comelian Honor Society, Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, International Youth in Achievement Society and the Para Legal Guild. He received the Governor Hugh L. Carey Award, the Generoso Pope Memorial Award and the Bronx Borough President's Award—all of which denotes excellence in classroom and citizenship.

Active in youth organizations, Petriccione has volunteered his time on numerous occasions for the Big Brothers organizations and for Special Olympics. He also served as founder and director of the Tom McDonnell Memorial Fund, which raises money for the benefit of children's organizations.

Petriccione, 28, is single.

ASSISTANT COACHES

David Zimroth

Assistant Coach/
Recruiting Coordinator
Florida State '78

Fast becoming one of the finest recruiters in the nation after only one season for the Seminoles is recruiting director David Zimroth. Selected from over 200 applicants in April of 1986, Zimroth coordinated the recruitment of Florida State's 1987-88 incoming class listed among the top five in the nation by several publications.

Prior to returning to his alma mater, Zimroth served two years as head coach at Miami Beach High School. There he established a contact system that has already paid dividends in the signing on in-state all-american David White and all-state forward Michael Polite. His talents are not limited to Florida as he inked super guard Aubry Boyd out of Georgia and JC standouts Tony Dawson and Derrick Mitchell.

Prior to his stint at Miami Beach, Zimroth was an assistant coach at two high schools, a junior college and the University of Georgia. His coaching career started while he was still a student at FSU—serving as an assistant coach at Florida High for the 1977-78 season.

After graduation, he moved to an assistant coach position at his former high school, North Miami Beach. He then accepted a position on the basketball coaching staff at Miami-Dade North for two seasons. Zimroth left Miami-Dade North in 1981 in order to join Hugh Durham's staff at the University of Georgia for the 1981-82 season; before returning to Miami-Dade North for two more seasons. Zimroth was named to the Miami Beach post prior to the start of the 1984-85 season.

In addition to his coaching stops, Zimroth has gained additional valuable experience by working many clinics conducted by the top coaches in the nation—including Jim Valvano's at North Carolina State and Hugh Durham's at Georgia. He also has been involved with the Team Florida AAU program, which has been one of the most powerful AAU organizations in the nation in recent years.

A former all-state high school player, Zimroth graduated from North Miami Beach in 1974, scoring over 1800 career points. He attended Miami-Dade North Community College on a basketball scholarship and received his Associate of Arts degree in 1976. Zimroth transferred to Florida State and received his bachelor's degree in Health Education with a minor in coaching in 1978. He has completed 15 hours toward a master's degree in health education.

Zimroth, 31, is single.

Tim Welsh

Graduate Assistant Coach
Potsdam '84

A former outstanding player from Potsdam College (N.Y.), Tim Welsh is in his second year at Florida State as an assistant to Pat Kennedy. Welsh, 27, played four years for his father Jerry—the fourth winningest coach in Division III history. Welsh followed Pat Kennedy to Florida State from Iona College, where he served as an assistant for one season.

While at Potsdam, Tim helped that squad to three berths in the NCAA playoffs—including a 1982 team that placed second in the national tournament. He co-captained the team his senior year that won its second consecutive East Regional Championship.

Following graduation with a Bachelor of Arts degree in economics,

Welsh served as an assistant coach for one season at Potsdam. As an assistant, Welsh worked mainly with recruiting, the school's off-season conditioning program and scouting opponents while being actively involved in on-the-floor coaching during games. Potsdam finished the season with a 27-4 record and placed second in the NCAA tournament.

Welsh moved on to Iona the next season, where he was in charge of handling on-campus recruiting visits by prospective student athletes, as well as scouting opponents and the off-season conditioning program. He is expected to retain many of those duties at Florida State.

Welsh is single.

ASSISTANT COACHES

Tom Carlson

Assistant Coach
Florida State '74

Returning for his second season on the Florida State staff is Tom Carlson. Regarded as one of the state's top high school coaches while serving for 11 years as the head coach at Maclay High School in Tallahassee, Carlson joined Pat Kennedy's staff prior to the 1986-87 season.

Carlson, 39, brings a wealth of coaching experience to his new post at Florida State. The Hazlet, New Jersey native began his coaching career during his college days—serving as an assistant at Tallahassee's Rickards High School from 1972-74.

Following graduation with a degree in physical education, he enrolled in graduate school at Florida State. While working on his master's in physical education Carlson was a graduate assistant coach for Hugh Durham's 1974-75 team that finished with an 18-8 record. In addition to scouting and conditioning duties, Carlson served as junior varsity coach that year and was also a teacher in the Florida State Physical Education Department.

After completing his master's degree in 1975, he accepted the head coaching job at Maclay. One coaching highlight for Carlson occurred in 1979 when he led Maclay to the state high school basketball championship. That resulted in Carlson being named Coach of the Year by the Florida Athletic Coaches Association. In addition to his duties as basketball coach, he also coached the golf team—while serving on the faculty as a physical education and driver education instructor.

Additional coaching experience for Carlson includes work with the summer camps. He served on the staff of the Florida State University Basketball School every summer since 1973.

An honor student at Florida State, Carlson served as a member and officer in the honor society for physical education majors and was vice president of the Men's Physical Education Major's Club. He is currently a member of the Florida Athletic Coaches Association.

Carlson and his wife Ann, are the parents of three daughters; Erika (11), Brandy (5) and Kayce (2).

Michael Hunt

Furman '84

A graduate of Furman University, Michael Hunt is in his first season as a graduate assistant coach at Florida State University. Hunt played and lettered three years at Furman. As a freshman, he started 30 games and averaged 9.1 points a game—earning a spot on the Southern Conference All-Freshman team.

Hunt graduated from Southwest Macon High School in 1979. Playing for the legendary Don Richardson, Hunt led his team to a three-year record of 82-3, with two state championships. A high school All-American in 1979, Hunt was a star member of Southwest's national championship team.

As an assistant on Pat Kennedy's staff, Hunt will be assigned coaching duties during all Seminole practices. He will work closely with the guards. Hunt will also have several in-house recruiting duties—including organizing office affairs and keeping up with Florida State's systematic mailouts of recruiting material.

Hunt received his Bachelor of Arts degree in political science from Furman University in 1984. While at Florida State, he will work on his master's degree in athletic administration.

Kennedy believes Hunt will be a valuable addition to the FSU coaching staff. "Being a recent college graduate and a player, Michael will serve as a great role model for our players," Kennedy says.

Hunt is 25.

ACADEMIC STAFF

Dr. Beverly Yerg Academic Coordinator

A member of the Florida State University faculty since 1977, Dr. Beverly Yerg is in her second year as academic coordinator for the athletic department. Yerg is responsible for implementing a plan to guide student athletes through their years of college.

Included in this plan is the evaluation of recruits for academic potential and the teaching of learning skills classes—mandatory two-hour classes for transfers and freshmen designed to teach basic survival skills of college life. The coursework includes goal setting, decision making, stress management, study skills and career planning.

Prior to taking the newly created position in 1986, Yerg was a member of two committees that studied the academic area of the athletic department. In 1983, she was on a six-member academic subcommittee of the athletic board that studies some of the problems of student athletes and recommended solutions in the form of the Student Academic Enhancement Plan. She also chaired a self-study committee in 1985 that studied every area of the athletic department.

A native of Warren, Pa., Yerg received a bachelor's degree in education from Temple University in 1960. She returned to Temple to finish a master's in education in 1973, and in 1977 she received her doctorate from the University of Pittsburgh.

Since 1977 Yerg has served as an assistant professor in the Department of Movement Science and Physical Education. In 1982 she was named department head, a position she held until 1985. She continues to hold the title of associate professor despite being named to the academic coordinator position in 1986.

A former national president of Delta Psi Kappa, the professional fraternity for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, Yerg belongs to many other professional organizations and has authored many articles and abstracts relating to teacher effectiveness and teacher education.

She is married to Robert Yerg and the couple has one son.

Brian Mand Academic Advisor

Brian Mand is in his eighth year as the academic advisor for all men's varsity sports at Florida State. Since 1980, he has coordinated and supervised all athletic academic advisement and organized support programs dealing with academics for FSU football, basketball and baseball athletes.

Mand held similar positions at East Carolina (1979) and Rutgers (1977-79) before accepting the Tallahassee job. While at Rutgers, he also worked for a time in the office of admission, registration and student services as assistant to the director.

Mand earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from Wake Forest University in 1972. He received his master's degree in athletic administration in 1977 from Ohio State and also did some graduate coursework in counseling at Rutgers. He is working on a doctorate at Florida State.

Mand is in his second year as president of the National Academic Athletic Advisor's Association. He has also been a member of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Mand and his wife, Roberta, have a son.

SUPPORT STAFF

Kent Knisley

Head Basketball Trainer

Kent Knisley begins his second year as head trainer for the Florida State basketball team. He is responsible for the entire athletic training program for the basketball team and oversees all games and practices. Knisley holds dual roles with the Seminoles, as he is both a certified NATA trainer and a licensed physical therapist in the state of Florida.

A 1984 graduate of the Florida A&M School of Physical Therapy, Knisley worked on the FSU training staff for over a year while attending FAMU. He received his Associate of Arts degree from Manatee Junior College in 1979. While working as an assistant athletic trainer at Manatee and Bradenton High Schools for three years, Knisley continued his education by taking pre-physical therapy classes. He served as trainer for the Pittsburgh Pirates' rookie league team in Bradenton in 1982, before moving to Tallahassee to enroll at Florida A&M.

After working with the Rattler football team that fall, Knisley joined the Florida State athletic training staff in January of 1983 as a special student. After graduation from FAMU, he continued on at FSU in a part-time capacity while also working on the staff of Tallahassee Memorial Regional Medical Center as a physical therapist.

In addition to his duties with the Seminole basketball program, Knisley is the trainer for all spring sports and works as the rehabilitation physical therapist for the football program.

Knisley, 29, is single.

Gene Granger

Equipment Manager

A member of the Florida State athletic staff since 1971, Gene Granger begins his ninth year as head equipment manager for the Florida State basketball team. Granger's numerous duties include the ordering and daily distribution of all athletic equipment and uniforms. In addition, he serves as equipment manager for the baseball, track and tennis teams at Florida State.

A native of Dade City, Florida, Gene attended Bethune-Cookman College—where he played varsity baseball from 1969 through 1971. After college, he joined the Seminole athletic staff as an assistant manager for five years before being named to the head equipment manager position in 1977.

Gene, 42, and his wife Alberta are the parents of two children; Apryl, 12 and Gene Jr., 7.

Dave Van Halanger

Strength Coach

A state director for the National Strength and Conditioning Association, Dave Van Halanger is in his fourth year as strength coach for the Florida State athletic department. As head strength coach, Van Halanger heads up the entire conditioning program for all 16 varsity sports at FSU.

Van Halanger arrived at Florida State in 1983, after serving in a similar capacity at West Virginia University from 1980 through June, 1983. Prior to that, he was a member of the WVU coaching staff—serving as head junior varsity coach in 1979.

A graduate of the WVU School of Physical Education, Van Halanger played and lettered four years in football under current Seminole head coach Bobby Bowden. An All-East and honorable mention All-American selection his senior season, Van Halanger was a co-captain of the Mountaineer team that won the Peach Bowl.

Currently a member of the National Board of Ethics for the National Football Coaches Association, Dave and his wife Michele are the parents of two daughters, Julie (7) and Danielle (3).

Dave Langworthy

Assistant Strength Coach

Dave Langworthy enters his first year on the Florida State athletic staff as an assistant strength coach. In addition to assisting Dave Van Halanger in the day-to-day operations of the strength and conditioning program, Langworthy heads up the weight program for the Florida State basketball team.

A native of Miami, Langworthy was a standout wrestler in the unlimited class at the University of Indiana. A 1983 graduate with a degree in pre-law, Langworthy was selected for the U.S. team in two Pan American games, the 1979 Mexico games and the 1983 games held in Puerto Rico.

One of the south's strongest men, Langworthy is the Southern States 275-pound class power lifting champion. He is the State of Florida Olympic lifting champion and eight-time Florida seniors wrestling champ.

A graduate of Hollywood Hills High, Langworthy's accomplishments spread to the international realm as he placed third in the world wrestling championships while a freshman at Broward Community College.
