Kittleison lets himself dream

Florida State sophomore readies self for Masters

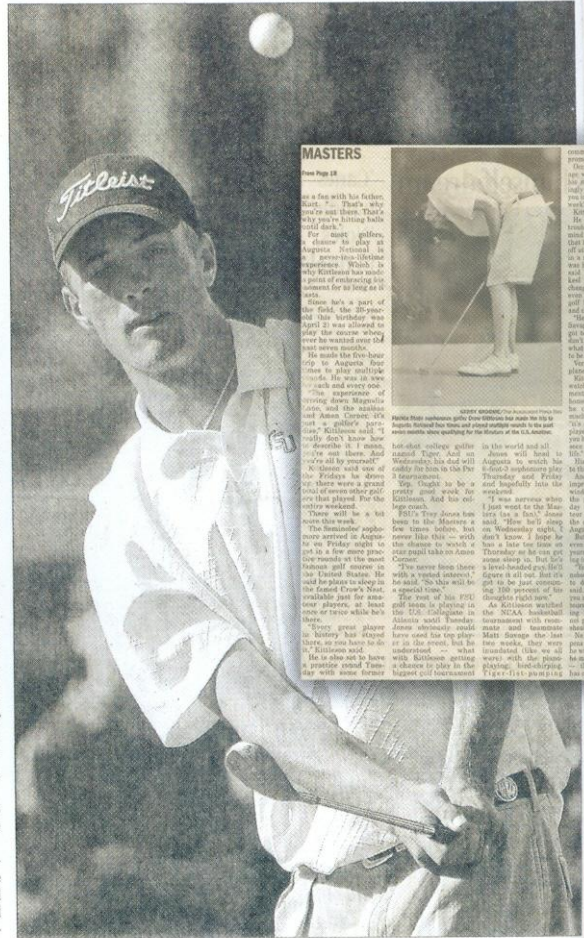

By Corey Clark

He's allowed himself to dream.

It's Sunday afternoon. He's in the final pairing. He's safely on the green and just a simple two-putt away from the most prestigious title in the world. As he walks up the 18th fairway, during a picturesque Augusta twilight, the boisterous cheers wash over him. A few minutes later, he's in the Butler Cabin and Trevor Immelman, last year's winner, is placing a green jacket on his shoulders.

This is how Florida State sophomore Drew Kittleison has pictured this week ending.

Not just since he led for the 2009 in August by being second in the amateur. And not because he became one of the top prep golfers in

Kittleison shoots even par

FSU sophomore eagles twice in second round of Masters play

Kittleison

This round at Augusta National was what Drew Kittleison had in mind. Following up a disappointing 78 on Thursday, the FSU sophomore totaled up an all-over-the-map even-par 72 during the second the shot was replayed on ESPN for most of Friday. He followed that with an adventurous triple bogey at No. 12, then he bounced back with another eagle at the par-5 15th.

Kittleison had three bogeys, one triple bogey, two birdies and two eagles on Friday alone. He will earn two crystal goblets from Augusta National to commemorate each eagle, four total.

And he'll be bringing more home than just a little glassware.

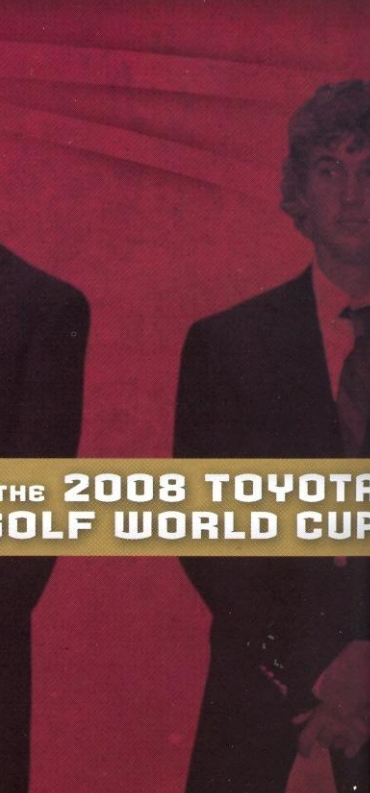

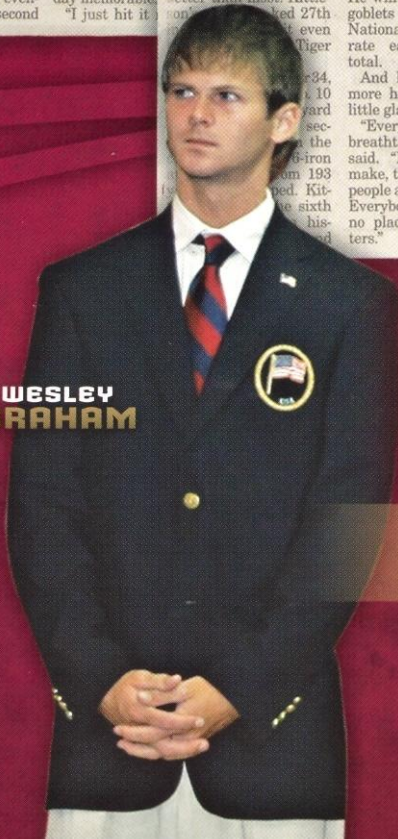

"Everything was just breathtaking," Kittleison said. "Every turn you make, there were 50,000 people all rooting for you. Everybody knows there's no place like the Masters."
