

Bowden's Xth

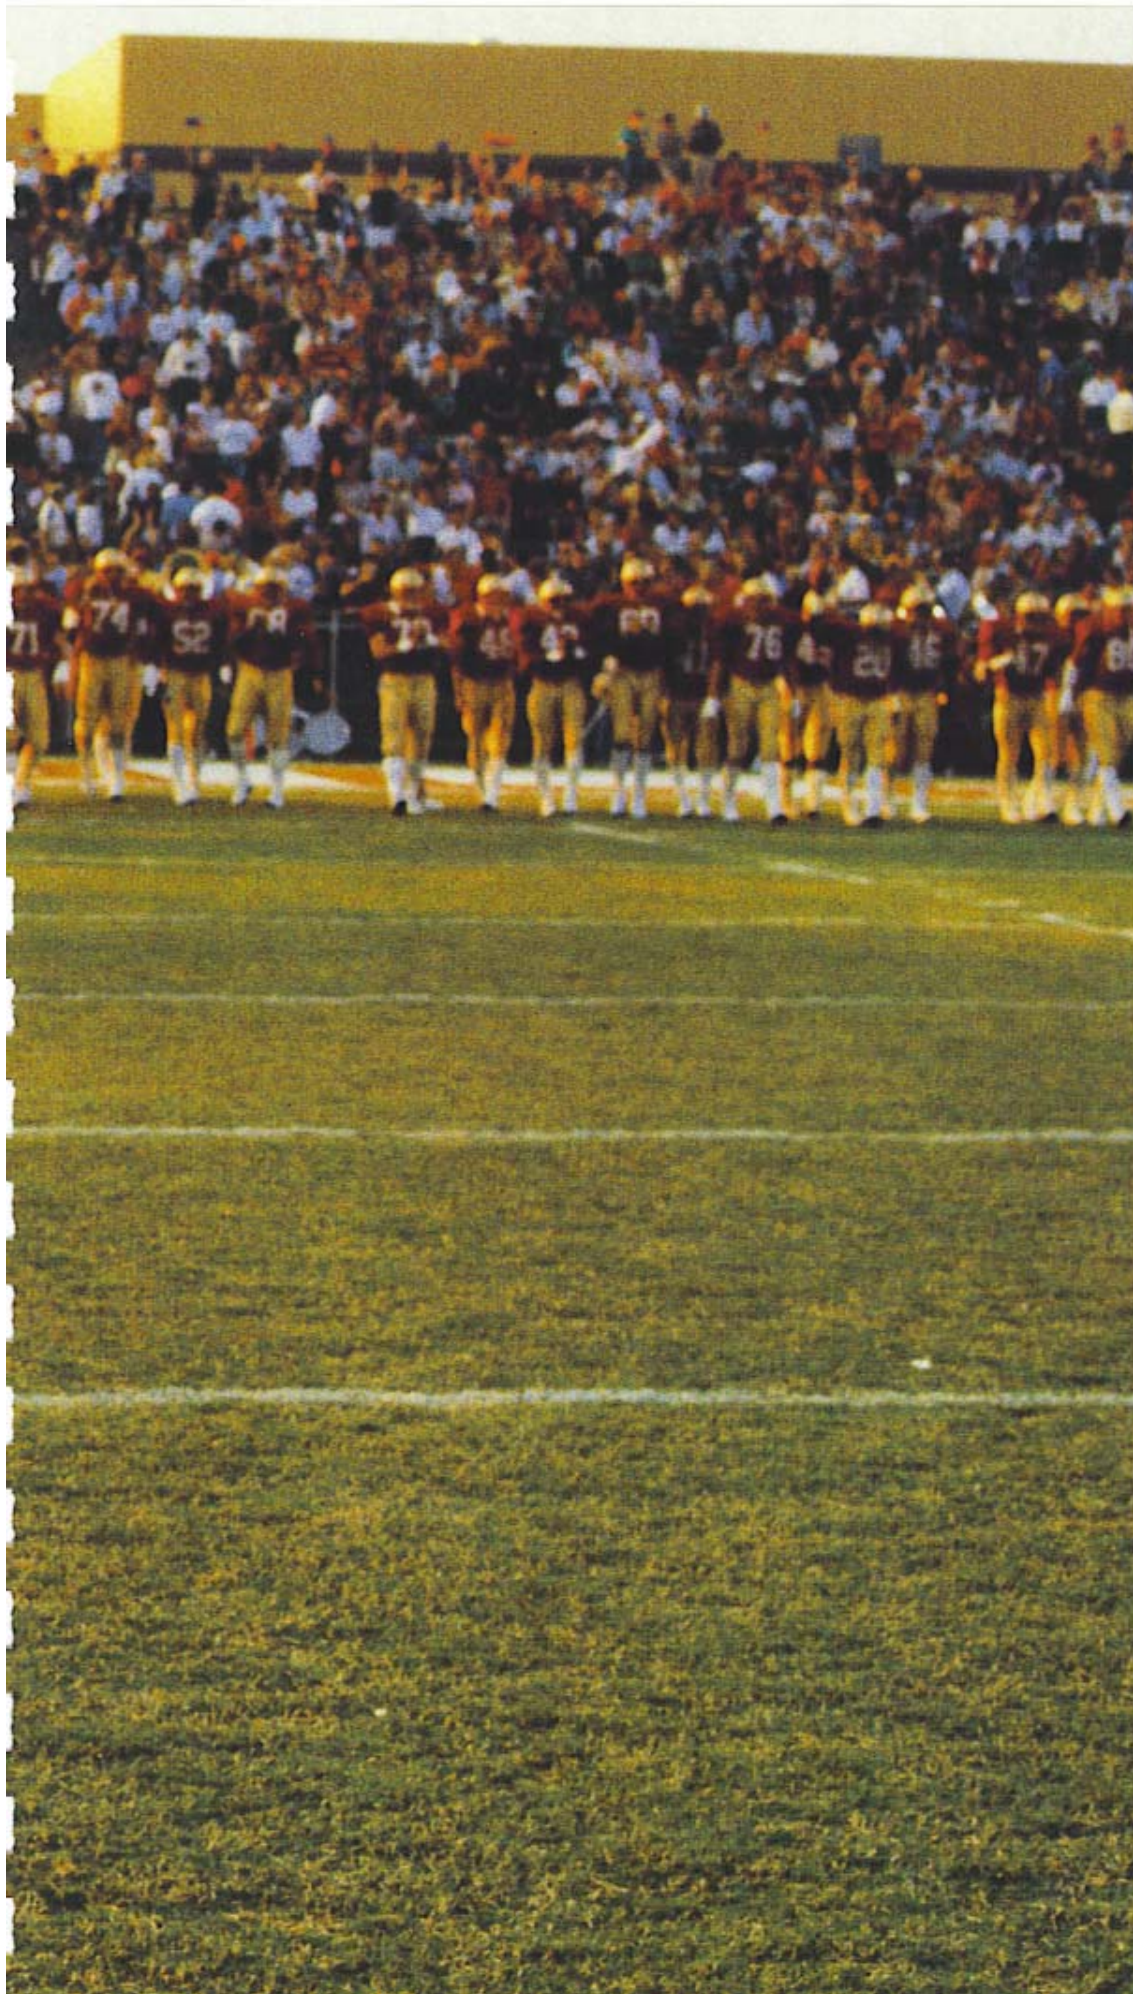

"Bowden has taught Florida State, indeed all of college football, that its possible to win and do it with style. There is no armed-camp mentality surrounding Seminole football; things are open, things are easy. Bowden is 'Coach' or 'Sir' to his players, 'Bobby' to his boosters and 'the Tallahassee Rascal' to those who must oppose him."

—Joe Henderson, Tampa Tribune

"I believe in discipline and enthusiasm in everything you do in life. And you coach what you believe. But discipline can only go so far. Heck, I've always said that if short hair and perfect manners won football games, the Army-Navy game would be played every year for the national championship."

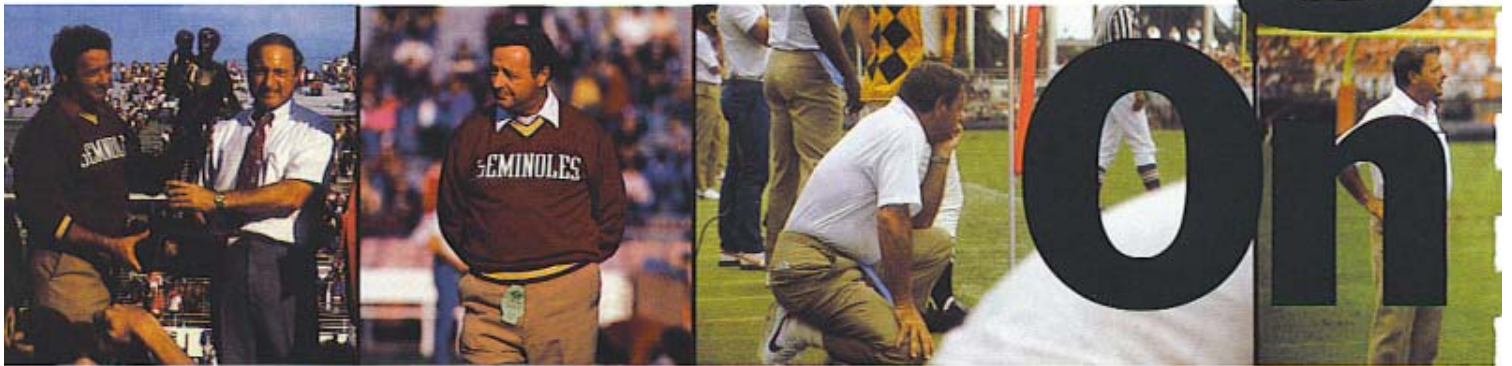

The Coaching Staff

Coaches

Going

On

Entering his 10th season at the helm of the Seminoles, Bowden's enthusiasm and competitiveness remain just as strong as ever. When he goes after something, ". . . I go after it hard."

If you would know Bobby Bowden, and where he's coming from, go back to his first press conference at Florida State after he was named head coach that January of 1976. "I am very pleased to be back in Florida, and to what I consider home," he had said. "I know a lot of you are skeptical, and that does not bother me."

Perhaps he has, at long last, made his point. This is Bowden's 20th year of head-coaching, his 10th at Florida State. On that first day Bowden, with characteristic humor, talked of his identity with warm weather and the South. Once too often, he had slipped on the ice of West Virginia. "I got out of the car last night," he said. "I was standing there upright, and my feet slipped out from under me on that ice. I fell on my elbow. And I hollered to my wife 'I'll take it—I'll take it!'"

So he took the Florida State job, and was back in his beloved homeland. "I had always thought," said the Alabama-reared Bowden, "that anything beyond Birmingham was north."

Other Bowden observations that first time around:

On discipline: "I definitely believe in it. But if you hold a bird in your hand too tight, you squeeze it to death. And if you hold it too lightly, it gets away."

On offensive philosophy: "Take what they give you. I want the capability to run or pass equally. But don't misquote me—I did not say 50 percent. I said the capability to do it equally."

On a common cause: "Those folks down yonder—down in Gainesville. I know a lot of you look at me and ask if I'm a bigtime coach. I don't know what a bigtime coach is. But I know if I beat Florida, I'll be a bigtime coach."

On how it will be when he does not beat Florida: "They're gonna get on me, and they're gonna get on me bad. If they didn't get on me, there would be something wrong." After beating Florida an unprecedented four straight years—after nine straight FSU losses to this rival—Bowden has lost four straight.

The greater drama of Bowden's success at Florida State is reflected in the fact he turned a team that had gone 4-29 the three previous years into one that was 44-14 over a following five that included two Orange Bowl trips.

Overall, after 19 years, Bowden shows 146 victories that rank him No. 6 nationally among all active coaches. The record of 146-62-2 breaks down to 73-30-2 over nine years at FSU, 42-26 over six at West Virginia, and 31-6 for four at alma-mater Samford.

"Everything I do is optimistic. I've got to figure that something good will happen. I don't know how, but it will."

The Florida State record includes astonishing accomplishments on the road—including 4-1 at Louisiana State, 2-0 at Arizona State, 2-0 at Ohio State, 1-0 at Notre Dame, and 1-1 at Nebraska.

Bowden's extraordinary popularity among Floridians reflects much more, however, than on-the-field accomplishments. He is both a man of humor, and a man of God.

In serious vein, Bowden speaks of life's priorities. "God, family, country and football," he said. "I think this country has been so blessed so much, we have so overlooked God. I think God is the reason we are a great

Bobby Bowden may have one of the most demanding jobs in college football, but he never loses sight of priorities. His wife, Ann, and his entire family as well as his religion, are far above his dedication to football. Florida State has been blessed with a fine man as well as an extraordinary football coach. Always on the go, Bowden has an energy level that may be unmatched by others in his profession.

Coaches

nation, and that He is, unequivocally, the No. 1 thing in life. Now, I don't act like I feel a lot of times.

"Football figures in a way of life. It is a microcosm of life—full of battles, full of goals, full of laws, and full of penalties that if you don't abide by the laws you get into trouble. A lot of learning experiences and teaching experiences in football are so valuable. Football puts a lot of pressure on a young man, and that makes him better able to compete in life. Football is not the only way—like some coaches think—but it is one of the ways, and very valuable to a young man."

Bowden's approach to football is most positive. That approach also applies to whatever else is out there. "Everything I do is optimistic," said Bowden. "I am just an optimistic person." One spring, when not many things were going well, Bowden maintained his upbeat outlook. "I've got to figure that something good will happen," he said. "I don't know how, but it will." And it did.

Bowden is intensely competitive. Oddly, the point may be best illustrated when he speaks of his feeling about golf. "I'd play 36 holes every day if I had the time," he once said. "I really would. It gives me that chance to compete—and I love to compete. I don't have to have an opponent. I can compete by myself—for a low score—and have a great time. I even love to practice golf. Sometimes I feel like if I don't play, I'm gonna explode. Sometimes I get it up to here with the ringing telephones—all the details. It builds up like steam. Gotta come out. Golf is my way of letting it out. Some people fish. I don't fish. I don't hunt. Golf is like the one recreational outlet I have. When I go after something, I go after it hard. It has always been that way. I don't know—it's in my blood."

The greater drama of Bowden's success at Florida State is reflected in the fact he turned a team that had gone 4-29 the three previous years into one that was 44-14 over a following five that included two Orange Bowl trips.

Then the time comes to go after football hard. Along about August 1, Bowden puts his clubs aside, and they remain stored beyond season's end, through recruiting. "Football consumes me," says Bowden. He recalled a four-week layoff prior to a season-ending game with Florida a few years back, wrought by a change in dates because of television. "Remember that?" said Bowden. "I had no desire to play golf then. In football season, I can let my steam out with football."

Now 55, Bowden's enthusiasm seems much the same as always. Once he spoke, most memorably, of how things were with him, his family and his job at Florida State. Bowden and his wife, Ann have six children. Now there are a constantly increasing number of grandchildren. "The greatest, most satisfying time is to get all the children together with Ann and go to the beach for a week," said Bowden. "We've always managed to do that every year. Sometimes when I'm sitting in my chair out on the beach with my feet in the water, I just can't imagine how things could get any better."

He thought about it all. "I'll tell you the truth," he said. "Some nights I go home and I just can't wait for sleep to be over, just so I can go out and begin the next day."

Coaching college football isn't always a bed of roses. Through all the trials and tribulations, Bowden has been able to maintain an upbeat, positive approach to the game and to life. It's his ability to laugh at himself and to understand and tolerate human inadequacies that make him just like "one of us."

Coaching Is a Family Business for the Bowdens

Yell out "Coach" at a Bowden family reunion and you're likely to get five responses, not just one. In addition to the Florida State head man, three Bowden sons and one son-in-law are members of the collegiate coaching fraternity. All three of his sons have played and coached under Bobby during their careers while son-in-law Jack Hines joined the FSU staff in 1985 as a graduate assistant coach.

TOMMY BOWDEN was named offensive coordinator of the Duke Blue Devils in January of 1985 after just two years as receiver coach there. A former starter at wide receiver at West Virginia, Tommy worked three seasons at Florida State as a part-time assistant coach before gaining the Duke position. Following graduation from WVU, he was a graduate assistant coach at his alma mater and at FSU for two years before serving as a full-time assistant for one year at both Auburn and East Carolina. During Tommy's two years at Duke, the Blue Devils have had the top three receivers in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

TERRY BOWDEN holds the head coaching job at Salem College in Salem, West Virginia. He went there in 1983 after spending several years on his father's staff as a graduate assistant and part-time coach. A 1978 graduate of West Virginia University, where he lettered in football in 1977 and '78, Terry led Salem to an 8-3 record and the co-championship of the West Virginia Conference in 1984.

JEFF BOWDEN is the youngest son of the FSU coach and the only one to play under his father at Florida State. He graduated from FSU in 1983 and was immediately hired by brother Terry as receiver coach at Salem College. While at Florida State, Jeff lettered in football in 1980 and played in three post-season bowl games.

JACK HINES, Bobby's son-in-law, is beginning his first season as a graduate assistant coach at Florida State. Hines moved to Tallahassee in 1984 and worked as assistant coach at Leon High School before taking the FSU position. Hines graduated from West Virginia in 1972 after playing strong safety under Bobby. Following graduation, Hines was defensive coordinator at Morgantown High School for nine years before working as a part-time coach at his alma mater for one year in 1980. At Florida State, Hines assists John Eason in coaching FSU's excellent receiving corps. He is married to the former Robin Bowden.

Bobby Bowden has managed to assemble one of the finest and most experienced groups of assistant coaches anywhere in America. A testimony to the strength of his staff lies in the fact that two of his aides were hired as head coaches after last season. Florida State is fast becoming one of the coaching hotbeds of the college game. This year's staff features a load of experience and perhaps the most respected group at FSU.

Assistant Coaches

Chuck Amato
North Carolina State '69
Assistant Head Coach
Defensive Line
Fourth Season on Staff

Chuck Amato has been Florida State's defensive line coach since 1982 and was named assistant head coach in 1985, giving him added responsibilities in the administrative area.

During his tenure at Florida State, Amato developed defensive tackle Alphonso Carreker into a 1984 first-round draft choice of the Green Bay Packers.

Amato arrived at Florida State from Arizona where he coached the Wildcat linebackers for two seasons. Prior to his work in Tucson, he had done all of his coaching at his alma mater, North Carolina State.

He first joined the N.C. State staff in 1968 as a student assistant coach under former Florida State defensive coordinator Jack Stanton (now with the Atlanta Falcons). In 1971, Amato began full-time duty with the Wolfpack, and in 1974, he was promoted to defensive coordinator, a position he held until his move to Arizona in 1980. During his years at N.C. State, Amato worked under three head coaches—Al Michaels, Lou Holtz and the late Bo Rein.

The Easton, Pa., native earned both his bachelor's and master's degrees from North Carolina State. As an undergraduate, Amato was a three-year letterman in football and wrestling for the Wolfpack. He was undefeated in dual matches as a wrestler and won the Atlantic Coast Conference title in his weight class twice.

Chuck and his wife, Peggy, are the parents of twin daughters.

Mickey Andrews

Alabama '64

Defensive Coordinator

Defensive Backs

Second Season on Staff

Mickey Andrews joined the Seminole coaching staff in February of 1984 as the defensive coordinator and defensive backfield coach. In 1985, Andrews faces the biggest challenge of any coach on the team—replacing eight seniors who saw action in the secondary in 1984.

Andrews came to FSU from the Arizona Wranglers of the United States Football League, but the 42-year-old coach was no stranger to the college game. Before taking the Arizona job, he had spent 17 years coaching in the collegiate ranks.

Two of those years (1981 and 1982) were spent as defensive backfield coach at the University of Florida. He was also defensive coordinator at Clemson from 1977–80 and had the title of Assistant Head Coach in his final season there. Clemson was 33-13-1 during Andrews' years at the school.

Prior to his work at Clemson, Andrews was the head coach and athletic director at North Alabama for four years (1972–1976).

The Daleville, Ala. native earned second-team All-American honors as a running back and defensive back at Alabama from 1961–64. During his career, the Crimson Tide won two national championships (1961 and 1964) and played in the 1963 Sugar and 1964 Orange bowls.

Andrews was also an All-SEC baseball player at Alabama and received the 1964 Hugo Freidman Award as the Tide's best all-around athlete.

Following graduation, he spent one season as an assistant coach on the high school level and soon moved on to his first collegiate job as an assistant at Livingston University in Alabama. Andrews was named head coach there in 1970 and went on to compile a three-year record of 24-7 and the NAIA national championship in 1971.

Mickey and his wife, Diane, have two children. A son, Ronnie, is a walk-on candidate at wide receiver for the Seminoles.

Wally Burnham

Samford '63

Inside Linebackers

First Season on Staff

Wally Burnham is the only new addition to the 1985 football coaching staff. A veteran of collegiate coaching ranks, Burnham was added to the staff in January of 1985 and placed in charge of the inside linebackers.

Burnham came to Florida State from the Arizona Wranglers of the USFL (now the Arizona Outlaws), where he coached the Wrangler linebackers during the 1983 and '84 seasons. In 1984, Arizona had the top-ranked defense in the league, and one of the league's top defenders in linebacker Ed Smith.

Before moving to the pro game, Burnham spent two years as defensive coordinator at Lamar University in Beaumont, Texas, and one year prior to that as linebacker coach at Memphis State in 1980.

The 43-year-old native of Pell City, Ala. was named Little All-American as a linebacker at Samford in 1963. He played for Bear Bryant at Alabama in 1960 and '61 before transferring to Samford, also FSU head coach Bobby Bowden's alma mater.

Following graduation, Burnham spent several years coaching high school football in Alabama before getting his first collegiate job in 1971 when he was named to (FSU's defensive coordinator Mickey Andrews') staff at Northern Alabama.

He spent six years at that school as defensive line coach before becoming defensive coordinator at East Tennessee State in 1977, where he remained for three years.

Burnham and his wife, Barbara, have three children.

John Eason

Florida A&M '69

Receivers

Fifth Season on Staff

Since his arrival at FSU five seasons ago, John Eason has found himself coaching one of the most talented groups of athletes on the squad. Weegie Thompson (Pittsburgh Steelers) and Dennis McKinnon (Chicago Bears) are both Eason protégés who have made the pro ranks while 1985 graduate Jessie Hester joins that group this year in the NFL.

Eason joined the Florida State program from Tallahassee's Lincoln High School, where he was assistant principal for student affairs for two years. From 1973 to '79 he worked as an assistant football coach at Leon High School where he handled the offensive line and offensive coordinator duties.

A native of Ocala, Fla., Eason played receiver and punter for Florida A&M between 1963 and 1967. He was named MVP of the Rattler squad in both 1966 and '67 and won All-American accolades in each of those seasons. Following his senior year, he was invited to play in the Blue-Gray and Coaches All-American all-star games.

After his collegiate playing days ended, Eason played two years of professional football with the Oakland Raiders and then took a post as assistant football coach at Ocala Vanguard High School until 1971. The next year, he returned to professional football and played a season with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

Eason received both his bachelor's and master's degrees from Florida A&M. He and his wife, Dorothy, have a daughter.

Jim Gladden

William Jewell '62

Outside Linebackers

10th Season on Staff

Jim Gladden joined the Seminole coaching staff on a full-time basis the year Bobby Bowden became head coach. Prior to that, he had served as a graduate assistant coach for the Tribe in 1975.

Gladden has tutored the outside linebackers since his arrival on the FSU campus. His most famous pupil is Willie Jones, a 1979 second-round draft pick of the Oakland Raiders who played on the 1980 Super Bowl squad.

Gladden once again showed his proficiency in the recruiting field in 1985 by signing several highly sought players out of the Central Florida area, including Parade All-American Sammie Smith. In previous years, Gladden signed Jamie Dukes, Isaac Williams and Gerald Nichols; three players who will be vital to FSU's success this year.

Gladden is also responsible for the punting team and the "block party" image that has accompanied that team during the Bowden years. Florida State blocked a school record eight punts and one field goal in 1984, and added another block in the Citrus Bowl that enabled FSU to come back and tie Georgia's Bulldogs, 17-17.

Before coming to Tallahassee, Gladden spent 15 years coaching in the high school ranks. He graduated from William Jewell College in Liberty, Mo., where he was chosen to the all-conference team as an end. Gladden then spent three years coaching in Kansas City and St. Louis high schools before moving to Kentucky, where he was named High School Coach of the Year in 1970.

After coaching in Tennessee for one season, Gladden took over the Brooksville (Fla.) High School head coaching job in 1972. Two years later, he joined the Seminoles.

While a graduate assistant during his first year at FSU, Gladden was placed in charge of the junior varsity program. His job duties expanded to encompass the outside linebackers when he became a full-time assistant the following year. Today, Gladden is also responsible for administrative duties that include coordination of player housing and meals.

The Springfield, Mo. native and his wife, Patricia, have two children.

Bob Harbison Indiana '48

Offensive Line
37th Season on Staff

Bob Harbison has spent over half of his life on the Florida State football staff. He has been a member of the coaching staff for 35 of the Seminoles' 38 seasons of football.

In the spring of 1982, after spending four years in an off-the-field administrative capacity, Harbison returned to the field once again to tutor the offensive linemen, where he works closely with offensive coordinator Wayne McDuffie.

Harbison also coached the 1964 offensive line—tabbed the "Seven Magnificents", considered by many to have been Florida State's finest.

When he wasn't coaching the line, Harbison had assignments with both the offense and defense while working under Don Veller, Tom Nugent, Perry Moss, Bill Peterson, Larry Jones, Darrell Mudra, and now Bowden.

A graduate of Indiana, Harbison played offensive end and defensive line for the late Bo McMillan and was selected to play in the Blue-Gray game at the end of his collegiate career.

Bob and his wife, Jayne, have raised three children.

Wayne McDuffie Florida State '68

Offensive Coordinator
Third Season on Staff

One of two Florida State graduates on the Tribe coaching staff, Wayne McDuffie is in his third year as offensive coordinator and offensive line coach. McDuffie also served on the FSU staff from 1971 to '73, giving him a total of five seasons on the Florida State sidelines.

After a season as offensive line coach for the Atlanta Falcons, McDuffie joined the Bowden staff in 1983. Prior to the job with the Falcons, he gained a reputation as an outstanding offensive line coach during the five years he coached that position at Georgia. His line paved the way for Herschel Walker's sensational freshman and sophomore seasons, as well as contributing to the Bulldog national championship of 1980.

McDuffie played three positions during his playing career at Florida State—defensive end, center and offensive guard—while going to three bowl games. McDuffie played two years in the Continental Football League (1969-70) before returning to FSU as a graduate assistant coach in 1971. A year later he became head freshman coach and full-time offensive line duties were added in 1973.

After the '73 season, McDuffie left Florida State to become offensive line coach at New Mexico. From New Mexico, he went to Oklahoma State for two years where he helped the Cowboys to a rare Big Eight championship in 1976. He left OSU the next season to join Vince Dooley's staff at Georgia.

A native of Hawkinsville, Ga., McDuffie received his bachelor's degree from FSU in 1968 and master's degree in 1971.

Wayne and his wife, Toni, a former FSU cheerleader, have three children.

Brad Scott

Missouri-Rolla '76
Recruiting Coordinator
Tight Ends
First Season on Staff

Former graduate assistant Brad Scott joined the Seminole staff in January as a full-time tight end coach and recruiting coordinator.

Scott, 30, joined the Florida State staff as a graduate assistant coach last year and served as the head junior varsity and tight end coach. He also had responsibilities on the Seminole special teams.

Since joining the FSU program, Scott has played a major role in Seminole recruiting efforts. In the spring of 1984, Scott signed standout freshmen players Pat Carter and Derek Schmidt, and he is credited with bringing together one of the Tribe's strongest recruiting years with his 1985 group.

A native of Arcadia, Fla., Scott played college football at Missouri-Rolla from 1972-76. In his last season, he played the offensive line at Tampa's American Bowl all-star game on a team coached by Bobby Bowden.

After college, Scott returned to his hometown as an assistant coach at DeSoto County High School in 1978-79. The next year, he held a similar position at Hardee High School in Wauchula. He got his first college coaching experience in 1980 at The Citadel. After one year there, he returned to Arcadia, this time as head football coach and athletic director.

Scott and his wife, Daryle, have two children.

Billy Sexton

Florida State '74
Running Backs
Ninth Season on Staff

Tallahassee native and running backs coach Billy Sexton enters his third season coaching the running backs and ninth overall on the FSU staff. As coach of the running backs, Sexton helped develop FSU All-American Greg Allen, who broke 26 records while at Florida State, while the 1984 backs set a new mark for rushing yardage.

Sexton began working on the Seminole staff as a graduate assistant coach in 1976 when he tutored the tight ends. He then worked with the quarterbacks for two seasons until 1982, when he became the head junior varsity coach. He also handled scouting assignments for Bowden in '82 and '83.

Coaches

The former Leon High School standout played his first three years of college football at Alabama as a backup quarterback before electing to transfer to FSU. After arriving at Florida State, he was a starter for the opening half of the 1973 campaign.

One year later, Sexton earned his bachelor's degree in business from FSU and returned to Leon to begin his coaching career. He worked with the offense of the Lions for three years, before returning to FSU as a graduate assistant.

Sexton, one of two Seminole coaches to graduate from Florida State, and his wife Joy, have two children.

Dave Van Halanger
West Virginia '76
Strength Coach
Third Season on Staff

Dave Van Halanger, who played under Bobby Bowden at West Virginia, is in his third season as the FSU strength coach.

Van Halanger spent seven years at West Virginia before joining the Seminole program in July of 1983. He was the Mountaineers' strength coach for five years and is credited with starting the school's first organized weight training program.

After serving as a graduate assistant and head junior varsity coach for two seasons following graduation from WVU, Van Halanger was awarded full-time status in 1978.

He was on the West Virginia sidelines when Florida State beat the Mountaineers 31-12 in the 1982 Gator Bowl.

As a player, Van Halanger lettered four seasons under Bowden and co-captained the 1975 West Virginia Peach Bowl team. An offensive tackle, he earned All-East honors his junior and senior seasons and honorable mention All-America honors as a senior.

He now serves as the state director for the National Strength and Conditioning Association and is a member of the national board of ethics for the National Football Coaches Association.

A native of Turtle Creek, Pa., Van Halanger and his wife, Michele, have two daughters.

Don Fauls
Ithaca '48
Head Trainer
28th Season on Staff

Affectionately known as "Rooster", Don Fauls has been treating Seminole athletes for 27 years. He is one of the four members of the Florida State athletic department with 25 years or more of service and has been one of the most popular people associated with the program since 1954 when he was first named head trainer.

In early 1970, he left the Florida State campus for better than three years, but returned to the FSU training room in 1974. Only offensive line coach Bob Harbison has been associated with Florida State football longer than Fauls.

Fauls still treats former athletes who may pick up the phone and seek medical advice, including actor Burt Reynolds.

A native of Ithaca, N.Y., Fauls served as trainer for several professional baseball teams before coming to Florida State. He has worked as a trainer for the U.S. Pan American team and was a member of the Olympic Trainer's Selection Committee. He also served as assistant baseball coach at FSU for eight years.

Respected as a teacher as well, many of Fauls' students now occupy head trainer positions at the collegiate level and some have gone on to the professional ranks. He has also been a host instructor for student athletic trainer workshops in Tallahassee.

Fauls, who is a member of the National Athletic Trainers Hall of Fame and the Ithaca College Hall of Fame, is a 1948 graduate of Ithaca where he lettered in baseball and basketball.

He and his wife, Marguerite, have raised three children.

Randy Oravetz
Florida State '79
Assistant Athletic Trainer
Sixth Season on Staff

For the last six years, Randy Oravetz has been head trainer Don Fauls' right-hand man.

A native of Tampa, Fla., Oravetz was a member of the student training corps at Florida State for four years prior to joining the full-time staff. He started his training career as a student trainer at the University of Tampa until that school dropped its football program in 1975.

In addition to his work with football, he served as head baseball trainer at FSU for two seasons. Oravetz has traveled with football, baseball and soccer teams and has worked with basketball, track, swimming and tennis athletes.

At Florida State, his responsibilities include caring for injured athletes, maintaining and supplying the training room and keeping the athletic department medical records.

He has served as an assistant trainer for the Florida College all-star football game and for the Lions American Bowl.

Randy and his wife, Linda, have a son.

Frank DeBord
Virginia Tech '42
Equipment Manager
17th Season on Staff

Equipment manager Frank DeBord plays an important role in the fielding of the Seminole football team. One of the unheralded, behind-the-scenes members of the FSU staff, DeBord supervises the football gear and practice fields and oversees the team facilities in the Moore Athletic Center. When the Seminoles play away from Doak Campbell Stadium, DeBord directs the transfer of all equipment and baggage to the site of the game.

The Marion, Va., native accepted the head equipment post in 1970 after working one season as assistant equipment manager. He has been with the Seminole athletic program for the last 16 years.

DeBord graduated from Virginia Tech in 1942 where he lettered three times in football and wrestling. Following graduation, he served as assistant football coach, then head football coach at Franklin (Va.) High School. He also played two years for the Norfolk Neptunes of the Continental Football League.

Frank and his wife, Marian, have raised three children.

Jimmie Callaway
Assistant Equipment Manager
Eighth Season on Staff

Jimmie Callaway has worked at Florida State in the equipment area for eight years. His primary job responsibilities lie with assisting equipment manager Frank DeBord with securing and organizing football equipment for all Florida State practices and games. In addition, he also handles transportation arrangements for other men's sports and coordinates security of the Moore Athletic Center.

Callaway, a native of Tallahassee, came to FSU in 1978 after 20 years with the Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles.

He and his wife, Donna, have two daughters.
