

FLORIDA STATE BASEBALL

SEMINOLE BASEBALL...

A Winning Tradition

America's favorite pastime...an American tradition... hot dogs and peanuts... the crack of the bat... Florida State University. There is only one word that fits in this space — Baseball.

Baseball is definitely Tallahassee's favorite pastime. With fans who pile into Dick Howser Stadium by the thousands each week during baseball season, you could say the proof is in the pudding. The reason they come is tradition, a winning tradition that is the essence of the Florida State baseball program.

But tradition doesn't last too long without people. "The handing down of customs by practice." People have made Seminole baseball a winning tradition.

In 45 seasons of intercollegiate play, through six decades and eight head coaches, Florida State has never had a losing season. The Tribe has made 15 consecutive trips to NCAA Regional competition, the second longest current streak in Division I baseball. Since 1948, 30 of FSU's 45 teams have advanced to NCAA Regional or District competition. Twelve times, Florida State squads have won those tournaments to advance to the College World Series.

Along with the many achievements of Florida State's teams, Seminole players have picked up many individual awards. Forty-four players from the FSU squad have earned All-America recognition; that list contains 23 first-team selections. Last year, FSU's first in the Atlantic Coast Conference, a conference rich in the tradition Florida State thrives on, four players made the All-ACC Team. A pair of Seminole standouts—Mike Fuentes in 1981 and Mike Loynd in 1986—won the Golden Spikes Award, presented annually to the top amateur baseball player in the country. Two other players — Terry Kennedy in 1977 and Jeff Ledbetter in 1982—were named Player of the Year.

From the tradition at FSU to the wealth of tradition in the pros. Over 127 Seminoles have signed professional contracts after leaving Florida State. In the past three seasons alone, FSU has sent 20 players into professional baseball. Last year, Kenny Felder and Chris Roberts became the seventh and eighth Seminoles chosen in the first round of the major league baseball draft.

The 24-man list of Florida State stars who went on to play in the major leagues ranges from past major leaguers Ken Suarez, Woody Woodward, Jim Lyttle, John Grubb and Juan Bonilla, to current pros Paul Sorrento, Luis Alicea and Deion Sanders. Every year, more former Seminoles are working their way up the professional ladder and into the limelight of professional baseball.

Undoubtedly, Florida State's winning tradition has been fueled by its fans. Over 90,000 people packed Dick Howser Stadium last year, an average of 2,202 per game. With some of the most knowledgeable and loyal fans around, Dick Howser is easy to spot on game day.

Florida State enjoys the support of the entire University and the Tallahassee communities. And no matter where the Seminoles travel, they can expect the same rousing cheers they receive in their home stadium. With an average of 2,304 fans at away games, and 6,311 at neutral sites, you can bet that a bulk of those seats are taken up by the avid Seminole fans who can't get enough of their squad at home.

With that type of fan interest, Florida State baseball attracts extensive media coverage around the state and around the country. FSU baseball is first page news in Tallahassee, and 10 major newspapers in Florida cover the Seminoles on a daily basis. National baseball publications keep weekly tabs on the squad as well.

And if fans can't travel to watch their Seminoles play, what better way to find out about the action than on the radio. This year, Florida State boasts the most extensive radio package in college baseball. Every game, home and away, will be broadcast live across the Tallahassee area this season.

Media coverage of the Seminoles extends to the television screen. In the past four seasons, nearly 50 games have been broadcast on cable networks across the Southeast and across the country. Already, 11 games have been scheduled for broadcast in 1993, including eight of Florida State's games against intra-state rivals Florida and Miami. The Sunshine Network, the network of Florida State sports, will carry six FSU home contests to its 2.5 million homes in the state of Florida.

Local television stations offer extensive coverage of the team, beginning in January with preseason practices and continuing through tournament time. "Seminoles Uprising" and "The Mike Martin Show", a pair of half-hour shows focusing on Seminole baseball, air twice weekly on statewide cable and on local television.

While the Florida State baseball winning tradition began long ago under the first Seminole coaches, there is no question that tradition has reached unprecedented heights under current head coach Mike Martin. In his 13 seasons at the helm, Martin has led Florida State to six College World Series appearances, including five in the last seven years. All 13 of his teams have appeared in NCAA Regionals, and 12 of those 13 teams won at least 50 games. Martin coached FSU teams have won nearly 75 percent of their games. His career record of 715-239-3 makes Martin the fourth winningest active coach in Division I baseball.

Athletics and academics. The two go hand in hand at Florida State University, and that is evidenced by the opportunities afforded to each and every student-athlete who attends FSU. The Florida State coaching staff and administration stress the pursuit of excellence in both baseball and academics. To help balance the two, all FSU student-athletes work with the academic support staff, which provides tutorial assistance, career development, scheduled study hall sessions, and computer facilities. One of the Seminole assistant coaches works closely with the academic support staff to monitor class attendance and resolve any conflicts which may arise with scheduling, travel, etc. during the season.

Facilities don't necessarily make a winning tradition. Tradition in Florida

State baseball has made the facilities great. Dick Howser Stadium is, simply put, one of the finest college baseball stadiums in the nation. The setting, with pine trees lining the rightfield wall, a 2,500-seat concrete grandstand and bleacher seats along both lines, is beautiful. The playing field itself is meticulously groomed year-round.

Two years ago, a project was completed underneath the stadium which made it truly a player's ballpark. Behind the Seminole dugout is a two-year-old lockerroom and clubhouse facility. The spacious, carpeted rooms include a large player room, an office with video equipment where players and coaches review videos, and a training area/weight room.

Last fall, due to the generous donations of former Florida State baseball players, friends, and alumni, the completion of the Seminole Baseball Tradition Room finished the project. A room designed to capture the essence of the Florida State Baseball program, the Tradition Room includes an attractive lounge area with a big screen television. The room houses trophies, photos and plaques depicting Florida State's baseball success. Replicas of the Golden Spikes Awards of Fuentes and Loynd are prominently displayed, as are past tournament and conference championship trophies. One wall of the Tradition Room is devoted to FSU's Players in the Pros, All-Americans, and College World Series teams. The room is a showcase for the tradition which has made Florida State baseball great.

The Moore Athletic Center, adjacent to Dick Howser Stadium, houses the Seminole weight room and training complex, in addition to the baseball coaches' offices. In the state-of-the-art weight room, FSU baseball players have the opportunity to condition themselves under the direction of strength coach Dave Van Halanger and his assistants, who run an off-season program for Seminole athletes. In the training room, athletes receive the finest care from the professional training staff, led by head trainer Randy Oravetz.

In the past 45 years, thousands of coaches, fans and administrators have contributed to the winning tradition of Seminole baseball. But it is the players who have built that tradition, one person at a time, one season at a time.

Tradition: the handing down of statements, beliefs, legends, customs, etc., from generation to generation, especially by word of mouth or by practice (American College Dictionary). That is what we have at Florida State. Tradition.

DICK HOWSER STADIUM

Few collegiate baseball facilities rival the Seminoles' beautiful Dick Howser Stadium. Located on the campus of Florida State University, the stadium has provided nearly one million fans with the feeling of having "the best seat in the house" to watch the finest in college baseball action. Additions and improvements to the stadium since its 1983 opening have made it one of the best ballparks in the country.

With the completion of the Seminole Baseball "Tradition Room" underneath the third base stands, the stadium now holds an attractive showcase which tells the story of the great players, award-winners and tremendous teams of the past. Trophies and plaques depicting Florida State's baseball success through the years adorn the walls. It also provides a comfortable lounge area adjacent to the FSU lockerroom, complete with VCR and big-screen television, where Florida State players can relax before and after games. (See attached box.)

DICK HOWSER

The addition of the Tradition Room this year completed a two-year project underneath Dick Howser Stadium which makes the facility truly a "player's ballpark" with drastic changes unseen by most fans.

For the third season, Florida State's players and coaches enjoy the convenience and luxury of a clubhouse and lockerroom located behind the Seminole dugout. The main lockerroom area is fully-carpeted and contains personalized lockers for each player, a separate lockerroom for the Seminole coaches, a video area where FSU players and coaches do videotape analysis, and a coaches' office. A built-in stereo system blares the players' latest favorites. Adjacent is a room which doubles as a weight and training area, complete with lifting machines.

These recent "internal" improvements are only the latest of an ongoing effort to keep Dick Howser Stadium one of the top facilities in college baseball. Externally, the stadium has also seen many upgrades. These additions have included: addition of a screen to the top of the right field wall, addition of a roof to the grandstand and a state-of-the-art electronic scoreboard, complete with message center.

Dick Howser Stadium, named after the late Kansas City Royals and Florida State manager who was also Florida State's first-ever baseball All-American, is a showcase befitting one of the top collegiate teams in the nation. From the beautifully-manicured playing surface to the chairback seats and modern press box, Howser Stadium is one of the best places in the country to watch a game.

This season, the one-millionth fan will walk through the gates of Howser Stadium in only its 11th season of operation. For the third consecutive year the Seminoles averaged over 2,000 fans a game, drawing 90,278 FSU faithful. The Tribe averaged 2,202 fans during their 41 home dates, including tournament games.

to set attendance in 1992. On successive nights in April, well over 5,000 fans witnessed the home team take on the University of Miami. Florida State recorded eight of its top 10 attendance games of all-time over the past three seasons and ranked in the top 10 nationally in attendance during that time.

Florida State fans are simply the best and most knowledgeable in college baseball. Although they live and die with "their" Seminoles, the FSU faithful are known nationwide for their sportsmanship and appreciation of good baseball — by both teams, as well as their sometimes "creative" brand of support. They, along with the stadium and a professional game operation, are a large reason Dick Howser Stadium has been the site of nine NCAA Regional tournaments in the 10 years since its opening in 1983.

The stadium was dedicated in honor of Dick Howser in March of 1988 prior to an exhibition game between Florida State and the Kansas City Royals, two of Howser's former teams. As part of the stadium dedication, Kansas City all-stars George Brett and Bo Jackson helped unveil a new $150,000 matrix scoreboard and a bronze bust of Howser. Both items were permanent additions to the facility.

Old Seminole Field was christened Seminole Stadium March 28, 1983, after over one million dollars of renovations were completed on the park. Wooden bleachers were replaced with a two-tier concrete grandstand seating 2,500, modern concession areas and restrooms, and a press box complete with separate booths for radio and television broadcasts. The lower level seating is arranged like box seats, while the upper level has metal bleachers with chair backs. All 2,500 grandstand seats annually sell out. Additional seating down both lines provides 2,500 more seats. Nearly 1,000 seats are available for overflow crowds and the park was designed to allow for future expansion.

The playing surface dimensions measure 320 feet to rightfield, 400 feet to center and 340 feet to left. Prior to the 1986 season, a screen was added to the top of the right field wall; it rises from the 10-foot high wall, increasing in five-foot increments from 20 feet in the power alley to 30 feet in rightfield — giving a unique effect.

A matrix board which provides line-ups, statistics and messages throughout the game, a high quality public address system, modern concession stands and vendors circulating the stands give Howser Stadium a "big league" look.

The playing field itself is also often compared to that of a major league park. Long-time FSU grounds chief Robert Barrett and his crew oversee the everyday upkeep of the playing surface and surroundings, spending hours on the field year-around. The hours of hard work put in by Barrett and his ground crew are often taken for granted, but they give Dick Howser Stadium a playing field unsurpassed by any collegiate team in the nation.

The beautiful home of Florida State's baseball Seminoles, from the new Tradition Room, clubhouse area and lockerroom to the top-notch playing field, chairback seats and overall family atmosphere, is indeed a fitting tribute to one of FSU's greatest alumni, Dick Howser.

SEMINOLE BASEBALL TRADITION ROOM

The latest addition to Dick Howser Stadium is the Seminole Baseball Tradition Room. A beautiful area adjacent to the FSU clubhouse and lockerroom. This room, located underneath the stadium, holds an array of FSU baseball memorabilia and trophies which tell the story of Florida State baseball success.

Separate wall displays, attractively backlit, are devoted to Florida State All-Americans, former Seminoles in the pros, and FSU's 12 College World Series teams. Another wall is lined with FSU's most recent tournament and conference championship trophies, as well as replicas of the Golden Spikes Awards of Mike Loynd and Mike Fuentes.

Another corner contains a VCR and large-screen television where players can enjoy the latest videos. Couches line the room to provide a comfortable area for relaxed viewing.

The Seminole Baseball Tradition Room, built thanks to the generous donations of Florida State former players, friends and alumni, gives Seminole players an area in which to relax before and after games and practices, and serves as a showcase for the great tradition which is Florida State baseball.

SEMINOLES IN THE PROS

Florida State's pipeline to professional baseball continues its steady flow. The Seminoles annually send the top talent to professional clubs via the major league draft, and 1992 was another banner year for Florida State. Seven Seminoles signed with major league teams, and for the first time ever, Florida State had two first-round draft picks. Lefthanded pitcher Chris Roberts was the 12th player selected in the 1992 Amateur Draft, taken by the New York Mets. Six picks later, Milwaukee selected outfielder Kenny Felder. With Roberts and Felder, Florida State has supplied eight first-round draft picks.

Since the major league draft was instituted in 1966, 129 Florida State players have signed contracts with major league teams. Twenty-eight former Seminoles have gone on to play in the pros while others, like the late Dick Howser and Woody Woodward, have become successful coaches and administrators on the major, minor and collegiate levels.

Current Seminoles in the pros include Deion Sanders, Atlanta's two-sport star who batted over .300 for the National League Champion Braves in 1992. Sanders also led the league in triples. Jody Reed is now with the Los Angeles Dodgers, traded this winter after five years with the Boston Red Sox. Paul Sorrento is currently with the Cleveland Indians after being a member of the Minnesota Twins' World Championship team in 1991. Four Seminoles reached the big leagues for the first time in 1992. Richie Lewis was called up by the Baltimore Orioles, Bien Figueroa by the St. Louis Cardinals and Rafael Bournigal finished the year with the Dodgers. Jerry Nielsen, with the Yankees last year, was traded to the California Angels in the winter.

Other Florida State products are poised on the brink of the majors as Florida State players enter the draft well-prepared and make quick ascents to the major leagues. Pitcher Mike Loynd and Alicea are prime examples of that coaching and preparation. Loynd pitched in his first game as a Texas Ranger in 1986, just six weeks after coming out of Florida State as the Golden Spikes Award winner. Alicea was the second player to reach the majors out of the draft in 1986, as the St. Louis Cardinals' second baseman.

Below is a year-by-year listing of the Seminoles who signed professional contracts out of Florida State and the teams with which they signed.

Former Seminole Deion Sanders, a two-sport star in Atlanta, helped the Braves to the 1992 World Series.

THIS IS FLORIDA STATE

Florida State University, nearing its golden anniversary as a coeducational graduate research institution, is poised on the brink of joining the nation's academic elite.

Located on the oldest continuous site of higher education in Florida and building rapidly on the framework of a highly-regarded liberal arts college for women, the university has emerged over the past 45 years as an institution of national and international esteem.

Florida State has begun the 1990s with exceptional strength, energy and vision for the future. Under the leadership of the university's 11th president, Dr. Dale W. Lick, FSU continues to build on the foundation of its long history of excellence in scholarship, research and service.

A public institution and a senior member of the nine-member State University System (SUS), FSU was founded as an institution of higher learning in 1851 by legislative act and began operating in Tallahassee with its first students in 1857.

Today, Florida State's operating budget is $412 million. Faculty and administrators generate more than $100 million annually in external funding to supplement state-sponsored research.

The main campus is spread over 396 acres in Tallahassee; FSU, which has the smallest campus in the SUS, acquired about 49 acres in 1991-92 after many years of being landlocked at 347 acres. The university owns a total of 1,172 acres in Leon, Bay and Franklin counties.

Within the state, FSU maintains facilities at its 25-acre campus in Panama City, its Marine Laboratory on the Gulf of Mexico and the Appleton Museum in Ocala. The university's theater and film professional-training programs are both located in the Asolo Performing Arts Center in Sarasota.

For years, FSU has reached far beyond Florida through international programs in Switzerland, Yugoslavia, France, Panama, Costa Rica and the Caribbean. FSU's study centers in Florence, Italy, and London, England, are considered by many the nation's best in Europe.

Florida State offers 274 graduate and undergraduate degree programs through its eight colleges — Arts and Sciences; Business; Communication; Education; Engineering (operated jointly with Florida A&M University, a historically black institution); Human Sciences; Law; and Social Sciences (which also incorporates the School of Public Administration and Policy) — and eight schools — Criminology and Criminal Justice; Library Research Institute, a multidisciplinary, multinational program established in 1984 that brings together some 50 scientists, engineers and technicians. SCRI is electronically linked to an off-campus research complex and the university's two supercomputers.

Also providing unique research opportunities is the physics department's tandem Van de Graaff Superconducting Accelerator Laboratory, which houses two powerful atom smashers and is ranked among the top four nuclear research centers in the nation by the National Science Foundation.

Graduate students, who number more than 5,500, pursue advanced degrees in fields as diverse as business administration and theoretical particle physics. A majority of research done at FSU is the direct result of student effort.

FSU, a residential campus, places a high priority on its 28,600 students and their needs and interests. The Honors and Scholars program, the Distinguished Lecture Series, Student Government, the all-collegiate Flying High Circus and intramural sports are among more than 200 organizations and activities in which students participate.

Situated in the heart of the state's thriving capital city, Florida State's main campus blends Gothic and modern styles of architecture with the oaks, pines, dogwoods, palms and azaleas of North Florida.

Florida State continues to progress and grow — from its pre-Civil War foundation as the Seminary West of the Suwannee, through the early 20th century as the academically-respected Florida State College for Women, returning to coeducational status as a university in 1947, to its modern development as an acclaimed research institution, a top-ranked competitor in intercollegiate athletics and as a standard-setter in the basic sciences and the performing arts.

In all areas of its mission of excellence in teaching, research and public service, Florida State University is advancing boldly into the 21st century.

and Information Studies; Motion Picture, Television and Recording Arts; Music; Nursing; Social Work; Theatre; and Visual Arts and Dance.

With 1,577 members, the FSU faculty currently includes five members of the National Academy of Sciences and four of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and has included five Nobel laureates.

UNIVERSITY ADMINISTRATION

DR. DALE W. LICK PRESIDENT

Dr. Dale W. Lick is the 11th president of Florida State University.

Lick, who took office at FSU in August of 1991, previously served as president of two institutions of higher education, the University of Maine and Georgia Southern College (now Georgia Southern University).

A native of Michigan, born Jan. 7, 1938 in Marlette, Lick is an alumnus of Michigan State University, where he received a bachelor of science degree in 1958 and a master of science degree in 1959, both in mathematics. He earned a Ph.D. in mathematics from the University of California at Riverside in 1965.

After completing his doctorate, Lick joined the faculty at the University of Tennessee-Knoxville as an assistant professor of mathematics. Two years later, while on leave, he was a visiting research mathematician at Brookhaven National Laboratory in New York. He returned to UT-Knoxville as a tenured associate professor of mathematics.

In 1969, Lick became head of the department of mathematics at Drexel University in Philadelphia, Pa., and at the same time served as an adjunct associate professor in biomathematics at Temple University Medical School. From 1966 to 1971, he was a consultant to the Computing Technology Center of Union Carbide Corp. for Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

Lick moved to Troy, N.Y. in 1972 to serve as vice president for academic affairs at Russell Sage College. Two years later, he was named dean of the School of Sciences and Health Professions and professor of mathematics and computing sciences at Old Dominion University.

From July 1978 to September 1986, Lick was president of Georgia Southern and a professor of mathematics and computer science. He helped lead the Statesboro institution from a teachers' college to university status.

In September 1986, Lick became president and professor of mathematics at the University of Maine, the largest of the seven institutions in the University of Maine system.

Florida State's 11th president has been married since 1956 to Marilyn K. Foster. The Licks have three grown children.

BOB GOIN ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

In his three years at the helm of the Florida State athletic department, Bob Goin has been one of the leading forces in moving Seminole athletics into the future.

Goin led the charge in Florida State's move into the prestigious Atlantic Coast Conference. By implementing one of the nation's top compliance programs, spear-heading the development of athletic facilities and committing to continuing FSU's success both on and off the field, Goin has proven to be an excellent leader.

Goin was recently named to the prestigious NCAA Interpretations Committee, and to the Executive Committee of the Division I-A Athletic Directors Association. He begins his second year as a member of the Atlantic Coast Conference Television Committee in 1992.

An assistant and then associate athletic director at Florida State from 1982-90 before becoming the acting athletic director and then athletic director, Goin was responsible for many aspects of the day-to-day operation of the department. He was in charge of running all game-day operations for the Seminole football, basketball and baseball teams, in addition to many other duties.

Goin came to Tallahassee in July of 1981 after two years as athletic director at California (Pa.) State College, where he was credited with expanding the athletic department. During his time there, he formed the Cal State Athletic Scholarship Fund and Athletic Booster Club.

Prior to taking the California post, Goin served as assistant athletic director at West Virginia University. From 1976-79, Goin was involved in several expansion projects at WVU, including construction of a new stadium and athletic facility.

From 1960-76, Goin worked at Bethany College, where he held a variety of positions, including associate professor and chairman of physical education and athletics. He also coached the football, basketball and baseball teams at Bethany.

Goin and his wife, Nancy, have three sons and a daughter, and two grandchildren.

CHARLES W. EHRHARDT FACULTY ATHLETIC COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN

In the middle of his eighth year as Chairman of the FSU Athletic Committee, Charles Ehrhardt continues to be an important voice for Florida State on the national level.

Recently, Ehrhardt was appointed by NCAA Executive Director Dick Schultz to serve on the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Special Committee which reviewed the NCAA Enforcement and Infractions process.

Twice elected president of the Metro Conference, Ehrhardt has served as chair of the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association and has been a member of the College Football Association's Monitoring Committee since 1989.

This is Ehrhardt's second stint on FSU's Athletic Committee. A professor of Law at Florida State since 1967, he first worked on the committee from 1969-71. He was reappointed to the board in 1983 and succeeded Dr. James Jones as chairman in 1984, becoming Florida State's representative to the NCAA with the appointment.

A highly-respected expert in the field of Evidence, Ehrhardt is the Ladd Professor of Evidence in the Florida State College of Law. He wrote the Florida Evidence Code, passed by the state legislature in 1976, which deals with the admissibility of evidence in court trials. Ehrhardt has also written a book on evidence, which is now in its third edition.

Ehrhardt is in demand as a lecturer and speaker. He works with lawyers and judges nationwide as a private consultant on evidence matters. He currently teaches in the areas of torts, evidence, trial advocacy and sports law. He has been honored four times as the outstanding professor in FSU's College of Law and also was the recipient of a University Teaching Award in 1989.

A native of Elkader, Iowa, Ehrhardt received a bachelor's degree from Iowa State University in 1962. He went on to the University of Iowa where he earned his law degree two years later. He eventually became an Assistant United States Attorney in Iowa before coming to Tallahassee.

Ehrhardt and his wife, the former Judy Sutton, have three children.

ATLANTIC COAST CONFERENCE

A Tradition of Excellence

Consistency. It's the mark of true excellence in any endeavor.

However, in today's intercollegiate athletics, competition has become so balanced and so competitive that it is virtually impossible to maintain a high level of consistency.

Yet the Atlantic Coast Conference has defied the odds. Now in its 40th year of competition, the ACC has long enjoyed the reputation as one of the strongest and most competitive intercollegiate conferences in the nation. And that is not mere conjecture, the numbers support it.

Atlantic Coast Conference schools have captured 43 NCAA and AIAW championships, including 24 in men's sports and 19 in women's competition. In addition, 72 men and 22 women have earned the coveted title of NCAA champion. On the gridiron, Maryland in 1953, Clemson in 1981 and Georgia Tech in 1990 were acclaimed national champions in football.

If success is best measured in terms of wins and losses, then the ACC is unrivaled in NCAA Basketball Tournament history. No Division I conference has posted a better record than the ACC since the NCAA's inaugural tournament in 1938. The nine current conference members have posted an NCAA Tournament mark of 202-109 for a Tournament-best .650 winning percentage. Following Duke's back-to-back national championship seasons of 1991 and 1992, ACC teams have claimed six national championships while finishing second on eight occasions. North Carolina, the nation's all-time winningest team, captured national titles in 1957 and 1982, while N.C. State walked away with the crown in 1974 and 1983.

ACC baseball is also on the rise. The nine conference baseball programs have combined to make 94 appearances in NCAA Regional play and 27 trips to the College World Series. In 1955, Wake Forest came away with the NCAA Championship to claim the ACC's lone baseball crown. Over the past five seasons, the conference has sent at least three teams to NCAA regional competition and in 1990 a league-record four schools accepted regional bids.

The major leagues have looked to the Atlantic Coast Conference as well. Nearly 400 players from the nine current member schools have been selected in the annual major league baseball draft since 1963. Former ACC players in the major leagues include B.J. Surhoff, Walt Weiss, Kevin Brown, Brian Barnes and Tim Lincecum, to name a few.

The ACC also stands at the forefront of inter-collegiate athletics in terms of academic accomplishments of its student athletes. That accomplishment is nowhere better reflected than in the CFA Academic Achievement Award which is awarded annually to a CFA member institution with the highest graduation rate among members of its football team. Six times over the past 11 years, an ACC member school has claimed the award. In addition, since 1963, ACC basketball players have earned first-team Academic All-America honors 28 times.

The conference will conduct championships in 23 sports in 1992-93, including 12 for men and 11 for women.

The first ACC championship was held in swimming on February 25, 1954, while the league's inaugural basketball tournament took place

March 4-6, 1954, at North Carolina State, drawing 36,000 fans over the three days. The conference did not conduct championships in cross country, wrestling or tennis during the first year.

The 12 sports for men include football, cross country, soccer, basketball, swimming, indoor and outdoor track, wrestling, baseball, tennis, golf and lacrosse.

Women's sports were initiated in 1977 with the first championship meet being held in tennis at Wake Forest, October 6-8. Championships for women are currently conducted in cross country, volleyball, field hockey, soccer, basketball, swimming, indoor and outdoor track, tennis, golf and softball.
