They say a great team is the sum of its parts.

Florida State University men's golf coach Trey Jones has assembled a group of talented players and must now develop those players into a team that will compete for the ACC and NCAA Championship. With history on his side, Jones has made it a habit of recruiting the nation's top talent and helping those players reach their potential as one of the nation's top teams. Now in his seventh season at Florida State, Jones has led the Seminoles to four consecutive NCAA championship tournaments and the school's first ACC Championship in 2008.

With three returning talented and experienced upperclassmen, three sophomores (including the reigning ACC Rookie of the Year) who helped the Seminoles reach the 2009 NCAA Southeast Regional championship and two highly regarded freshman who will quickly earn their place in Florida State's starting line-up, Jones has brought together one of the top collections of individual talent in school history.

have a really strong group of players that make up potentially one of the best teams I have coached here at Florida State," said Jones. "Each player can fit into any of the five spots in the line-up and each player has tremendous leadership capabilities. Coaching this group is going to be a lot of fun because they all have the ability to go low each round."

Florida State's senior class is small with only two players but big on talent and experience.

Seath Lauer and Cameron Knight, who have both played in three NCAA championship tournament and three ACC championships during their careers, are the Seminoles' senior leaders. Both players were members of the Seminoles' starting line-up in 2008 when Florida State won the ACC championship and both players helped Florida State advance to the finals of the 2007 NCAA championship.

"It's exciting to have two senior leaders who have as much big tournament experience as Seath and Cameron," said Jones. "They bring an intangible to our team that we have not enjoyed in the past and that's experience. They have played in some big tournaments and played some big holes for our team. We will need both players to use their talents and experience to lead this team and we are confident that they will deliver for us."

Lauer is the Seminoles' most experienced player entering the 2009-10 season having played in 30 tournaments during his career. He was in Florida State's starting line-up and finished in a tie for 13th place in the individual standings in helping the Seminoles to the 2008 ACC Championship. Lauer has been a regular member of the lineup since the spring of his freshman season and has played in 30 of the Seminoles' 35 events in the first three years of his career.

"We expect – we need – Seath to have a big year for us," said Jones. "As a senior and one of our leaders his success in many ways will dictate how well our team plays this year. He has learned to manage his emotions and has improved his game throughout his career. Seath needs to play up to his potential each time out; if he does that we have the chance to be in the thick of things nationally at the end of the season."

Knight's post-season experience makes him a valuable Seminole in his final collegiate season. He was at his best during his junior year as he averaged a career-low 73.64 strokes in eight tournaments. Knight has helped the Seminoles into the national rankings in each of his first three seasons and helped the Seminoles to a No. 7 ranking in the final regular season Golf World poll of the 2007-08 season.

"We are excited about the role Cameron will play on our team this season," said Jones. "He has displayed the desire to play any role that is need to make our team successful. Cameron can be our leader, he can be our top player and he can fit anywhere else into the line-up. His value now that he is a senior is incredible to the make-up of our team."

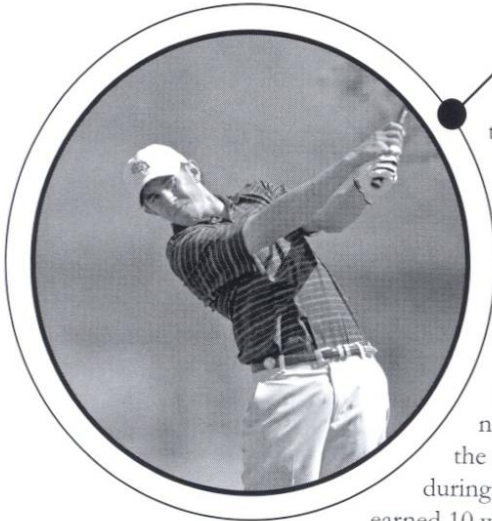

Drew Kittleson, a junior, is Florida State's most recognizable player entering the 2009-10 fall and spring seasons. He played in the Master's and US Open Championship in 2009 after finishing in second place at the 2008 US Amateur Championship. His experiences on a national stage coupled with his extensive experiences during the first two seasons as a Seminole gives the Seminoles yet another upperclass weapon on their roster.

"Drew lived out every golfer's dream when he played in the Master's and US Open," said Jones. "He has continued to improve since his freshman season as he played on two of the great courses in the world and alongside the greatest players in the world. Playing a practice round with Phil Mickleson and was able to absorb his knowledge for 18 holes.”

Kittleson earned All-ACC honors in 2009 to mark the first time in his career that he had been named as one of the ACC's top golfers during his career. He earned 10 wins against the top 12 ranked players in the ACC and ranked third in the ACC with 27 wins over players ranked in the nation's top 51-100 players. As a freshman, Kittleson was a member of the Seminoles' lineup and helped the team win the first-ever ACC Golf Championship in Florida State history. His career-best score of 66 came in the second round of the spring 2009 Hawaii Hilo Invitational.

More than half of the Seminoles' roster is made up of either sophomores or freshman with each of those four players possessing the ability to earn their way in to Florida State's starting line-up and make a tremendous impact of the presumed good fortune of the team this season.

Florida State's sophomore class consists of three players – returning players Wesley Graham and Brooks Koepka and transfer Kyle Cobb. Graham played in five events as a Seminole freshman, Koepka played in 11 events and was the ACC Rookie of the Year in 2009 and Cobb is in his first season as a member of the golf team at Florida State.

“The success of the players in our sophomore class may help determine the success of our team this season,” said Jones. “We all know that Brooks is a proven player who will compete in each round. Wes enjoyed an up and down freshman season and learned a lot from his experiences. His overall improvement will be evident beginning early in the spring and that will give us a good indication of how good he can be this season. Kyle is a strong player who has a great chance to break into the line-up in his first season.”

Koepka ranked sixth overall and first among all league freshman with a 72.58 stroke average during his first collegiate season. With his incredible rate of improvement, Koepka has put himself into contention for both national and ACC honors throughout the remainder of his career. Koepka played in his first career NCAA Regional championship and in his first career ACC Championship as a freshman while playing in 11 events as a freshman to tie for the team lead in total events played in 2009. Koepka tied the Seminole record for low round score with a 65 during the Florida State Spring Break Invitational in 2009.

“Brooks played as well as any freshman I have coached last season and we have great hopes that he will only continue to improve as a player,” said Jones. “He played tough holes against tough competition and made putts when he needed to make them last season. I see a very bright future ahead for Brooks; a future that I am very excited about.”

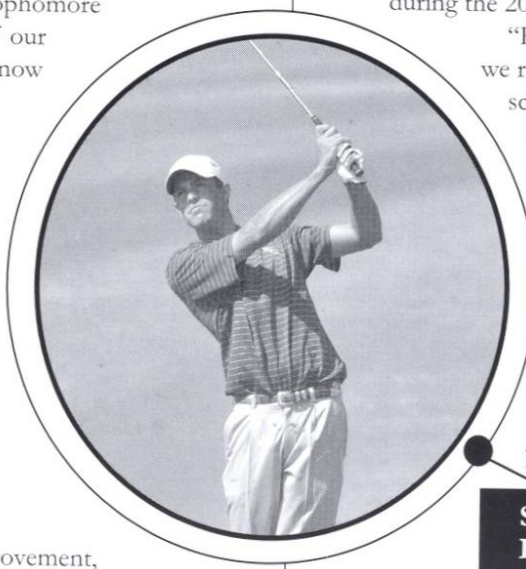

Graham is an immensely talented golfer who fits nicely into the Seminoles' championship plans for the final three seasons of his career at Florida State. He played in five of the Seminoles 11 tournaments as he became acclimated to college life both academically and athletically during his freshman season. Graham earned his first career top five finish with a third place standing at the Florida State Spring Break Invitational as he carded scores of 68 and 67 to finish with a seven under par score of 137 in helping the Seminoles to the team championship in the event.

“Wes is a player that we are really excited about and have been since his arrival as a freshman,” said Jones. “When he puts everything together he is a tough competitor. He has to get to a consistent level and allow himself to play on an even keel in every event and in every qualifier. When he does that he will become a special golfer.”

Cobb is a transfer from UCF who will battle for playing time in his first season as a Seminole. He played well as a freshman in 2007-08 but took a redshirt year and did not play for UCF during the 2008-09 fall or spring seasons.

“Kyle is a local player from Tallahassee who we recruited when he was a senior in high school,” said Jones. “It's good to finally have him as a member of our program because he is a solid golfer. We look for him to compete and compete hard to get into the line-up and once he gets there he has the ability to make himself a fixture during the remainder of his career.”

During his tenure at Florida State, Jones has become accustomed to putting freshman in situations where they can be successful. Think back to Jonas Blixt who played extensively as a freshman and won the ACC Championship as a senior or to Matt Savage who earned his way into the starting line-up as a freshman and who became the first three-time All-ACC selection in school history.

In Michael Hebert and Doug Letson, Jones may have a couple of Blixt or Savage like players who will force themselves into the line-up immediately.

"Michael and Doug are outstanding players who could work themselves into the line-up because of their talent," said Jones. "Because we recruit players to play immediately regardless of their class standing we are looking forward to seeing these two players fight their way into the line-up. As a coach, I like the competition and our players are looking forward to the challenge. Our two freshman have the chance to raise our talent level quickly."

Hebert comes to Florida State as a very accomplished junior golfer who will be one of the Seminoles' top players upon his arrival as a freshman. He was a 2008 and 2009 American Junior Golf Association All-American and the 2007 state of Florida junior champion and led his team to two state championship titles and two third place state championship tournament finishes during his much decorated high school career. He has also played in a national stage as he advanced to sectional qualifying for the 2008 US Open with a 68 in the first round of the event.

"Michael could be an impact player and will have an immediate impact on our team," said Jones. "I really like his potential and how he handles himself on the course. As he continues to mature and learn more about course management, he will continue to become a much better golfer."

Letson has a great feel for the game and will begin his collegiate career with the talent to quickly become a member of the Seminoles' starting line-up.

He has developed a very mature demeanor on the golf course -- one which allows him to manage his game well.

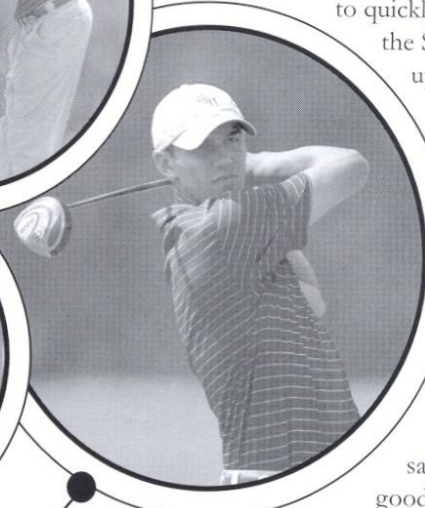

"Doug is a solid player whose short game abilities allow him to be successful on many different types of courses," said Jones. "He is a very good putter which allows him to close well on holes that might prove to be tougher for other players. "The sky is the limit for both of our freshman golfers," said Jones.

Jones has continued to recruit well and has built the Seminoles into a national contender. It will be his job in 2010 to merge the talents of each one of his players into one cohesive team that will land the Florida State men's golf near the top of the leader board in each tournament the Seminoles play this year.

Trey JONES

Head Coach ■ 7th Season ■ North Alabama '91
DIRECTOR OF GOLF OPERATIONS

Trey Jones, the 2008 ACC Coach of the Year, has earned the reputation as one of the nation's top coaches as he has helped develop Florida State into one of the elite programs in collegiate golf. In his seventh season as Florida State's head men's golf coach and director of golf operations, the Seminoles are regarded as one of the most competitive teams in the nation as evidenced by their four consecutive NCAA Championship appearances, 2008 ACC Championship and top finishes while annually playing the toughest schedules in all of college golf.

Building championship teams and elevating those teams onto the national stage is nothing new to Jones who has earned four conference coach of the year awards and who has led eight of his 13 teams at the Division I level to the NCAA Tournament. His teams consistently hold prominent places in the national rankings, are adept at winning conference championships and are annually among the top producers of All-American and all-conference performers.

Jones has also coached many of the top golfers in the illustrious history of the Florida State program. He coached Jonas Blixt, a two-time All-American and two-time All-ACC selection and Matt Savage, who also earned All-American honors and was a three-time All-ACC selection and is currently coaching Drew Kittleston who played in both the Master's and US Open Championships in 2009 after finishing as the runner-up in the 2009 US Amateur Championship.

"Trey Jones helped me realize my potential as a collegiate golfer and helped make all of my teammates better golfers and competitors," said Blixt. "He believed in me as much as I believed in him throughout my career at Florida State. Coach Jones helped make me the golfer I am today and helped me reach my goals – graduating from Florida State University and becoming a professional golfer."

Jones was named the ACC Coach of the Year, led Florida

State to its first ever ACC Championship and helped the team achieve a national ranking as high as No. 7 in 2008. The Seminoles also played in the NCAA Tournament for the third consecutive season, won three team championships, had a player earn All-America First Team honors for the first time since 1995 and had two players earn All-ACC recognition.

Florida State has taken its rightful place among the nation's top teams and the origins of its recent success can be traced to Jones' arrival in Tallahassee in 2004. He is responsible for attracting nationally ranked recruiting classes as well as upgrading the Seminoles' schedule to where it is ranked among the nation's toughest on an annual basis. FSU plays in the nation's most high-profile events and the most prestigious courses in the country each season.

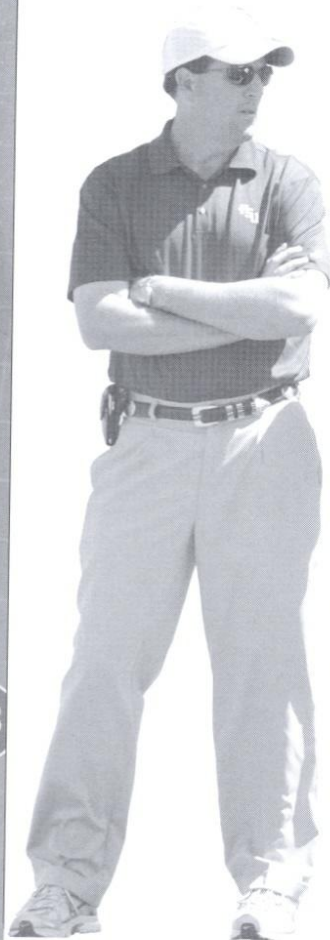

Jones is a 19-year veteran of the collegiate coaching ranks. He was the head men's coach and Director of Golf Operations at Georgia State for eight years (1996-2003) before becoming only the fifth coach in the history of the Seminole program in 2004. Prior to his career at Georgia State, Jones was an assistant coach at Wallace State Junior College (1992-95) and his alma mater North Alabama (1991). Jones developed his teaching, coaching and recruiting philosophies as he helped mold those programs into national contenders.

Jones has been named the top coach in three different conferences – the Atlantic Coast, Atlantic Sun and Trans America Athletic Conference.

Jones has had the biggest impact on the Seminole program in the area of recruiting during his first six years in Tallahassee. Florida State's recruiting class ranked as the fourth best in the nation in 2007, the fifth best in 2008, the sixth best in 2005 and among the nation's top 15 in 2006.

Jones accepted his first head coaching job at Georgia State in 1995 and immediately began to assemble one of the dominant men's golf programs in the southeastern United States. He was responsible for the program in its entirety including recruiting, coaching, fundraising, public relations, strength and conditioning, scheduling and the team's budget.

He led the Panthers to a national ranking as high as 20th during the 2000 season, making the golf team only the second Georgia State team to earn a top-20 national ranking. In 2001, Georgia State won the Trans Atlantic Athletic Conference championship by an astonishing 41 strokes. Following the conference championship, the Panthers earned their third consecutive NCAA Regional Championship appearance.

Under Jones' leadership, Georgia State amassed 91 wins over SEC teams and 33 wins over ACC opponents from 1999-2000. During that period, Georgia State earned 23 victories over top 25 opponents.

With Jones, the Panthers played in four NCAA Regional Championships (1999, 2000, 2001 and 2003) and the NCAA Championship in 2000. He led the Panthers to eight tournament titles and to the first three Atlantic Sun conference titles in school history and earned conference Coach of the Year honors each time (1998, 2000 and 2001). He is one of only three coaches in A-Sun history to earn the award three or more times during his career. Jones coached eight all-conference selections; the 2001 conference Player of the Year (Allen Thompson), the 2001 conference Rookie of the Year (Bradley Beverly), the only four-time all-conference player in school history (Jack Croyle, 1999-2001) and the only regional All-American in school history (Ty Harris, 2003).

Jones was also instrumental in developing a comprehensive support network for the Georgia State golf program. He founded the Panther Golf Club in 1998 to support both the men's and women's golf programs. The Panther Club became the largest booster club on the Georgia State's campus as it raised an average of $40,000 a year during his tenure. He has done the same at Florida State as he has been the driving force in developing the Seminole Masters – an exclusive group of individuals who have committed themselves to providing the resources for excellence for FSU golf.

Jones earned two varsity letters under head coach Billy Gamble during his collegiate playing career. He was a member of the Lions' golf team in 1990 and 1991. He also earned two varsity letters in golf at Wallace State in 1987 and 1988.

Jones has been an active member of the Collegiate Golf Coaches Association since 1993. He is currently on the board as the Division I Director for the East Region and has served as Chair of the District 3 South Regional NCAA Selection Committee in 2001 and 2002. Jones was a representative on the District 3 South NCAA Selection Committee from 1999-2002.

Jones earned his bachelor's degree in health and physical education with a minor in business administration from North Alabama in 1991.

Jones is married to the former Cathy McVeigh, who is the coordinator of financial aid for student-athletes at Florida State. The couple are the proud parents of a daughter, Jordan (8) and a son, Lawrence Andrew (4).

Chris MALLOY

Assistant Coach ■ 4th Season ■ Ole Miss '01

Chris Malloy, who has helped the Seminole men's golf team develop into one of the nations top programs, is in his fourth season as an assistant coach at Florida State. He helped coach the Seminoles to the school's first ever golf ACC Championship in 2008 and has worked tirelessly to develop the program into a perennial top-15 program.

With Malloy on the coaching staff, the Seminoles have appeared in the last three NCAA Tournaments and have produced the ACC individual champion, two All-Americans, four All-ACC selections and one ACC Rookie of the Year. The Seminoles won three tournament championships in 2008 to mark the first time since 1995 that the program has won multiple titles in a single year. Florida State's team championship at the fall 2007 Inverness Intercollegiate was the first team title for the program since 1998. The Seminoles won the championship of the Inaugural Florida State Spring Break Invitational in 2009.

Malloy worked extensively with former Seminole Jonas Blixt as he earned All-America First Team honors in 2008, All-America Second Team honors in 2007 and won the 2008 ACC individual championship. He also worked with Matt Savage – a three-time All-ACC selection, a 2007 All-America Second Team selection and the 2008 North and South Amateur medalist and currently works with Drew Kittleson – who played in both the Master's and US Open Championships in 2009 as a current member of the FSU men's golf team.

Malloy gained valuable experience in helping develop Florida State into a perennial top-15 team. He has been the designated on-course coach for the Seminoles numerous times during his first three seasons as a Seminole assistant coach including during the third round of the 2007 NCAA Championship finals as Florida State won a three-team play-off and advance to the top 15 in championship play. With their win in the playoff, the Seminoles advanced to the final round of the championship.

Malloy's work with the Florida State players has led to outstanding team success in addition to numerous individual accolades. The Seminoles finished in the top five of 20 events during his first three seasons. Additionally, FSU's team stroke average has dropped in two of the three years Malloy's has been on the coaching staff. As a team the Seminoles averaged a 15-year low 72.77 stroke average in 2008.

Malloy also achieved success at the college level as a top player at Ole Miss during his playing career. He led Ole Miss to the NCAA Championship finals in 1999 and the NCAA East Regional Championship Tournament in 2000 as a two-year letter winner and team captain for the Rebels. Malloy began his career in intercollegiate athletics as a Corporate Account Executive for Seminole Athletics Marketing.

Malloy enjoyed his best season as a collegian as he led the Rebels to a tied for 24th place finish in the NCAA Championship Tournament in 1999. He finished the season with a career-best 74.79 stroke average and earned his best career individual finish tied for fifth at the University of Alabama Spring Invitational. Malloy's individual finish led Ole Miss to the team championship at the Alabama Spring Invitational. Malloy earned four top-30 individual finishes and led the Rebels to four top-10 team finishes. Among those top-10 team finishes was a ninth place finish at the NCAA East Regional Championship which qualified Ole Miss for the NCAA Championship Tournament.

The Warrenton, Va., native helped the Rebels to a sixth place finish in the SEC Championship and an 11th place finish in the NCAA East Regional in 2000 as he finished fourth on the team with a 75.00 stroke average. He earned a pair of top 15 individual finishes with a tied for 14th place standing at the Atlanta Intercollegiate and a tied for 15th placing at the Colorado State Intercollegiate. He led Ole Miss to a sixth place team finish at the Gator Invitational that season as he shot a career-low 68 in the first round of the event.

Malloy, 32, earned his bachelor's degree in hotel and restaurant management from Ole Miss in 2001. He was named to the Ole Miss Athletic Association Academic Honor Roll during his career. He was married to Danielle Bartlett in June of 2008.
