NATIONAL CHAMPIONS

Ever since the inception of the program in 1949, the men's swimming and diving program has been recognized as one of the best in the nation. Overall the men's team has had 21 individual receive 56 All-America certificates with 15 more accolades from the relays. Just 12 years after the program was started, the Seminoles had their first national championships and since then a Seminole has been on top of the podium at the NCAA Championships four more times. Here is a look at the Florida State national champions:

Curt Genders

One-Meter Diving (1961)

Before Dave Cowens, Deion Sanders or Charlie Ward, Curt Genders was considered to be "Possibly the greatest athlete in Florida State history" in the 1964 swimming and diving media guide.

The moniker was well earned as Genders became the first swimmer or diver to ever earn All-America honors in three different seasons as he picked up the award from 1959-61 on the one-meter board as well as three-meter board or "high board" as it was called back in the 1960's.

A native of Sarasota, Genders saved his best NCAA meet for his last. During the 1961 competition, he defeated a pair of Olympians on his very last dive to claim the title on the one-meter board, a first for Florida State swimming and diving.

Phil Boggs

One-Meter Diving (1971)

Ten years after Curt Genders brought home the program's first national championships and once again it was on the one-meter diving. While most of the swimmers and divers recruited by Florida State today have national accolades, Boggs was not well known outside of his hometown of Akron, Ohio.

Despite standing in at just 5-foot-5, Boggs was actively involved in diving, football, baseball and track, but it wasn't until his junior year that he fully turned his attentions to the springboard. Working with FSU graduate Dick Wells at Firestone High School, he began his journey to national recognition and eventually an Olympic gold medal.

Following a satisfactory freshman season, instead of returning to Ohio, Boggs spent the summer in Ft. Lauderdale, training with coach Bill Barton. Barton's work that summer had a tremendous impact as the very next season Boggs placed fourth on the one-meter board at the 1969 NCAA Championships. His All-America certificate was the first by a Seminole diver since Genders in 1961.

"It was fun," Boggs said of his summer under Barton's tutelage. "He was the first person to tell me that I had the opportunity to compete on the national level."

The improvement continued the next as he moved up two spots on the one-meter board while adding All-America recognition during the three-meter competition. His final season Boggs climbed to the top of the diving mountain with a national championships on the one-meter.

At the time, Boggs' five All-America awards tied him with Genders for the most in the program's history and the diving duo currently rates third. Five years after winning the national championships for the Seminole, Boggs went on to claim a gold medal on the one-meter board at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

Women's 200 Freestyle & 200 Medley Relays (1982)

The women's program went out on a high note in its last AIAW Championships as it won a pair of relay titles. The Seminoles finished second to Texas in the team standings thanks to championships in the 200 freestyle and medley relays.

Getting Florida State's first women's national championship in swimming was the quartet of Meg McCully, Sharon Spuler, Laurie Lehner and Simone Kusseling in the 200 medley relay. The foursome set a new school record with a winning time of 1:42.86. Up next was a title in the 200 free relay as Spuler, Lehner and Kusseling were joined by Lenore Gribble to post a top time of 1:33.50 to set another Seminole standard.

A tribute to the talent on that year's team, both relay marks would stand for more than 15 years. It wasn't until 1999 that the 200 free relay record was taken down and on the 20th anniversary of the 200 medley relay title, the record was finally broken. Twenty-three years later, both times still meet NCAA qualifying standards.

The 200 medley and free relays were the centerpiece of one of the most successful years in the program's history. Eight different swimmers came home with All-America certificates, including five that amassed 12 individual awards to go along with accolades in four of the five relays. Twelve records were set that season and Lehner's 100 butterfly mark still stands as the women's oldest record and the second oldest overall behind Phil Bogg's 1971 one-meter diving record.

The following year Florida State competed at its first Women's NCAA Championships after the national governing body began sponsoring the sport the year before.

Stephen Parry

200 Butterfly (1997)

Within the first 23 years of the program, Florida State had a pair of national champions, but after Phil Boggs in 1971, it would be another 36 years before a Seminole stood on top of the podium at the NCAA meet. Florida State returned to men's swimming and diving glory in 1997 when Stephen Parry put the program back on the map.

Parry trained in crowded pools and limited facilities in Liverpool, Great Britain, but from that setting came great accomplishments. He was the 1994 Junior European Champion and the 1995 England National Champion in the 200-fly.

Parry found his first year at FSU to be a challenge, having to adjust to a new training program, a new school and new country all together. But it was after the British Trials that he knew he had to change something. He returned to FSU with a new ambition — a team victory at the Atlantic Coast Conference Championships and a top five finish in the NCAA. He took advantage of the training facilities and started working harder and longer.

“Coming from Liverpool, the training facilities were completely different,” Parry said. “It took the summer of ’96 for me to realize what I had available to me.”

All his hard work and dedication paid off for Parry. He improved his times throughout the season, but saw the biggest improvements at the 1997 ACC Championships. Going into the championships, Parry was ranked first in the 200-fly and he did not disappoint. Not only did he win the event, but he set an ACC record in the process. He went on to win the 200 Free and was on the 200- and 400-medley relay champion teams, leading to Co-Swimmer of the Year honors in the ACC along with Brendon Dedekind.

At the 1997 NCAA championship meet in Minneapolis, Minnesota, Parry and his teammates achieved several honors. Dedekind became the first FSU swimmer to achieve three All-America finishes and all five Seminole relay teams scored for the Seminoles. But perhaps the greatest accomplishment came on the night of March 29th when Parry, who was seeded first in the 200-fly going into the finals, won the first national championship for swimming in FSU history. His pool record time of 1:44.28 won him the title and helped him restore some confidence.

“I wasn’t really thinking about it (the championship) at the time,” Parry said. “Going into the race seeded first, there was some pressure but I wasn’t expecting to win. It was more of a shock than anything else. I just swam the race the way coach planned it out. It really didn’t hit me until I got back to Tallahassee that I had won a national championship. And it wasn’t even until this summer that I realized I’m as good as the best swimmers in the nation.”

Brendon Dedekind 50 Free (1998) & 100 Breaststroke (1999)

Swimming in a lane with six and seven people is not the ideal training conditions for an Olympic swimmer. But for Brendon Dedekind, it was the starting point for what would soon become a successful career in collegiate and international competition.

After the 1992 South African Nationals, he began to pursue that dream. Dedekind sent out 32 applications to United States universities and received many prospect questionnaires, but no scholarships materialized. So in 1993 he enrolled in engineering classes in South Africa and gave up on the dream.

In 1993 the tables began to turn for Dedekind and he started to see the dream becoming a reality. Neil Harper, an assistant coach at FSU at the time, received a phone call from former LSU teammate, Darryl Cronje, a fellow South African swimmer, telling him about a South African who could be an asset to the team. Not too long after, Dedekind received a call from then assistant head coach Neil Harper offering him a scholarship.

As a freshman in 1995, he qualified for the NCAA Championships at the University of Texas. Although he made the consolation finals in the 50-free and won the heat finishing ninth, he was still overwhelmed by the facility and the stronger, faster swimmers. This gave him more incentive to train and work harder for the next season.

The following March, Dedekind started to make his mark in FSU swimming history. With one NCAA meet under his belt, Dedekind felt more relaxed and less overwhelmed by the enormity of the competition at the 1997 Championships at Minnesota. That year he became the first swimmer in FSU history to garner All-America honors in three events as he finished in the top five of the 50 and 100 freestyle—including the fastest 50 free heat in NCAA history—as well as 100 breaststroke.

In the 1998 NCAA meet at Auburn, his 19.17 qualifying time in the 50 free set a new pool record and gave him the top seed going into the evening competition. That night, Dedekind dominated the competition and became only the second swimmer in FSU history to win an individual title, taking first in the 50 free.

“I took the race as just another race,” Dedekind remarked. “It was really exciting to win the 50-free, but I was still not satisfied with my time. I think I could have swam faster that night.”

Satisfaction came in his senior year, but not in the 50 free. Dedekind entered the 1999 NCAA Championships qualified in the 50 and 100 free and the 100 breaststroke. He walked away with yet another title, but this time it was in the 100-breast.

A participant in the 1996 and 2000 Summer Olympic Games, Dedekind’s Florida State career will come full circle in the fall of 2004. This October he will become just the eighth member of the swimming and diving program — and the first since 1998 — to be inducted into the Florida State Athletics Hall of Fame.

FSU'S OLYMPIC TRADITION

Florida State's Swimming & Diving Olympic Heritage

For an athlete, the highest honor a nation can bestow upon them is to have them represent their country in the Olympic Games. Since the 1976 Games in Montreal, Canada, the Summer Olympics have had a Garnet and Gold feel to them. All told, 13 current and former Florida State swimmers and divers have represented 11 different countries.

Dating back to Florida State's first Olympic representative in the pool, diver Phil Boggs at the 1976 Games, the Seminoles have had at least one representative in all but two of the last eight Olympics. At the 2004 Games in Athens, Greece, Florida State had five representatives – the second highest total in school history – and former Seminole Parry produced the school's second medal in the pool as he took the bronze in the 200-meter butterfly.

The last three Olympic Games have been especially bountiful for Florida State representation at the aquatics center. Eleven of the Seminoles' 13 Olympians took part in either the Atlanta, Sydney or Athens Games. The 2000 Olympics saw FSU's highest participation as six former Seminoles competed at the event. In the last two Games, Florida State has had eight different participants.

Success was immediate for the Seminoles the first time they had an athlete in the pool at the Olympics. Diving for the United States, Boggs captured the school's first medal when he won gold during the springboard event in Montreal. It would be another 28 years before a Seminole would appear on the medal stand after Great Britain's Stephen Parry captured the bronze in the 200-meter butterfly.

While Parry ended Florida State's 28-year medal drought, a different dry spell of almost equal length was halted as well in Athens. In 1980, Wendy Fuller became the first female FSU swimmer or diver, and only the second overall, to compete in the Olympics when she dove for her native Canada. It wasn't until 2004 when the Seminoles had their second female in the water as Golda Marcus, competing for El Salvador, swam in the 400 and 800-meter freestyle.

Besides being only the second female Olympian in the program's history, Marcus is part of another elite group. She and teammate Chris Vythoulkas—a member of this year's Bahaman team—are two of only four FSU swimmers to ever compete in the Olympics while still part of the active roster. The first pair of current Seminoles to compete in the Games was South African Brendon Dedekind and Rob Braknis of Canada when they swam in the 1996 Atlanta Games.

Up until 2004 no Seminole had participated in more than two Olympic Games. All of that changed in 2004 as Julio Santos made his third appearance in the games for Ecuador. A two-year All-American, Santos made his first trip to the Games in 1996 then returned in 2000. All told, five Florida State swimmers and divers have participated in more than one Olympics.

Florida State has been well represented on the pool deck by a pair of coaches. Head coach Neil Harper, an Olympian himself in 1984 and 1988, served as the head coach for South Africa in 2000, while returning in 2004 as a member of the Swaziland coaching staff. Diving coach Patrick Jeffrey made the trip to Atlanta in 1996 as member of the US coaching staff.

With a strong group of returning letterwinners and incoming athletes who placed high at their country's Olympic trials, Florida State should be well represented in the Olympics for years to come.

Garnet & Bronze

Every swimmer that participates in the Olympic Games dreams of being on the medal stand and having a dignitary place that medal around their neck. From the world record holders all the way down to person seeded last in lane eight, the dream is there. It's what drives them to get up at 5:30 a.m. every morning for practice instead of hitting the snooze bar one more time and what makes them swim one more lap instead of hitting the showers even though their body aches.

Every Olympian daydreams of seeing their flag rise to the rafters and for former Florida State University swimmer Stephen Parry that dream became a reality. In 2004 he became the first Seminole in 28 years to capture a medal as he took home bronze in the 200-meter butterfly.

"I'm really, really proud. It's an amazing feeling, a fantastic feeling," Parry said. "I know it's an old cliché, but it really is a dream come true. I'm so proud to be a part of the British team and give them this medal."

The fulfillment of that dream almost became a nightmare for Parry. Swimming for Great Britain, a ton of pressure had been put on Parry and his teammates after the squad came up dry in the medal count in Sydney, a first for Britain since the 1936 Olympics.

Perhaps it was the weight of an entire country on his shoulders or the internal pressure following a fourth-place finish at the 2003 World Championships, irregardless, the preliminaries of the 200 butterfly on August 16 did not go as planned. In fact, the prelims were almost Parry's only swim of the entire meet. The 16th and final swimmer in the semifinals, he was a tenth of a second from being in

With his world turn upside down, Parry turned to a safe haven – Florida State head coach Neil Harper. A confidant from his days as Parry’s assistant coach at FSU and someone who knows what pressure is like on the British team, Harper—who traveled to Athens as a member of the Swaziland coaching staff—was able to put Parry back in the right frame of mind for the semifinals that night.

It’s funny how far a “nothing to lose” attitude can take you. Swimming out of lane eight, Parry not only qualified for the finals, but he did something that only one other individual had done at the Games, he beat Michael Phelps. The 19-year-old American phenom was the favorite to win five individual medals, but in the semis Parry stole the spotlight as he beat Phelps to the wall and earn the top seed for the finals the following night.

All of sudden his rollercoaster ride through the Olympics was heading back up hill at a dramatic pace. Instead of just being another also-ran in the Michael Phelps’ coronation, Parry joined Australia’s Ian Thorpe as the only swimmer at the Games to beat the second-coming of Mark Spitz to the wall.

“Sometimes uptight is not the best way for him to perform,” Harper said. “As you saw from semifinals he’s at his best when he is footloose and fancy-free. You could see by the way he swam that the weight had been lifted off his shoulders. It was fun to watch him last night.”

While Parry tried to bring his carefree demeanor to the finals of the 200 butterfly, having the eyes of the world on you and an agitated world record-holder in the lane besides you doesn’t make for a walk in the park. From his observation spot on the deck, Harper noted that as the finalist marched onto the deck for the event, Parry tried to give a wave and a smile to his British teammates in the stands, but clearly his game face is on.

As was to be expected, Phelps took an early lead in the race and tried to put as much distance as possible between he and the rest of the field. One of the best in the world at closing out a race, if Phelps had a sizeable lead at the last turn everybody else would be racing for silver.

Through the first 100 meters, Parry was firmly in second ahead of Japan’s Takashi Yamamoto, but nearly a second behind Phelps. Midway through the third 50 meter lap, Parry’s “nothing to lose” attitude came back. If he didn’t take his shot at catching Phelps he would never know what might have been.

“I thought I’d lost it there at the end,” Parry added. “I saw Michael getting away. I got really excited down that third length. I thought I was reeling him in a bit and I didn’t expect to be there. I came off that last wall and that’s when he showed his true form. He really is fantastic.”

During that third lap Parry hit the afterburners—his third split of 29.74 was lap three’s fastest and the third fastest 50-meter split during the final 100 meters of the race—and with 25 meters to go he was neck and neck with Phelps. Unfortunately, the combination of Phelps’ closing ability and not enough fuel in Parry’s tank allowed Phelps to pull away for the gold.

“It got really exciting. Steve was pushing Phelps and the two of them just took off,” Harper said. “Stephen tried to make a move at 150 (meters) and caught up to him and it look for a second that he might pull it off, but he ran out of gas and the Japanese guy caught up to him and Stephen held on for the bronze.

Yamamoto also pulled away during the last few strokes as he snuck in for the silver, but Parry would still be on the medal stand. In addition, Parry reset the British record that he took down the night before with a time of 1:55.52.

Phil Boggs: Florida State’s First Olympic Medalist

When he first came to Florida State in 1968, very few would have pegged Phil Boggs as a future gold medal winner in the Olympic Games. It was through hard work and a boost of confidence that got him to the top of the medal stand in 1976.

A four-sport athlete in his native Akron, Ohio, Boggs didn't concentrate on diving until his junior year and his first season at Florida State was not outstanding. Instead of heading back to the Buckeye State for the summer following his freshman year, Boggs decided to spend the break in Ft. Lauderdale with coach Bill Barton.

"It was fun," Boggs said of his summer under Barton's tutelage. "He was the first person to tell me that I had the opportunity to compete on the national level."

Over the course of a summer Boggs was transformed from just another diver to one of the top collegiate divers in the country. At the 1969 NCAA Championships, he picked up his first All-America honor – the first by a Seminole diver since 1961—and proceeded to collect four more national honors over the next three seasons.

The year after he won the national championships, Boggs virtually had his ticket punched for the 1972 Games in Munich. A poor dive during the final round of the US Olympic Trials kept him off the 1972 team and put Olympic Dreams on hold for four years.

Not only was Boggs determined to be on the 1976 team in Montreal, he had his eyes set on winning a medal. Between the 1972 Olympic Trials and the '76 Games, Boggs won 17 national and international titles, including the 1973 and 1975 World Championships. In four years he had gone from being a spectator to being the favorite for gold.

Going into the final round of the 1976 Olympics, Boggs was well in command of the springboard competition, holding a 40-point lead on the nearest competitor, but his experience at the 1972 Trials told him that nothing was guaranteed. He nailed his final dive, a 2.5 somersault with a twist, and when he came back to the surface and saw the judges' scores, Boggs knew he had the gold medal wrapped up. His final score of 619.05 put him 48.57 points ahead of silver medalist Franco Cagnotto of Italy.

"Everything you've ever dreamed of is right there. Even if no one else knows, you know it will always be there," Boggs added. "When the national anthem plays and you're presented your medal, you feel like the king of the world."

Boggs went on to become the president of US Diving and was inducted into the International Swimming Hall of Fame in 1985. The Phil Boggs Awards is present annually at the US Aquatic Sports Convention, honoring those who have achieved individual excellence in diving and have given back a part of themselves to insure the sport's success continues. Boggs died on July 4, 1990, in Miami, Fla.

INTERNATIONAL TRADITION

When the collegiate careers of Florida State University swimmers and divers are finished, it doesn't necessarily mean they are done in the water. Over the last eight years current and former Seminoles have made a name for themselves on the international scene. Representing 10 different countries, Florida State athletes have competed at the top level of swimming and diving in biggest events on the planet, including the Olympics and World Championships.
