Photo: Pat Kennedy has posted a 38-22 record in his first two seasons at Florida State and this year's squad has garnered preseason top 20 attention. He has taken the Seminoles to post-season tournaments both years and knocked off Metro-heavyweights Louisville and Memphis State for the first time, in the same season, since the late 1970s. A second place conference finish and 19-10 record earned Florida State its first NCAA tournament bid since 1980.

Head Coach Pat Kennedy

The Kennedy Era Has Meant

Some things are almost impossible to measure, and in just a couple of seasons, Pat Kennedy's contribution to the Florida State basketball program falls into that category. He led FSU to its first NCAA tournament bid since 1980, his recruiting classes consistently rate among the nation's top 20, an NIT bid highlighted his first year, and he took the Seminoles to a second place finish in the Metro conference race.

Pat Kennedy has completely turned around the Seminole program since his arrival two seasons ago. He has led the Tribe to consecutive 19-11 seasons and back-to-back post-season berths in the NIT, and the NCAA last year. Kennedy has lost just four times in Tallahassee and his 1987-88 squad finished second in the Metro Conference.

Opposite Page: Coach Kennedy enjoys an outstanding relationship with his players. Kennedy is concerned with the complete student-athlete and demands his players perform in the classroom before they can perform on the court. Driven by perfection, Kennedy demands much from his players, but he also gives back, taking interest in their lives outside of basketball.

That's just a short list of some of the milestones that Kennedy has accomplished in his two brief years. To say he has resurrected the Seminole basketball program would not capture what this charismatic young coach has done for Florida State. Kennedy has launched a campaign, supported by a cast of talented young players, for Seminole basketball that has grabbed the attention of the entire nation. In doing so, he has tapped his most loyal resource — local Seminole fans. Kennedy has incited football-hungry Tallahassee supporters into an enthusiastic basketball crowd that has seen just four home losses since Kennedy took over in 1986-87.

The commercial goes "master the possibilities" and it could be the theme for Kennedy. He transplanted his family from a cozy situation at Iona College in New York to Florida's capital city because he could see such possibility, such potential, in an FSU program that had done little since losing the national championship to UCLA in 1972. "You just have to look at what I said when I came here," the 37-year-old Kennedy said. "I said I thought Florida State was a sleeping giant in college basketball. I meant that. And it has been the goal of myself, my staff and our players to reach the potential of this program. We really expect to be a consistent NCAA tournament participant and hope we can be a top 20 team. With last year's invitation to the NCAA we are ahead of the schedule I had projected. I really feel that Florida State is emerging as a force on the national scene."

Those closest to Kennedy realize nothing happens faster than the fiery Irishman can imagine. Keeping up with Kennedy is like trying to keep up with a whirlwind. He never stops and never settles for anything but the best. He is a man totally consumed by the game of basketball, and his dedication to hard work and attention to detail are rapidly propelling him to the top of the profession he loves so much.

A more dramatic beginning could not have been written for the Kennedy era at Florida State as he opened the 1986-87 season against rival Florida in front of the largest crowd to ever witness a college game in the State. 13,300 looked on as Kennedy shouted, cheered, screamed, stomped, encouraged and inspired his underdog Seminole squad to a delirious 80-76 win over the nationally-ranked Gators. Kennedy has not looked back since.

His first season was a 19-11 effort, culminating in an invitation to the National Invitational Tournament (NIT). The post-season appearance was FSU's first since the 1984 season and only the second in the 1980's. But last season was the proof of the basketball rebirth in Tallahassee.

With just one starter and three players who had ever donned the garnet and gold, Kennedy's 1987-88 team won 19 games, finished second in the Metro Conference and went to the NCAA tournament. All this after opening the season to predictions sub of a .500 season and conference cellar-dweller status.

Kennedy has the loyalty of Seminole basketball fans who had grown complacent. Florida State drew over 100,000 fans for the first time ever during Kennedy's first season and each year another attendance record falls. Typically, Kennedy is not satisfied. "We have got to reach the point where a basketball ticket is a hot item," Kennedy said. "Florida State fans are the best in the country, we just need more of them to come out every night. I know that we're building a solid tradition here and we just want our fans to have every opportunity to support this fine University."

Kennedy is driven to obsession in accomplishing his coaching goals. Month after month Kennedy can be found criss-crossing the south for speaking engagements, recruiting visits, charity appearances and booster meetings. No one works harder to make Florida State basketball a national name than Kennedy, and his attitude for hard work and not missing a beat has made him one of the most successful young coaches in the nation.

A native of Keyport, NJ, Kennedy attended King's College in Wilks-Barre, PA, on a basketball scholarship. After two years as a player, while still a student, he became head junior varsity coach, finishing the year with a 17-4 record. He was elevated to the school's top varsity assistant coach as a senior.

After graduation in 1975, Kennedy was named assistant coach at Lehigh University. In 1977, Iona head coach Jim Valvano asked Kennedy to join his staff and a longtime friendship between the two was born. When North Carolina State lured Valvano away from the New Rochelle, NY school after the 1979-80 season, Iona wasted little time in naming Kennedy to the post.

While at Iona, Kennedy's teams defeated some of the nation's top programs and coaches including Eldon Miller's Ohio State team, Jerry Tarkanian's UNLV Rebels and Bobby Cremin's Georgia Tech squad.

A 23-8 record in 1984 led to Kennedy's selection as the New York Metro Area Coach of the Year as well as Mid-Atlantic Conference Coach of the Year. He followed the year with a 26-5 record and was the recipient of the Heineken Award which recognizes excellence in college coaching. Kennedy followed Valvano, Lou Carnesessa and Dean Smith as winners of the prestigious award.

Overall, the Kennedy record shows six post-season appearances, three of those in the NCAA tournament, and four conference championships in eight years of coaching. Kennedy became only the fourth Division I coach in NCAA history to win 100 games in his first five years of coaching.

A high level of achievement, both in the academic and athletic arenas made Kennedy an easy choice when Florida State began looking for a head coach following the 1985-86 season. "We were impressed with Coach Kennedy's commitment to a well-rounded program and his desire to develop our players emotionally, academically, and athletically," said FSU president Dr.

Opposite Page: Timeouts mean business for the Seminoles as coaches make quick adjustments to take advantage of opponents mistakes. Kennedy's staff, which has remained intact since he came to FSU, work as unit during a game to give players the best idea of what to expect.

One of the most animated college coaches, Kennedy (above) never sits during a game. In two years, he has won 38 of 60 games, including his first ever as Seminole coach that saw him defeat Florida prompting a salute to a delirious crowd.

Above: Frustration has been a rare emotion for Kennedy since he came to Tallahassee. However, his Seminoles lost five games by a total of ten points including a two-pointer to eventual Final Four participant Oklahoma that had him throwing up his arms.

Below: A dedicated family man who believes in becoming involved in the community, the Kennedys are among Tallahassee's most popular citizens. Pat, with wife Jeannie and Joseph, was named chairman of the Special Olympics campaign for the state of Florida.

Bernard F. Sliger upon presenting the Seminole's fifth head coach.

The confidence the selection committee displayed in Kennedy comes from its belief it had hired not only an outstanding coach, but a man who understands education should come first to the student-athlete.

Kennedy's academic commitment is strong. Over 95 percent of his recruits at Iona graduated — a fact recognized by USA Today newspaper, which cited Iona College and Kennedy's program for one of the most outstanding graduation rates in all of college athletics. His "no-bend" philosophy on academics has carried over to Florida State where he is already raising the graduation rate and the scholastic health of his student-athletes.

Kennedy coached student-athletes have enjoyed great success after their basketball careers were finished. Investment counselors on Wall Street, several law school students and numerous business leaders in Fortune 500 companies found their start in Kennedy's basketball programs. "A lot of coaches may pay lip service to academics and its importance," Kennedy said. "But our staff does something about it. If a guy wants to play basketball for us, he better also want to go to class and get a degree. Because that's what he should be here for. We tell our recruits that from day one."

Recruiting talented student-athletes is a specialty of Kennedy's. His first class at Florida State was ranked among the five best in the country and last year's was ranked among the top 25. His Iona groups were on the list of the top 15 classes in the East for five straight years and the 1980 class was ranked best in the East by Eastern Basketball magazine.

It is through recruiting Kennedy plans to lay ground work to keep FSU among the country's top teams. "The amount of great basketball talent that leaves this state every year is remarkable," he said. "Now that is changing. I think all the schools in the state have put a premium on keeping the talent in Florida. That is why whenever a great high school player is lacing up his shoes to play,

If a guy wants to play basketball for us, he better also want to go to class and get a degree. Because that's what he should be here for. We tell our recruits that from day one.

we are going to have somebody in the stands watching him. There is still a lot of work to be done, but I believe Florida State is on the verge of something great."

Off the court and away from the recruiting trails, Kennedy is a man who has both a keen sense of public relations and a deep belief in becoming a part of his community. In addition to his youth camps, Kennedy serves as the state's honorary chairman for the Special Olympics, a cause he and wife Jeannie have championed for several years. In 1984, he was named Special Olympics Man of the Year.

Kennedy also possess a strong background in administration, serving five years in the dual role of head basketball coach and associate athletic director at Iona. He was president of the MAAC Coaches' Association since the league's inception and was a member of the NCAA tournament selection committee for the eastern region. The Executive Director of the Pat Kennedy Day Camps, one of the largest of its type in the nation, Kennedy is also a consultant to the Nike corporation.

Coach, educator, administrator, recruiter, community leader and family man; Pat Kennedy provides solid leadership for the Florida State basketball program.

ASSISTANT COACHES

RICH PETRICCIONE

Assistant Coach
Iona '81

Above: Florida State's coaching staff has remained intact since Pat Kennedy took over prior to the 1986-87 season. Recognized as one of the best in the south, FSU's staff has led the team to an impressive 38-22 record in two years.

The Seminoles have been recognized as one of the top schools based on recruiting over the past two years and FSU was picked by one publication as the sleeper to win the national championship.

With over 28 years of Division I coaching experience among them, the staff has built the Seminoles into a contender for the Metro crown.

Rich Petriccione begins his third season as Pat Kennedy's right hand man at Florida State. Petriccione, who serves as chief administrator of the Seminole basketball program, has worked with Kennedy since joining the Iona basketball staff back in 1981.

Petriccione's duties in the Seminole basketball office revolve around his ability to organize and administrate a college basketball program. His responsibilities involve all aspects of the Florida State program, including recruiting, scouting, daily practice coaching, overseeing academic progress and establishing contact systems. Petriccione's qualifications come from a firm understanding of athletic administration, which he cultivated while handling the same duties at Iona.

While an undergraduate aid to Jim Valvano at Iona, Petriccione served as athletic coordinator and head basketball coach at St. Phillip Neri School (Bronx, NY) from 1977-81. During that time, he was in charge of both the varsity and junior varsity basketball programs.

Additional coaching experience included three years as director of the Pat Kennedy-Iona College Day Basketball Camps. His duties included promoting and recruiting for the camp, supervision of all business services, organizing transportation systems and hiring and directing a 25-member staff. In his three years as director, the camp became one of the most successful and well-attended of its type in the entire nation.

Petriccione is a member of the National Basketball Coaches Association, New York Coaches Association and the National Federation of Interscholastic Coaches Association.

An honor student, Petriccione graduated from Iona College with a Bachelor of Arts degree, finishing with a 3.6 grade point average in pre-law curriculum. A six-time Dean's List student, his list of achievements include membership in the Iona College Cornelian Honor Society, Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, International Youth in Achievement Society and the Para Legal Guild. He received the Governor Hugh L. Carey Award, the Generoso Pope Memorial Award and the Bronx Borough President's Award — all of which denote excellence in academics and citizenship.

Active in youth organizations, Petriccione has volunteered his time on numerous occasions for the Big Brothers organizations and for Special Olympics. He also served as founder and director of the Tom McDonnell Memorial Fund, which raises money for the benefit of children's organizations.

Petriccione is 29 years old and is single.

Entering his third year of coordinating the recruiting efforts at Florida State is assistant coach David Zimroth. In just three short years, Zimroth has FSU basketball listed among the top recruiting programs in the nation. The 1987-88 class ranked among the top five in the country, and last season's class was among the 25 best.

A product of the state of Florida, Zimroth has coached at every level in his home state. His contact system within the state is extremely strong and for the second consecutive year the Seminoles signed the runner-up for the state's "Mr. Basketball" title. He also has had great success throughout the southeast, pulling in talent from Georgia and North Carolina as well as junior college stars Tony Dawson and Derrick Mitchell.

Zimroth's coaching experience began even before his graduation from Florida State in 1978. While still a student at FSU, he served as an assistant coach at nearby Florida High during the 1977-78 season.

After graduation, he returned to his alma mater, North Miami Beach High, where he coached for a year before accepting a position at Miami Dade-North Junior College for two seasons. Zimroth left the junior college ranks in 1981 to join Hugh Durham's staff at the University of Georgia for the 1981-82 season. His next stop was back at Miami Dade-North where he served another two seasons. During his four years at the junior college level, Miami Dade won 116 games and lost just 15. He recruited three players who were drafted in the first five rounds of the NBA draft.

In 1984, Zimroth was named head coach at Miami Beach High where he stayed for one year before coming to Florida State.

Zimroth has also worked an impressive number of clinics conducted by some of the top coaches in the collegiate game. Jim Valvano's NC State camps and those led by Georgia's Hugh Durham headline an impressive list. "Coach Z", as he is known by friends and fans, has also been heavily involved with the team Florida AAU program, which is traditionally one of the top AAU programs in the nation.

Graduated in 1974 from North Miami Beach High, Zimroth scored over 1800 points in his high school playing career. He received a basketball scholarship to Miami-Dade North Community College where he earned his Associate of Arts degree in 1976. Zimroth then transferred to FSU, graduating with a bachelor's in Health Education and a minor in coaching in 1978. He has also completed work towards a masters degree.

Zimroth is 32 and a bachelor.

Florida State '78

One of the most popular members of Florida State's athletic staff, Tom Carlson enters his third season as an assistant coach with the Seminole basketball program.

Carlson established a reputation as one of the state's top high school coaches while serving as head coach at Tallahassee's Maclay High for 11 years. He joined Pat Kennedy's Seminole staff prior to the 1986-87 season.

A native of Hazlet, New Jersey, the 40 year-old Carlson's roots run deep in the capital city. From 1972-74, while still a student at Florida State, he served as an assistant coach at Tallahassee's Rickards High.

He received his undergraduate degree in physical education from FSU in 1974 and enrolled in graduate school, serving as a graduate assistant on Hugh Durham's 1974-75 FSU squad that finished the year with an 18-8 record. A "jack of all trades" that season, Carlson had responsibilities with scouting and conditioning, served as head junior varsity coach and was a teacher in the Florida State physical education department.

With a master's in physical education, Carlson took over the reigns at Maclay in 1976 and three years later led the team to the state high school basketball championship. For his efforts, he was recognized as the Coach of the Year by the Florida Athletic Coaches Association. Carlson also coached the golf team and served on the faculty at Maclay.

Carlson has also been a staple on the Seminole basketball camp scene having served on the staff every year since 1973.

An honor student at Florida State, Carlson served as a member and officer in the honor society for physical education majors and was vice president of the men's physical education majors club. He is currently a member of the Florida Coaches Association and the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC).

Carlson and his wife Ann have three daughters; Erika (12), Brandy (6), and Kayce (3).

VINCE CAUTERO

Graduate Assistant
Florida State '88

While this will make the first year Vince Cautero is a member of the coaching staff, his association with Seminole basketball is longer (four years) than any other member of the coaching staff.

Cautero served as head basketball manager for the past four years and has been a mainstay of the Seminole program with experience in many phases of the program.

A 1988 Florida State graduate, Cautero majored in English and has entered the University's graduate program. He will have responsibilities in the floor coaching, scouting and administrative areas of FSU basketball.

A native of Coral Springs, Cautero graduated in 1984 from Coral Springs High and shares his alma mater with junior forward Irving Thomas.

DR. BEVERLY

Academic Coordinator

A member of the Florida State University faculty since 1977, Dr. Beverly Yerg is in her third year as academic coordinator for the athletic department. Yerg is responsible for implementing a plan to guide student athletes through their years of college.

Included in this plan is the evaluation of recruits for academic potential and the teaching of learning skills classes — mandatory two-hour classes for transfers and freshmen designed to teach basic survival skills of college life. The coursework includes goal setting, time management, stress management, study skills and career planning.

Prior to taking the newly created position in 1986, Yerg was a member of two committees that studied the academic area of the athletic department. In 1983 she was on a six-member academic subcommittee of the athletic board that studied some of the problems of student athletes and recommended solutions in the form of the Student Academic Enhancement Plan. She also chaired a self-study committee in 1985 that studied every area of the athletic department.

A native of Warren, Pa., Yerg received a bachelor's degree in education from Temple University in 1960. She returned to Temple to finish a master's in education in 1973, and in 1977 she received her doctorate from the University of Pittsburgh.

Since 1977, Yerg has served as an assistant professor in the Department of Movement Science and Physical Education. In 1982 she was named department head, a position she held until 1985. She continues to hold the title of associate professor in addition to her academic coordinator position.

A former national president of Delta Psi Kappa, the professional fraternity for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, Yerg belongs to many other professional organizations and has authored many articles and abstracts related to teacher effectiveness and teacher education.

She is married to Robert Yerg and the couple has one son.

BRIAN
MAND

Academic Advisor

Brian Mand is in his ninth year as the athletic academic advisor at Florida State. Since 1980, he has coordinated and supervised all athletic academic advisement and organized support programs dealing with academics for FSU football, basketball and baseball athletes.

Mand held similar positions at East Carolina (1979) and Rutgers (1977-79) before accepting the Tallahassee job. While at Rutgers, he also worked for a time in the office of admissions, registration and student services as assistant to the director.

Mand earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from Wake Forest University in 1972. He received his master's degree in athletic administration in 1977 from Ohio State and also did some graduate coursework in counseling at Rutgers. He has completed coursework on a doctorate at Florida State in athletic administration and was recently inducted into the Phi Kappa Phi National Honor Society.

Mand is a past president of the National Academic Athletic Advisor's Association. He is also a member of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance.

Mand and his wife, Roberta, have a son and a daughter.

Sam Lunt begins his first year as full-time head basketball trainer after returning to Florida State in 1986.

Lunt originally came to Florida State in 1983 as a graduate assistant after receiving his bachelor's degree in athletic training from the University of Miami where he worked as a student trainer for four years. He worked in the FSU training room for two years while earning his master's degree in sports psychology. Lunt then moved on to the Jacksonville Bulls of the USFL for the 1985 spring season, but returned to the college ranks that summer when he was named assistant trainer at Louisville.

A member of the Florida State athletic staff since 1971, Gene Granger begins his tenth year as head equipment manager for the Florida State basketball team. Granger's numerous duties include the ordering and daily distribution of all athletic equipment and uniforms. In addition, he serves as equipment manager for the baseball, track and tennis teams at Florida State.

A state director for the National Strength and Conditioning Association, Dave Van Halanger is in his sixth year as strength coach for the Florida State athletic department. As head strength coach, Van Halanger heads up the entire conditioning program for all 16 varsity sports at FSU.

Van Halanger arrived at Florida State in 1983, after serving in a similar capacity at West Virginia University from 1980 through June, 1983. Prior to that, he was a member of the WVU coaching staff — serving as head junior varsity coach in 1979.

The Ft. Myers, Fla. native accepted his current position at FSU in 1986. His duties included assisting head trainer Randy Oravetz with the Seminole football team as well as working with all men's teams. Lunt is now head basketball trainer and oversees FSU's spring sports.

Lunt has also worked as a volunteer trainer at the United States Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, at the 1987 U.S. Olympic Festival in Chapel Hill, NC, and has been selected to the medical staff for the 1989 World University Games in Brazil. He is a member of the National Athletic Trainers Association.

A native of Dade City, Florida, Gene attended Bethune-Cookman College where he played varsity baseball from 1969 through 1971. After college, he joined the Seminole athletic staff as an assistant manager for five years before being named to the head equipment manager position in 1977.

Gene, 43, and his wife Alberta are the parents of two children; Apryl (13) and Gene Jr., (8).

A graduate of the WVU School of Physical Education, Van Halanger played and lettered four years in football under current Seminole head coach Bobby Bowden. An All-East and honorable mention All-American selection his senior season, Van Halanger was a co-captain of the Mountaineer team that won the Peach Bowl.

Currently a member of the National Board of Ethics for the National Football Coaches Association, Dave and his wife Michele are the parents of two daughters, Julie (8) and Danielle (4).
