The Kodak All-America Team

It's one of the oldest and smallest teams in college football. It doesn't have a win-loss record. It doesn't set rushing records, and it has never scored a touchdown. Yet, at the end of the 1978 season, the Kodak All-America Team will be the number one team in college football.

What this team will have is the 22 very best players of the season. Twenty-two men who have earned the right to be called All-American. No amount of popularity or publicity can put a player on this team if he doesn't deserve to be there. It is a distinction which is earned with outstanding ability, sportsmanship and leadership. And these players have to prove themselves to the toughest coaches of all, the American Football Coaches Association.

The Kodak All-America Team is

The 1978 Kodak All-Americans

A KODAK SPORTS PROGRAM

the only team which represents the choice of the more than 2,000 college and university coaches who are the American Football Coaches Association. Their standards are exacting, for this is a team that for 89 years has included the greatest names in college football.

The 1978 Kodak All-America Team has yet to be selected. The field is large, for there are more than 12,000 players from which to choose. But when the season ends, a handful of men will have distinguished themselves, and earned the honor of being on the number one team in college football.

KODAK Honors Gridiron All-Americans

Autumn—that time of year when summer memories and golden tans give way to the thrills and pageantry of football. The cohesiveness that has made our country the great land it is can be found every Saturday in stadiums of every size throughout the land as gifted college athletes and enthralled followers combine to create an unrivaled spectacle.

At the University of Pittsburgh, this same aura hangs over Pittsburgh Stadium as the Panthers perform on the gridiron that has brought fame to many sons of yesteryear. The tradition for athletic excellence dates back to 1889 when Yale Coach Walter Camp selected the original All-America football team. The standard for greatness that has been an integral part of college football continues today.

Recall the names of Mike Ditka, Tony Dorsett, Al Romano, Matt Cavanaugh, and Randy Holloway. What do they have in common besides being members of past Pittsburgh aggregations? All were members of Kodak All-America football teams as selected by The American Football Coaches Association.

Eastman Kodak Company is proud to have been associated with the AFCA and the All-America team since 1960. The young men deemed recipients of this most prestigious honor reflect the greatness that is truly the American way.

The standard of greatness that was characteristic of Walter Camp personifies these individuals. Football players, yes, but All-Americans all the way.

What most people don't know about steel could fill a book. Now you can get it free from J&L.

Last year, Americans used over 108 million tons of steel. In cars. In buildings. In appliances. In furniture. And in thousands of other things. And, curiously, most people have no idea where all that steel comes from or how it's made.

Because J&L is one of the nation's largest steel-makers, it's a good bet that many of the things you use contain J&L steel. Because J&L employs over 30,000 people in 27 states, it's also possible that you know somebody who works for J&L. And because so much of the steel we make is in so many of the things you use, we'd like you to know more about steel. Which is why we're offering this booklet. It tells all about steelmaking, steel products, and steelworkers. And it's yours for the asking.

Chancellor

WHEN Dr. Wesley W. Posvar was named Chancellor at the University of Pittsburgh on June 1 of 1967, the University already boasted a treasured academic and athletic tradition.

In his 11 years as Chancellor, Dr. Posvar has perpetuated that history and, more importantly, enhanced it both academically and athletically.

Under his leadership Pitt has reached recent milestones both as an institution of higher learning and as an athletic power. Truly, Pitt stands tall, in both; in the same symbolic manner in which the Cathedral of Learning stands tall against the graceful Oakland skyline.

Dr. Wesley W. Posvar

The University was elected in 1974 to the Association of American Universities (AAU), a select organization of the nation's most respected graduate and research universities. In 1976, the Pitt football team won the National Championship and was ranked 7th in 1977. That's the peaceful co-existence Dr. Posvar had in mind all along. That's the plan he implemented.

A former college athlete who believes in intercollegiate athletics within the framework of the academic structure, Dr. Posvar has earned a reputation as "Pitt's #1 Sports Fan." With his firm administrative backing, athletics at the University have returned to the once fabled heights, but never at the cost of academic compromise.

Dr. Posvar is a very visible administrative figure on campus. He's earned the reputation of being a friend of the student.

history, and was commissioned a second Lieutenant in the U. S. Air Force.

As a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford, he earned M.A.s in philosophy, politics, and economics. At Harvard he earned a Master of Public Administration and a Ph.D. in political science. He was named one of 10 Most Outstanding Young Men by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

In the mid-fifties he served on a strategic planning staff at the Pentagon, and became a permanent tenured professor at the Air Force Academy before coming to Pitt.

While the University has met every challenge to sustain its growth, a growth which has seen the enrollment double, Posvar has accumulated several athletic awards as a "visible figure" in Pitt's athletic scheme. He has been named "Sportsman of the Year" by the Allegheny County Civic Sportsmen Association and he was cited by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame, receiving the Chapter's Contribution to Amateur Athletics Award.

Married, his wife's professional name is Mildred Miller Posvar. Mildred, a mezzo-soprano who performs professionally, is internationally acclaimed as a recording artist, best known for her work as a recitalist.

The Posvars' have three children: Wesley, Jr., Marina and Lisa.

DR. JACK E. FREEMAN, the Vice Chancellor for Planning and Budget, has been with the University of Pittsburgh in various capacities since 1967.

Dr. Freeman was appointed Vice Chancellor on March 1, 1974, but his association with Pitt dates back to 1967, when he was Executive Assistant to the Chancellor until 1971. In 1971, Dr. Freeman was appointed President of the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown and served until his appointment as Vice Chancellor.

His principal responsibility is for the coordination of University-wide academic, financial and support planning, resource allocation, space management, facilities planning, and analytical studies. Dr. Freeman also serves as University liaison to the Pennsylvania Department of Education on matters relating to planning and budget.

Born in Fort Worth, Texas, Dr. Freeman received a BA Cum Laude degree from Baylor in 1954 and an MA in Political Science in 1955.

Also a Major in the United States Air Force, Dr. Freeman served as Assistant Deputy Undersecretary for International Affairs. He was also Assistant Professor in Political Science at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Casimir J. Myslinski

SINCE being named Director of Athletics by Dr. Posvar in 1968, Casimir J. Myslinski has thoroughly and at times spectacularly, restructured the University of Pittsburgh's Athletic Department.

Forceful, yet quiet, Myslinski has sparkled as the administrative man behind the scene, setting the policy and choosing the priorities that have led to the dramatic athletic turnaround. He promised to bring the Pitt athletic teams back to "the heights they deserve" when he was hired and the winning figures say he has fulfilled that pledge. In the process, he has earned the title as the "architect of Pitt's athletic renaissance."

In his first year as director, Pitt teams recorded their best winning percentage in 11 years. Since, Panther squads have recorded nine consecutive winning years. With Myslinski at the helm, the athletic teams have been winning at a .615 percentage, including an overall 174-104-4 mark (.623) this past year.

The winning has been highlighted by four football bowl trips, a national football championship, two basketball tournament teams, and some 28 All-Americans.

Myslinski has also been a leader in implementing a dynamic women's program at the University which continues to be one of the fastest growing and most successful in the nation. In four years, the women have won over 70 per cent of the competition.

One of his first achievements as A.D. was uniting several contributing bodies to the athletic program into one, founding the now thriving Pitt Golden Panthers' Booster Club. The Club raised over $400,000.00, establishing a new school fund raising record this past year.

Myslinski has worked closely with students in resolving ticket allocation problems and in giving them a voice in the athletic program.

Myslinski wants Pitt to be a winner in every way. That's the way he started at Army. He attended West Point in September 1941 in the last pre-World War II Class. Under the stepped-up wartime program he graduated in three years with a B.S. in engineering and pilot wings. Later he earned a Master's in Education from Teachers College, Columbia University.

Myslinski captained the 1943 Army team and earned the Most Valuable Player award that year. He was named to every first-team All-American squad at center and received the Knute Rockne Award as the nation's Outstanding Lineman of 1943.

Following graduation from West Point in 1944, he entered the Air Force. In 1952, he returned to West Point as Deputy Head of the Department of Physical Education and moved from there in 1957 to head the Department of Physical Education at the United States Air Force Academy in Colorado until Dr. Posvar summoned him to Pitt.

Married, his wife's name is Sandy. They have four children: Michael, Dorothy, Linda and Patricia. The Myslinskis are also endeared to two family dogs, Ginger and Echo.

After a Tough Loss

Panthers Set Sights On Making "Comeback"

By Dean Billick
Sports Information Director

THE first words offered in the Pitt locker room after the heartbreaking loss to Notre Dame came from Gordon Jones.

"Forget it, forget it, we'll bounce back," the senior All-America end yelled at his crestfallen teammates as they trooped silently into the room. "We blew it, but it's all behind us now. It'll be the last game we lose this year. Let's get ready to beat Florida State."

Jones' actions caught Head Coach Jackie Sherrill's eyes and ears, and it was exactly the kind of attitude he hoped his team assumed this past week. The Panthers host high-scoring Florida State today, and lamenting over the loss to Notre Dame could spell disaster.

"If we're the team we think we are, we'll come back," Sherrill noted. "We have a good football team and our players have character. They want to win badly; they'll bounce back."

Sherrill, in fact, went one step beyond his players.

"I think our players will bounce back better than we (coaches) will," he said. "I guess the reality of what the game could have meant to us hurts so much. You know, young people bounce back from adversity quicker than older people. The older you get, the harder it is. . . ."

With that said and off his mind, Sherrill quickly flipped on a film of Florida State and his conversation and thoughts turned to the Seminole scoring machine. And, what Pitt would have to do to stop the aerial circus that is sure to hit Pitt Stadium.

One thing is for sure. The Panthers will have to improve their pass coverage. And, fast!

Notre Dame's Joe Montana threw for 218 yards and two touchdowns against Pitt last Saturday, and Sherrill figures his defense will have to make improvements in several areas to have any chance of stopping the Florida State passing attack.

"We're going to have to put more pressure on the quarterback, and we've got to cover the receivers better," Sherrill says. "And, of course, we can help ourselves defensively by controlling the ball more offensively."

Whatever the improvements made this week in practice, they will be put to a severe test today. Florida State has completed 113-205 passes for 1,535 yards and 14 touchdowns so far this year, ranking in the top five in the country in passing offense.

The Seminoles are led at quarterback by Jimmy Jordan (Jr., 6-1, 185) and his backup Wally Woodham (Jr.,

JACKIE SHERRILL: "We'll Bounce Back."

RICK TROCANO: "Ahead of Cavanaugh."

5-11, 189). So far this season Jordan has completed 75-134 passes for 963 yards and 10 TDs, while Woodham has hit on 38-71 for 572 yards and 4 scores. Jordan's top effort came in a losing cause last week to Mississippi State when he connected on 20-43 passes for 297 yards.

Florida State's top receiver is Jackie Flowers, a 6-0, 187-pound wide receiver. All Flowers has done in his last three games is haul in 24 catches for 415 yards and three touchdowns. Overall, he has pulled in 36 passes for 598 yards and five touchdowns.

The second-leading receiver behind Flowers is fullback Mark Lyles, a 6-4, 226-pound junior. Lyles has nabbed 22 passes for 242 yards and 1 TD.

Tailback Homes Johnson (So., 5-9, 186) leads an underrated rushing attack with 495 yards and two TDs on 108 carries.

"Florida State has great skilled people at quarterback and receiver," Sherrill notes. "They certainly have perfected throwing and catching the ball. They're a big-play team that has moved the ball against everybody. They'll be a big test for our defense, no doubt about that."

Although Notre Dame broke a 17-game streak in which the Panther defense had not allowed a touchdown in the first quarter, Pitt has still managed to outscore opponents in the initial stanza, 137-19, during that 17-game span.

Florida State's offensive coordinator, George Haffner, was part of Johnny Majors' staff at Pitt from 1973-75, when he served as Pitt's offensive coordinator.

Florida State has outscored Pitt 56-29 in their three previous meetings.

The Pitt coaches have compared sophomore quarterback Rick Trocano very favorably with former Panther great, Matt Cavanaugh, at similar stages of their careers, but a look at the statistics shows that Trocano is much further along.

Five games into his sophomore season Trocano has run for 188 yards, and has completed 48% of his passes (46-96) for 604 yards. During his whole sophomore campaign Cavanaugh rushed for 110 yards, and completed 46% of his passes (30-65) for 488 yards.

Pitt's Gordon Jones continues his assault on the Panthers' career reception record. Jones needs 11 more grabs to break Steve Moyer's Pitt record of 117 career receptions (1969-71). Jones has also caught at least one pass in his last 20 consecutive games.

Despite the pre-season optimism surrounding the defense and the question marks concerning the offense, a comparison of 1977 and 1978 statistics after five games shows the Panther offense being more proficient this year and the Panther defense being a bit more porous.

Pitt's Head Football Coach Jackie Sherrill

ONLY 34 years of age, Jackie Sherrill has not led a dull life—particularly the half of those years that have been devoted to football.

His football career has been stunning.

Briefly, consider it.

First, Sherrill was an All-State performer and honorable mention All-America at Biloxi High School in Mississippi. His picture hangs in the school's Hall of Fame. Then after enrolling at Alabama, he played seven positions for the famed "Bear" Bryant, was a three-year starter and a member of a team which won National Championships in 1964 and 1965. Two of his teammates there were Joe Namath and Ken Stabler.

With the Gator Bowl last year, Sherrill has been involved in ten Bowls as a player and coach.

Amazing you say? You haven't heard the best, yet.

Sherrill has risen to prominence as a head coach after having served under three legendary head coaches as an assistant—Bryant, Frank Broyles and Johnny Majors. Those are not just coaching names, but three of the big ones in the college coaching profession.

Following his Alabama graduation, Sherrill served one year as graduate assistant and worked with the freshmen and the varsity linebackers under Bryant. He then moved with Broyles to Arkansas in 1967 and worked with the defense and with the secondary in 1968. He joined Majors at Iowa State in the 1968 off-season and two years later was promoted to Assistant Head Coach and Defensive Coordinator. He followed Majors to Pitt in 1973 as an Assistant Head Coach and Defensive Coordinator.

At Washington State two seasons ago Sherrill did much to re-establish a floundering program in the tough Pacific Eight Conference.

And, of course, there was last year.

Sherrill was asked to fill the shoes of a legend at Pitt. The Panthers had won the National Championship, graduated the Heisman Trophy winner and lost Majors, who decided to return to his alma mater to coach.

Majors did the impossible at Pitt, taking the program, with Sherrill's help, and in four years turning it from 1-10 mark to a 12-0 and the championship. The program was just beginning to flower and it begged for a strong figure to take it under his wing and sustain it.

And if that weren't pressure enough, the opener was against pre-season national champion favorite Notre Dame, on national television.

Sherrill, not one to shy away from things, met the challenge, face-to-face, fought it, lost his star player for four games, and won on nearly all counts.

Personally, however, the whole ordeal was a lot tougher. Sherrill knew his team would be compared to the '76 Championship squad and he knew that his decisions would come under skeptical eyes.

In retrospect, the '77 team didn't win the National Championship, but it did finish 7th on the UPI poll and 8th on the AP poll. Despite all the pressure, the program had been sustained and there is no question now that Sherrill is the leader of that program.

Beaming with pride, Sherrill was asked what it was really like.

"Well," he said after Spring practice, "if anyone wants to know what it's like to follow a legend, send them to me. I can tell them. I've been through it."

As you can see, Sherrill isn't the type to shy away from tough questions either.

"It wasn't an easy year for me," he continued. "There was a lot of pressure, what with Majors leaving and following a national championship. The Gator Bowl win took a lot of the pressure off.

"We had great performances from our seniors last year, but we did travel 24 freshmen to the Gator Bowl and started five of them. Though we didn't achieve the ultimate, the whole thing was pleasing to me."

The 1978 football season will offer a new challenge. What it will bring remains to be seen. But if Sherrill's resume and the 1977 season can be used as a measuring stick, it won't be dull.

1978 HOMECOMING

A Homecoming Message to Students, Alumni, and Friends of the University of Pittsburgh.

The 1978 Homecoming Committee of the General Alumni Association and I extend a hearty welcome to all alumni and friends of Pitt.

Our theme "Still the One" symbolizes the efforts of the University of Pittsburgh to reach greater heights in academic and athletic excellence. So we, the alumni, must renew our pride in Pitt and the support of its programs.

Make this homecoming a time to reflect upon the past: its struggles, joys, and foremost the opportunity to attain the successes we enjoy today. We hope this day will be spent renewing old friendships, remembering old times, visiting sororities and fraternities, and looking ahead with a firm dedication of building an even better University.

The Homecoming Committee wishes you a sincere "Welcome Home" and proudly say Hail to Pitt.

The Pitt Coaching Staff

Jimmy Johnson

*Assistant Head Coach and Defensive Coordinator
Arkansas 1964*

Jimmy Johnson is considered one of the best defensive coaches in the college game and Jackie Sherrill was quite happy to bring him to Pitt.

"I got the same feeling in bringing Jimmy to Pitt that I get when I sign a great prospective recruit," Sherrill said in announcing the hiring of Johnson in December of '77. "I feel very fortunate to have him on our staff. He is very intelligent with game strategy and that reflects on his outstanding coaching record. He has earned the reputation as one of the better defensive coaches in the country."

Johnson is the assistant head coach, defensive coordinator, and will assist coach Pat Jones with the defensive line.

The 33-year-old Johnson came to Pitt from Arkansas, where he was the defensive line coach since 1973. Johnson coached at Iowa State in 1968 and 1969 with Sherrill under Johnny Majors. He coached Oklahoma's defensive line for three seasons, from 1970 to 1972.

Johnson was an All-Southwestern Conference middle guard at Arkansas (62-64), where he captained the 1964 National Championship Team. He was also elected to the Arkansas All-Decade team.

A Port Arthur, Texas, native, Johnson is married to the former Linda Kay Cooper of Marked Tree, Arkansas, and is the father of two sons, Brent (14) and Chad (12).

Among the All-Americans Johnson coached are Leroy, Dewey, and Lucious Selmon, "Sugar Bear" Hamilton, Randy Holloway and Hugh Green.

Don Boyce

*Offensive Coordinator,
Offensive Line
Texas at El Paso 1964*

Don Boyce is one of the main reasons Sherrill considers his staff one of the finer young staffs in the country.

"Don Boyce has a solid background in the running game," Sherrill said. "He's produced a lot of All-Americans and All-Conference players in his coaching days and is generally regarded as one of the finest offensive line coaches in the country. I have all the faith in him as my offensive coordinator too."

A Midland High School graduate (Midland, Texas), where he earned three football, three track and two basketball letters, Boyce attended the University of Texas at El Paso, where he was a three year letterman and led the team in rushing for two years. He also earned a B.A. and a Master's Degree in education there.

Don began his coaching career at Oklahoma in 1968, where he coached the offensive line through the 1971 season. The Sooners had great offensive lines those years, including All-Americans Tom Brahaney (1970) and Bob Kalsu (1968). He then moved to Southern Methodist, where he coached the offensive line in 1972 and line-backers in 1973. Oklahoma State was his next stop for two years, where he coached the offensive line and served as offensive coordinator. He moved to Arkansas for the 1975 and 1976 seasons to coach the offensive line be-

by Orville Henry, Arkansas GAZETTE

It came to this in a Southwest Conference football game last season:

With the Orange Bowl's head honchos in the stands, the Arkansas Razorbacks reached a fourth-and-a-short-two at the Texas Aggies' 18-yard line with the score tied 20-20 and eight minutes left.

You kick, right?

Sure you do, with Steve Little on your bench. Little was enroute to two new NCAA Division I records—53 career field goals and 280 points by kick scoring.

FIELD GOAL

No you don't, said Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz. You go for it.

Because, he noted, Texas A&M had Tony Franklin on its bench.

"We came to win, not tie," Holtz explained it. "With that much time left, all they have to do is get close to midfield and they're within Franklin's range."

Sure enough, after Arkansas failed at the 18, A&M reached its 49 and Franklin almost made a 67-yarder that soared high and dropped just a few feet in front of the posts. Arkansas then came back and hit a 58-yard bomb at 1:41 to win, 26-20. The deep pass opened up, Holtz believes, because A&M was playing virtually a goal-line defense to prevent the Hogs from making the one more first down that would put them within Little's range, which was also from midfield in.

This type of siege gun kicking war may be over. In January, the NCAA Rules Committee decreed that field goals attempted from beyond the 20-yard line, if missed or not returned, will be returned to the line of scrimmage, and not the 20.

So only a foolish coach would risk a field goal try that might give the foe instant field position. Maybe.

It is over for Little. His eligibility is gone.

But Tony Franklin and Russell Erxleben of Texas return and they will not go quietly. When they meet again (and Erxleben missed the last A&M-Texas game because of a pulled hamstring), pyrotechnics are possible and likely.

It was like this when Little and Erxleben met in an October confrontation of two of the nation's finest defensive teams. With a 20-mph wind blowing, Texas got field position twice in the first period and Erxleben hit two field goals and Arkansas got field position twice in the second period and Little hit two field goals. Of course, the Arkansas field position for the second one was the 50-yard line. Little hit a 67-yarder that tied Erxleben's NCAA-record kick against Rice two games previously. Little hit one against the wind in the third period and Erxleben missed one (and also had one blocked). But Texas scored a touchdown at the end to win, 13-9, and spoil Arkansas' kicks.

That game had a great deal to do with the Rules Committee's decision to de-emphasize mountainous three-pointers. Both Franklin and Erxleben charged discrimination. NCAA statistics tend to bear them out.

There hasn't been a national trend toward routine kicking of 50 and 60-yards, although one may have been in the making.

It was just that coaches have been Soccer-style kicking, or "sidewinding" as it is sometimes called, has helped contribute to the increasing number and length of field goals.

turning to real athletes as placekickers, and they're getting darned good. As for Little, Franklin, and Erxleben, they became all-time greats.

Knowledgeable observers discounted whatever advantages they had from kicking always on AstroTurf and frequently with the wind.

Here are the comparisons: Of 2,424 field goals made by major college kickers the last two years, only 134 covered 50 yards or more. That's 5.5 percent. And 22.4 percent of those were made by just two percent of the kickers, the Big Three—Little, Franklin, and Erxleben.

Over 1976-77, the Big Three made 23 of 50 from 50-59 yards and the rest of the Division One kickers made 102 of 645. The Big Three made 7 of 19 from 60-69 yards; the rest of Division One, only 2 of 45.

The real decisions for the coaches will come when the ball is between the 30 (calling for a 47-yard field goal) and the 40 (a 57-yarder). The decision may not be hard for A&M's Bellard. Franklin's accuracy record from 50-59 yards for three years is 10 for 17, 59 percent. The rest of the country, other than the Big Three, hit 17 percent from that zone.

The kickers have come a long way. As a two-way player at Kansas, Don Fambrough wondered for a while why he always got an extra twist at the bottom of the pile. He was also the KU kicker.

Pat Summerall, the TV sportscaster, first gained fame for kicking a field goal that enabled Arkansas to beat Texas, 16-13, in 1951. "I was a two-way end," he recalls. "Sometimes I kicked off. And I don't know why they asked me to kick that field goal. The ball was on the three, and it was like an extra point, and I wasn't even the extra-point

Howard Jones may have been the biggest bargain in collegiate football history. And the man who gave the University of Southern California this bargain was none other than Knute Rockne.

"The Rock," Notre Dame's immortal head coach, had just turned down an offer (reported to be $100,000 a year) to lead the Trojans in 1925. But he suggested that USC officials look to Duke and its young head coach.

West Coast football in general, and USC football in particular, haven't been the same since.

Howard Harding Jones became an institution at USC. He compiled a 121-36-13 record in his 16-year career, stopped only by his unexpected death in 1941. He won three national championships (1928, 1931, and 1932), recorded three unbeaten seasons (1928, 1932, and 1939) and took the Trojans to eight Pacific Coast Conference championships.

At the Rose Bowl, his record was perfect. Five Trojan squads (1929, 1931, 1932, 1938, and 1939) went to the Pasadena Classic. Five Trojan squads came home victorious.

Southern California became a national football power under Jones and the nation awoke to the fact that some of the nation's finest gridiron talent was west of the Mississippi.

Two of college football's hottest rivalries got their start under Jones. In 1929, USC first stepped on the field with a new school that had grown up in the west part of Los Angeles. That game ended with USC on top of UCLA 79-0, but the seeds were sown for the most intense intercity rivalry in the land. That rivalry continued in 1978 with a last-second 29-27 USC victory.

The other came as another result of Rockne. He remembered Jones as the young coach who led Iowa to a 10-7 upset over the Irish in 1921. He said then, "All I ask is a chance for a rematch." Jones said he would and when he went to University Park, the most celebrated intersectional rivalry in the history of college football was begun—USC versus Notre Dame.

But, if Jones' football record is remarkable, so is the impression that he left on the players he coached.

"Outside of my father, I guess he was the most impressive man I've ever known," says Nick Pappas, a Trojan tailback from 1935-37. "The guy would ask me to go through a wall and I would say 'Which one?' That's just how dedicated I was to him."

Pappas, now an associate athletic director at USC, remembered that Jones held total control over his practices and that those workouts started the minute he stepped onto the field.

"He had amazing presence," says Pappas. You just knew when he was there—even without turning around! He'd cross onto the field and you knew it was time to quit fooling around.

"And he did all the coaching on the field. He had very few assistants."

Ray George, who played tackle for Jones from 1936-38, is still remembered as one of the all-time great Trojan linemen. Jones' picture hangs beside his desk at Heritage Hall (Ray is an assistant athletic director for USC) and the memories of the "Head Man" are still vivid.

"Coach Jones wasn't the type of guy who got real excited or would pat you on the bottom when you came off the field," says George. "But he had that look in his eye and just a glance would tell you whether or not you'd done well."

To Howard Jones, football meant power. While at USC, he constructed some of the most powerful offenses that college football had to offer. He was constantly refining the single wing and developed some of the most advanced blocking techniques of the era.

"Football to me is power—massed power, functioning smoothly, driving relentlessly forward," Jones said. "The biggest thrill in football is the long run. A hole smashed open, a dart through the line, a block by an interferer, a side-step, a straight-arm and a matching of skill, courage, and wits between a ballcarrier and his pursuer. Now, that's fundamental football."

His fundamental approach to football was immediately successful. His first squad (1925) finished second in the nation in scoring with 456 points on their way to an 11-2 mark. They were led by Mort Kaer, who tallied 19 touchdowns

ABOUT THE AUTHOR—Orville Henry joined the Arkansas Gazette sports staff the day he finished high school and has been sports editor since 1943. He has chronicled closely and at length the fortunes of the Arkansas Razorbacks and has co-authored a book about them. He is a graduate (1944) of the University of Arkansas at Little Rock.

Long-range field goal attempts became another type of "bomb", along with the long pass. Now, the NCAA rules committee may have changed that.

kicker."

Little played quarterback, safety, and did ALL the kicking for a state champion Shawnee Mission HS team in Kansas City. At Arkansas, he could have played both ways but Frank Broyles denied him all contact unless, rarely, he had to stop a kickoff return. (Of Little's 72 kickoffs in 1978, only seven were returned.) "If I'd let him get hurt doing anything but kicking, I would have been fired," said Broyles.

They feel the same way about Erxleben at Texas. Russell stands 6-4 and weighs 218 and quarterbacked and pitched for his high school teams. Texas needed a quarterback when he arrived, and Russell was upset for a while that he wasn't allowed to try out. Now he's content to be a big, big kicker. He kicks conventionally, with his toe tied up for placekicks. And he is also in the class with Ray Guy, formerly of Southern Mississippi, and Little of Arkansas as an all-purpose kicker. With a year to go, Erxleben has an NCAA record of 25 FGs from at least 40 yards and he's averaging 44.6 yards as a career punter, third on the all-time list.

Franklin, 5-9 and 175, played scatback and wide receiver at Fort Worth, hotbed of kickers, and happened onto his part-soccer, part-conventional style as a 10th grader. The unconventional part is that he kicks barefooted. Tony was supposed to have been soaking his foot on the sidelines when his high school coach suddenly called for a field goal attempt. Rather than risk a delay penalty, Tony gave it the barefooted shot. No coach since has let him try it with a shoe, although Tony often practices with his foot dressed.

The top returnee is field goals-per-game is Paul Rogind of Minnesota, who was trained by his father Hans, an immigrant from Germany in the late 1940s, in Danish sports like badminton and soccer. Paul excelled, but to his father's initial regret, turned out to like football best, including the contact. Rogind plays second team in the Gophers' secondary but delights his father now by hitting 18 of 26 field goal attempts (last year).

At Oklahoma, Uwe Von Schamann is known as Von Foot, and he's also an all-round athlete, all-purpose kicker from the Fort Worth area, after a start in Germany.

And Penn State has another of its college football, pro soccer Bahrs. Chris was rookie of the year in the North American Soccer League, returned to Penn State as a star placekicker, and is now with the Cincinnati Bengals. Matt Bahr set a school record for points by kicking (81) last year, often playing collegiate soccer on Friday nights. He returns this Fall from a season with the Colorado Caribou (NASL) to try to top his own Penn State mark.

The Bahrs do not punt, perhaps because Joe Paterno hasn't lacked for punters as specialists.

Of course, until recently, veteran college coaches held the belief that place-kicking and punting are apples and oranges, not to be mixed.

Broyles wouldn't let Little punt at Arkansas until Steve's junior year. For one thing, he had a 44-yard punter in Tommy Cheyne. Broyles was convinced to let Little double up only after his kicking coach explained to him why place-kicking plus punting are not apples and oranges for a soccer-style kicker: the toe stays locked down in both motions.

Erxleben defies this: the Texas boomer keeps his toe down while punting but ties it up high for straight-ahead place-kicking.

What it all amounts to is this: Sammy Baugh was an all-time great at TCU and so was Bob Waterfield at UCLA. They ran, passed, and kicked, and they played defense. They continued to do all of this (except maybe play defense) when they became pros. Each starred as an NFL kicker.

Kicking is so important nowadays, a college coach might let a Baugh or a Waterfield do nothing else. Don't laugh; it is happening.

In college football, a fan is apt to see a superb athlete doing a superb job of kicking in any stadium, any and every Saturday.

IS THERE STILL A PLACE FOR A POWER FULLBACK IN COLLEGE FOOTBALL?

by Paul Hornung, Columbus DISPATCH

Truckhorse ... piledriver ... tank ... bulldozer ...

All of those action adjectives have become clichés in describing fullbacks—conjuring up the image of a big, muscular, but cumbersome brute who accepts the football with a swaggering "interference, follow me."

But, if the fullback is still football's power runner, the stereotype no longer fits. As one heralded Midwest coach famous for his off-tackle attack sees it:

"The day of the ponderous pachyderm is past. He can't quite do it. He winds up as a guard or tackle."

The change really dates from 1940, when Clark Shaughnessy equipped a 1-7-1 Stanford team with the modern T-formation and swept unbeaten to the Rose Bowl championship.

That same fall, the Chicago Bears, for whom Shaughnessy served as a consultant, used the same formation to destroy the Washington Redskins 73-0 in the National Football League championship playoff.

Football being a trendy game and coaches being natural pragmatists, virtually all teams soon switched to the modern T.

"When we got away from the single wing," recalls one coach who experienced the transition, "we put the quarterback under center and that gave you one less blocker. In many cases, that does not allow you double team blocking at the point of attack. That puts a premium on the ball carrier's ability to cut.

"Also, when you block one-on-one, you never can tell the blocker which way to take the defender. You take him the way he wants to go. This puts further premium on the ball carrier's agility."

Shaughnessy's 1940 model T has undergone almost as much change as Henry's Detroit original—from the split-T Don Faurot of Missouri introduced in 1941 to the most prevalent current modifications, the I formation, the veer, the wishbone, the pro set, etc.

Generalization is difficult because not all coaches require the same things of, or look for the same things in, fullbacks, even in the same basic formation. Also, available talent—the particular ability of the player—has something to do with the offensive duties.

But one common thread distinguishing the fullback of the '70s is great versatility, and hence more direct contribution to advancement of the ball.

"Most of us are reluctant to make the fullback just a lead blocker," suggests the East's most successful coach, even admitting "we have played a lot of double wing when we have had two really great fullbacks, because we wanted to get more out of both."

One Southern coaching legend, who's been through the whole cycle and now employs the wishbone, notes, "In some formations, the fullback is the blocking back. In our formation, he has less blocking to do—unless he looks people up."

The fullback needs to be an exceptional athlete, adds another wishbone coach. "He has to have the ability to get to the line of scrimmage in a hurry and to carry people with him when he has the ball. He also has to be a good buckner and a good faker. He's got to make the defense believe he has the ball on every play."

An "I" coach insists the basic requirements for a fullback haven't changed that drastically. "He's still got to be your power runner," he says, "and a great blocker. A big, strong fullback is still important. He has to be that inside runner."

But the coach agrees, "the fullback also has to be able to sweep."

Still another coach adds to the list of requirements. "I've seen a lot of formations," he points out, "where the fullback was the leading pass receiver, or the second-leading pass receiver."

The role of the fullback is changing, as new formations place more emphasis on speed and outside running.

Obviously, the modern fullback must fill a more varied role, regardless of the offensive formation. Maybe that's why one famous coach says only half in jest: "For my fullback, I look for a guy who's 6-2, 240, does the 40 in 4.5, catches the ball, blocks like mad, and runs like Franco Harris."

He's still looking, but it isn't as exaggerated as it sounds. The number of young athletes who blend size and strength with speed and agility has never been greater.

It only makes good sense to take advantage of their special capabilities. It also makes for more interesting college football.

"Most of us have tried to get better balanced offenses," says a coach, "and not be quite so tailback-oriented as we used to be, by getting the fullback more involved."

It's significant that some offenses list two running backs, rather than the standard tailback/halfback and fullback designations, and that in recent years the two leading Big Ten coaches have often interchanged tailbacks and fullbacks in their basic I formation attacks.

The ground-hugging, battering-ram type of fullbacking hasn't disappeared, particularly in goal line and short-yardage situations. But the more upright style introduced by Jimmy Brown at Syracuse and epitomized by last year's Heisman Trophy winner, Earl Campbell of Texas, has undoubtedly been a part of the fullback's broadened operation.

The first football alignment in general use is said to have been the T formation, now called "regular formation" to distinguish it from its dressed-up modern descendant. Amos Alonzo Stagg coached it as far back as 1894.

In that primitive football, the four backs were aligned in a loose T and from their positioning came today's designations:

One player (the quarterback) was a quarter as far back from the line as the fullback. Two players (the halfbacks) were stationed parallel, 7-8 yards apart, and half as far back as the fullback.

Fullbacks have always had an important role in offense, from the time they took a direct pass from center and handed to the quarterback, or kept; through the spinner series, where the fullback dealt the ball to the halfbacks, or kept; through the buck-lateral series and the spread formation in which the fullback acted much like an option quarterback.

But this is the age when the deep back has also become the full-use-back. They're doing more and enjoying it more—as are coaches and followers of their teams.

himself—tops in the country.

Players such as Kaer, Morley Drury, Brice Taylor (USC's first All-American), Russ Saunders, and Francis Tappaan ran Jones' single wing offense effectively, propelling the Trojans to a 27-5-1 mark in their first three seasons.

Then, in 1928, the Trojans struck football's paydirt—USC's first national championship.

Three opponents fell quickly before the Trojans were tied, 0-0, by California in a mudbath at Berkeley. That set the stage for one of USC's most dramatic victories.

Stanford's Pop Warner had one of his most powerful teams, a group known as "the Red Horde." The Red Horde and Warner's mastery over Jones' teams in earlier years made the Trojans big underdogs.

Jones, however, had a plan, and he drilled his Trojans to execute a "quick mix" defense, designed to strip the Stanford running backs of their interference. USC's tacklers were able to stop Warner's charges and made headlines with a 10-0 win. A 27-14 win over Notre Dame (Jones' only USC win over Rockne) followed, and USC had its first (of seven) national titles.

USC looked strong before the beginning of 1931. Erny Pinckert and Gus Shaver were joined by a talented sophomore back, Orv Mohler, and the Trojans were a solid choice to win the West with a host of regulars back.

But lowly St. Mary's College upset Troy in the season's opener, 13-7. In building a 6-1 record, USC struggled by California (6-0) and Stanford (19-0) before playing in one of the most memorable college football games of that era—the 1931 USC-Notre Dame clash.

The Irish were ignited by the memory of Knute Rockne, who had been killed in a plane crash. Now playing for Hunk Anderson, they had won nine straight and had run off a 26-game unbeaten streak.

Before a frenzied crowd of 55,000 at South Bend, Notre Dame shot to a 14-0 lead and carried that margin into the fourth quarter. But in that final period, the Trojans' single wing began to click. Mohler, the quarterback, was executing Jones' game plan perfectly while Shaver, a hard-running halfback, slashed for steady gains.

Shaver scored from the one, but guard Johnny Baker missed the extra point and it was 14-6.

The Trojans got new life moments later when a pass interference penalty put the ball at the Notre Dame 24. USC drove to the Irish nine, where Shaver took a pitchout from Mohler to score. This time Baker converted and the margin was one, 14-13.

Jones-coached USC teams rolled to three national titles, and won five of five in the Rose Bowl.

USC took the ball on its 27-yard line with about four minutes remaining. Although Jones's offense wasn't known for its passing, Shaver proved he could throw. He rifled a long pass to end Ray Sparling, who made a diving catch at the Notre Dame 40. A few players later, Shaver hit Bob Hall for a first down at the Irish 18.

An offside penalty moved the ball five yards closer and Jones called for another kicker to kick a field goal—but Mohler waived him off! Choosing to call the play himself, Mohler lined up Baker (who had almost quit the team in a dispute with Jones on the trip to South Bend) on the Notre Dame 23. Baker's kick was perfect and USC had one of its greatest wins over the Irish, 16-14.

While Jones uncharacteristically hugged every player in sight, he asked Notre Dame officials where Rockne's grave was and led the team there for a memorial service.

The Trojans were named national champs in 1931. They continued their winning streak to 25 games (still a school record) on their way to winning their second straight national crown in 1932.

The talent that Jones had enjoyed began to run out on him as he suffered several lean years in the mid-1930s. Cries that his single wing system was outmoded began to be heard.

"The people who said Coach Jones was over the hill just didn't know football," says Pappas. "He had such a brilliant mind he could adapt to anything. He was the first to stop Clark Shaughnessy's 'T' formation and he always made the most of the talent that he had."

In 1938, Jones (who had settled some personal crises) brought the Trojans back. USC rolled along, losing only to Alabama and Washington, before facing UCLA and its All-American, Kenny Washington, in a Rose Bowl showdown.

"Jones knew that if we could stop Washington, we'd win," said George. "After their first touchdown, we just stuck it to 'em."

The Trojans spotted the Bruins that one score before demolishing UCLA 42-7. That set up USC's famous Rose Bowl battle with undefeated, untied, and unscored upon Duke.

The two teams battled for three-and-a-half quarters with Duke taking a 3-0 lead. USC struggled to put the ball on the Duke 39-yard line with two minutes remaining before Jones made one of the biggest coaching decisions of his career. He put in fourth-string quarterback Doyle Nave.

Nave, who had only 35 minutes of playing time before the Rose Bowl, hit four straight passes to Al Krueger. The last one came with 50 seconds left as Krueger made a spectacular catch in the left corner of the end zone for the 7-3 victory.

Jones and the Trojans went unbeaten (9-0-2) in 1939 and took a 14-0 victory over Tennessee in the Rose Bowl.

USC was down in 1940 (3-4-2) but hopes were high for the future. However, Jones suffered a massive heart attack and died in the Summer of 1941.

He left behind more than a string of football records. A quiet man, he was dedicated to perfection, and the level of football excellence that remains at USC today is directly related to the man who was the biggest bargain in collegiate football history.

HIDDEN WORDS QUIZ

The object is to find the hidden words in the "word search", but first you have to figure out what the words are. If you're stumped, the answers to the crossword part of this are at the bottom of the page. By the way, there are four extra football words hidden among all those innocuous letters. Answer to the word search elsewhere in this program.

Nikon FM with optional motor drive

Nikon FE Automatic

If it's action you're after, Nikon has a choice of compacts for you.

You see them in action at every major sports and news event—the professionals with their motor-driven Nikon cameras. They know they can rely on Nikon to get the picture, every time.

You can, too, with a Nikon "compact." The moderately priced semi-automatic Nikon FM or the fully automatic Nikon FE. Both are a lot smaller and lighter than the pros' cameras but engineered with the same Nikon precision. And, they handle with a speed and ease any pro could envy.

Each has a built-in electronic meter system that gives you superb exposures with professional accuracy. With the FM, it's done in one quick, simple step; a bright 5-stage LED light signal in the viewfinder makes it virtually foolproof. With the FE, the meter does it automatically, and a quick-responding needle indicator keeps you informed about exposure. You simply aim, focus and shoot.

Add the low-cost motor drive to either camera and feel the excitement of true high-performance photography at up to 3.5 shots a second. Get close to the action with a Nikkor telephoto lens, or take in more of the field with a Nikkor wide angle (the same magnificently sharp lenses the pros swear by).

There's no end to the great photography you can do with a Nikon compact. It begins with your visit to your Nikon dealer (he's listed in the Yellow Pages). Ask him also about the traveling Nikon School. Or write to Nikon Inc., Dept. N-4, Garden City, New York 11530. ## The New Chevrolet.

The 1979 Caprice Classic.

America has driven it to the top.

In just two short years over a million people have bought and enjoyed The New Chevrolet Caprice and Impala. Pretty darn impressive.

Of course, one reason for the success of The New Chevrolet is that it's simply a very beautiful car. And we suggest the '79 version is even more beautiful.

But then we know it takes more than beauty to become the most popular car in America. It takes roominess. It takes some very impressive standard features. It takes a smooth, comfortable ride. And more.

The New Chevrolet for 1979. Pleasing to the eye. Pleasing in lots of other ways, too.

It's no wonder America's driven it to the top. See your Chevrolet dealer.

You're invited to visit the Chevrolet "Locker Room" exhibit at the National Football Foundation's new College Football Hall of Fame at King's Island (25 miles north of Cincinnati). This unique museum lets you participate in the fascinating history of college football. Don't miss it.

Game Notes: This series is a young one, dating back to 1971 ... FSU holds a slight 2-1 edge ... Pitt last won, 9-6, in 1974 ... FSU last won in 1972, 19-7 ... head coach Bobby Bowden has turned the sagging FSU program around the last two years since assuming the coaching reins after leaving West Virginia ... Bowden was 5-6 in '76 and 10-2 last year, including a stunning 40-17 win over Texas Tech in the Tangerine Bowl ... that 10 win plateau last year was the most wins ever recorded by a major college football team in the state of Florida ... the Seminoles also beat Florida, 37-9 last year for the first time in a decade ... at season's end, the Seminoles were ranked 11th by UPI and 14th by AP ... Bowden's .587 percentage ranks him among the top ten active major college coaches ... the Seminoles have an interesting QB dilemma: Jimmy Jordan and Wally Woodham were HS teammates, with Jordan breaking all of Woodham's records before joining him at FSU ... their career there has been a continual flip-flop in the starting slot ... they have reversed starting roles no less than four times and are both listed as starters going into the season ... FSU offensive coordinator George Haffner was part of Johnny Majors' staff at Pitt from 1973-75 ... this game ought to feature two of the country's top defensive ends in Pitt's Hugh Green and FSU's Willie Jones ... Francis Bonasorte, brother of Pitt former player Chuck "Kamikaze Kid" Bonasorte is a DB at FSU ... like Chuck, Francis attended Bishop Boyle High School in Homestead ... actor Burt Reynolds, a former FSU player is a big Florida State fan these days ... he recently sent Bowden an autographed photo saying, "Thanks for accepting the challenge, you are the one".

fore coming to Pitt. Under his tutorage in 1975, R. C. Theilemann won All-America honors.

Last year Boyce engineered the move that made Tom Brzoza an All-America center. He molded a highly questionable offensive line into a very productive squad by the Gator Bowl.

Married, his wife Peggy, worked with a real estate firm and raised poodles while at Arkansas. The Boyces have a son, Jason, who is six years old.

Serafino "Foge" Fazio
Linebackers
Pitt 1960

"Foge" Fazio came back home last year. A 1960 graduate of Pitt, Fazio was the defensive coordinator at Pitt from 1969-72. He left Pitt to assume a similar position at the University of Cincinnati, where the 1976 Bearcats were ranked fifth in scoring defense, ninth in rushing defense, and eleventh in total defense.

Fazio coached the linebackers at Pitt last season.

"Aside from being a fine coach, Foge brought back a lot of things with him when he rejoined the Pitt staff," says Jackie Sherrill. "He brought back people he knew and played with him in the past and that has meant a lot to us. He is also an excellent recruiter."

A native of Diamont, W. Va., Fazio was an All-WPIAL center and linebacker at Coraopolis High School. Moving to Pitt, he was the Panther's starting center in 1958 and 1959, winning the MVP Award his senior year in addition to being named to the All-East squad and honorable mention All-American. He also was chosen to play in the North-South Game and the All-American Bowl.

A fifth-round draft choice of the Boston Patriots, he decided on coaching instead of playing and started his career as an assistant coach at Coraopolis High in 1962. He left Coraopolis for two years to take the job as defensive coordinator at Ambridge High School (PA), but returned in 1965 as head coach. In two years at his alma mater his teams compiled a 13-4-1 record while winning the Ohio Valley Conference championship.

In 1967 Fazio moved to the college coaching ranks as offensive line coach and head freshman coach at Boston University. His Boston frosh were 5-1.

In 1968 Fazio was the defensive line coach at Harvard, a team that tied for the Ivy League Championship with an 8-0-1 mark. He came to Pitt in 1969 and was the defensive coordinator that season.

Married, he and his wife, Norma, have two children — Kristen, 10 and Vincent, 7.

Larry Holton
Defensive Backs
Iowa State 1970

Head Coach Jackie Sherrill was pleased with the job Larry Holton did on the Pitt staff last year, coaching the defensive backs.

"The way he handled his coaching responsibility has shown me that he has matured into an outstanding young coach," observed Sherrill. "He has great rapport with the players."

All Holton did was take a position (defensive end) that was supposed to be a question mark for the Panthers and transform it into an integral part of the championship season in 1976 and maintaining the continuity in the defensive backfield last year.

Larry began his football career at Keokuk (Iowa) High School where he was an All-State tailback for two years and a High School All-America. He won 12 letters in football, basketball, and track.

He entered Iowa State in 1965 and was a three-year starter for the Cyclones as a defensive halfback.

Following graduation from Iowa State in 1970, Larry began his coaching career as a graduate assistant under Majors for two years. In 1972 he was named an assistant defensive backfield coach at Florida State, and a year later he joined the Pitt staff as a defensive assistant.

Larry is highly respected by the Pitt players. He communicates well with them, according to Coach Sherrill, and "can develop that rapport with all the players that a football program needs to be successful."

Larry is single and resides in Frick Park. In his spare time, he enjoys dancing and travel.

Pat Jones
Defensive Front
University of Arkansas 1969

With the hiring of Pat Jones, Jackie Sherrill was able to lure one of the top young assistant coaches in the Southwest Conference to Pitt, and continue his building of the Panther staff into one of the finer young staffs in the country.

An Arkansas graduate, Jones played noseguard and linebacker for the Razorbacks in 1966 after a distinguished high school career at Little Rock Hall High School where he was all-state on a state championship team.

In 1969 Jones started his coaching career, guiding Forest Heights Junior High School in Little Rock, Arkansas, to an undefeated season and a city championship. From 1970 to 1973 he was the defensive coordinator for Little Rock Hall High School while the team compiled a 34-7 record and won state championships in 1970 and 1971. Jones moved on to the University of Arkansas in 1974 as a graduate assistant and was the assistant defensive line coach for the Razorbacks in 1975 when the team won the Southwest Conference and beat Georgia in the Cotton Bowl. Before coming to Pitt last February he was the defensive line coach at SMU during the 1976 and 1977 seasons.

"Pat Jones has built an excellent reputation and background as a coach and recruiter while at Arkansas and SMU," said Sherrill. "He comes highly recommended by both Coach Johnson and Coach Boyce and I'm sure our defensive ends will be in capable hands."

Born November 4, 1947, in Memphis, Tennessee, Jones is single. He holds a B.S. in Physical Education.

Joe Moore
Offensive Backs
Penn State 1958

Joe Moore, one of Western Pennsylvania's most successful High School coaches in recent years, was named assistant coach at Pitt by Panther head coach Jackie Sherrill in December of 1976.

Moore, who in 17 years as a head high school coach compiled a remarkable record of 119-32-4, serves as offensive backfield coach.

A pleased Sherrill explained his thinking in reaching into the high school ranks to find Moore in 1976.

"I felt the years I've been associated with it, Western Pennsylvania football has been excellent," Sherrill said. "We want Western Pennsylvania football and Pitt football to continue to grow together. Joe can help us attain that goal."

"Joe has done an excellent job at Pitt from day one, especially in the Pennsylvania recruiting. He has excellent rapport with the running backs and does an excellent job coaching them."

Moore is a 1951 graduate of Schenley High School in Pittsburgh and graduated from Penn State in 1958, where he played halfback for Rip Engle and Joe Paterno. He began his coaching career at Richfield High School in New York in 1959 and two years later moved to Tomanda High School in Pennsylvania. Then he moved to McDonell High in Erie, Pennsylvania where he registered a 66-19-1 record in nine years. In addition, his teams were conference champs there four of his last five years.

From 1972-75, Moore coached at Upper St. Clair High School in Pittsburgh and his 1974-75 team was 10-0-1 and Co-Champions of the WPIAL.

Moore is 44 and has a Masters in Counseling from Gannon College in Pennsylvania.

Married, his wife's name is Frances. He has three boys: Joe, John, and James. He lives in the Mt. Lebanon suburb of Pittsburgh.

Joe Pendry

Quarterbacks
West Virginia 1969

In Joe Pendry, Jackie Sherrill has another young assistant coach with a wealth of successful coaching experience behind him.

After a good year as a freshman at West Virginia in 1965, Pendry saw a promising grid career end in his sophomore year because of injury. He immediately turned to coaching while still a student and was responsible for the freshmen offensive linemen in 1967 and the linebackers in 1968. He handled the freshman defense in 1969 and was the frosh offensive chief in 1970. In 1971 he coached the WVU freshmen and guided them to a 4-1 record.

After coaching the offensive tackles, tight ends, and receivers under former Mountaineer coach Bobby Bowden from 1972 to 1974, Pendry left West Virginia for Kansas State and a one-year stint as offensive coordinator. He then returned to his alma mater in 1976 and served as offensive coordinator for West Virginia until coming to Pitt last March.

"Joe has always enjoyed a great reputation in recruiting and is well-known throughout this area by high school coaches," said Sherrill. "He's a very hard worker and his experience as an offensive coordinator should prove valuable in his handling of our quarterbacks."

A native of Matheny, West Virginia, Pendry was an all-state football and basketball player at Oceana High School and won the award as the Lineman of the Year in the State. He holds a B.S. in Physical Education from West Virginia.

Married to the former Sandra Barbera, he has two children, Joe (8) and Jill (6).

Dave Wannstedt

Receivers
Pitt 1974

Dave began last season as strength and weight coach but moved to receivers when Otto Stowe resigned in mid-season.

"When I first came to Pitt as an assistant, Dave was a player for us and he impressed me very much with his willingness to work," says Sherrill. "He did a very commendable job when he took over coaching the receivers in mid-season, and that's why he's doing it again this year. Dave always displays a lot of pride in his work."

Dave was a three year letterman and starter for Pitt in the offensive line. He captained the 1973 Fiesta Bowl team, the first Pitt bowl team in 17 years. That year, he earned honorable mention AP All-East and was drafted by the Green Bay Packers. A neck injury ended what seemed a promising professional career. After surgery, Dave returned to Pitt grad school. He holds a B.S. degree in Physical Education from Pitt.

Prior to that, Wannstedt was an all-star athlete at nearby Baldwin High School. He earned nine letters there and was All-State, Big 33, All-WPIAL, All-Conference and team captain. He also captained the basketball team and ran track.

Dave is married to the former Janet Redlinger of Baldwin. Janet gave birth to a baby girl just after the 1976 Sugar Bowl. The child's name is Keri.

Bob Matey

Scouting Coordinator
Weight Program

Joining the Pitt staff in December of 1972, Bob's six continuous years with the Panthers makes him the leader on the staff in Pitt coaching seniority.

During his coaching tenure at Pitt he has been asked to tackle a number of areas including the junior varsity and the defensive line. This year he has been assigned the extra responsibilities of coordinating the scouting and the weight programs.

"Bob has done an excellent job in every area we've asked him. This year we are giving him the added responsibility of a very valuable part of our game, the scouting. He will also work with our weight program and I expect he will do a fine job there too," says Jackie Sherrill.

Matey was All-City for two years at Youngstown's Chaney High School where he lettered for three years at fullback. He was also elected to the All-Northeast Ohio squad, and honorable mention All-State.

When Sherrill was defensive coordinator at Iowa State, Bob Matey was one of his star performers. The smallest, but the quickest, middle guard in the Big 8 he was a starter on the 1971 Iowa State Sun Bowl squad.

A native of Youngstown, Ohio, Bob has been instrumental in directing a number of Ohio's fine high school prospects to Pitt, including John and Jeff Pelusi, and Matt Cavanaugh.

While being single Bob still has a very close companion in "Doogan," his pet Bassett Hound. His cooking exploits with tacos and chile also give him a noted reputation as a culinary genius.

Alex Kramer

Executive Assistant
To the Head Football Coach

Named Executive Assistant to Head Football Coach Jackie Sherrill in July, Alex Kramer brings a wealth of administrative experience with him.

Kramer, who admittedly has had a personal love affair with Pitt most of his life, will handle responsibility for the administration of the football office.

Kramer, who was a Pitt football manager for four years, is a 1952 Pitt graduate. He also received his masters in history from Pitt in 1961. He has been a supervisor and an administrator in the Moon Area School District for the past 15 years.

"Alex has a wealth of administrative experience dating back 15 years," Sherrill said. "His addition gives our staff plenty of flexibility."

Panthers On The Air

PITT football will be beamed this Fall via both radio and television throughout Pennsylvania and into the surrounding states.

On the radio, a professional, first-class, two-man broadcasting team will call the action for the network, originating with WTAE (1250) in Pittsburgh. "Voice of the Panthers" Bill Hillgrove of WTAE-TV in Pittsburgh begins his fifth year as football play-by-play man. Hillgrove will again be joined by nationally known TV analyst, John Sauer, beginning his fifth year.

Hillgrove, one of the most knowledgeable sportscasters in the state, holds a Bachelor's Degree in Radio/TV journalism from Duquesne University.

Sauer, a CBS-TV analyst for 12 years, was classmate to both Pitt Chancellor Dr. Wesley W. Posvar and Pitt Athletic Director Casimir J. Myslinski, in 1946, at West Point.

Also on radio this Fall, WTAE Radio will carry pre-game and post-game lockerroom Jackie Sherrill shows. The 10-minute pre-game show will immediately precede all Pitt broadcasts, and the 15-minute post-game show will be aired at 5:45 p.m. each Saturday following the game.

WTAE-TV (Channel 4) in Pittsburgh and a network of TV stations in the state will carry the weekly "Jackie Sherrill Show," featuring highlights of game action with head coach Jackie Sherrill. The show will be aired at 12:00 noon each Sunday and on Monday evening following the Action News Report.

What About Pitt Basketball?

WITH a 16-11 record behind him and what looks like solid footing ahead, Pitt head basketball coach Tim Grgurich is looking forward to the 1978-79 basketball season with confidence.

Grgurich

"We have a good nucleus returning—the first time that we can combine real experience with talented newcomers," said Grgurich. "We had tournament experience last year that was invaluable to our guys physically and mentally. We've won some big games and we pulled ourselves out of tough situations. This is the year to take everything we've learned and put it together."

Of the eight returning lettermen on the Panther squad, five were starters at one time or another last season. "One of our goals," said Grgurich, "is to be able to keep the pressure off our young players for as long as possible so that they can adjust properly. Every other year we've had to thrust young players into roles that they weren't properly prepared for. This year, barring injury, for the first time we'll be able to develop our team properly."

"Defensively, we hope to be much more aggressive this year," said Grgurich. "We also want to improve our running game."

The Panthers have had a good reputation for being a tough defensive team, mainly due to Coach Fran Webster's intricate "Amoeba" defense.

For the first time in three years the Panthers can also hope for a much more balanced scoring attack, with the return of forward Sam Clancy, guard/forwards Terry Knight and Wayne Williams, center Ed Scheuermann, and some talented back-up players.

"The key to the scoring will be consistency," said Grgurich. "The improvement of the guys year-to-year has been very good. This is the year that they'll have to put it together for a balanced scoring attack. The 'good' games will have to come back-to-back from now on instead of in spurts. When you take away a Larry Harris, you're losing 23-24 points a game. We'll need a much more balanced scoring team to replace that."

"I think that we came closer to playing as a 'team' last year more than ever before, but we still relied on Larry Harris a great deal—when you have somebody on your team that is that good, I think you tend to do that naturally, whether you want to or not."

"We played well as a team when Larry was out of the game, so I know we can do it . . . I can't see anyone scoring consistently in the 20's, but I can see a better balance in the scoring."

THE FAKE CAN CHANGE THE COMPLEXION OF THE GAME

by Bill Lyon, Philadelphia INQUIRER

It was beautiful. Sneaky, true. But beautiful—and effective.

There had been an end sweep, with one of those "student body right" traffic jams, and it had all come together in a glorious, crunching collision near the sideline. The survivors unpled, the defense regrouped, and the offense went back to huddle. All except the wide receiver. He remained on the ground, writhing in pain. He struggled to his knees; then, painfully, started toward the sideline and the sanctuary of his bench.

Meanwhile, the offense had hurried into formation and was calling signals, and the defense lined up frantically and everyone forgot about the injured end. He leaned over, inches from the white stripe, back to the field. But, very carefully, he made sure he was on sides.

And then, when the ball was snapped, he appeared to make the fastest recovery this side of Lourdes. He ran down the sidelines, 40 yards behind the defense, and caught a pass and trotted gleefully into the end zone.

"Oh, it was gorgeous," recalled the coach who had dreamed up the fake injury. "Everyone was sure he had come off, but he stopped just short. And we made sure he wasn't offsides. It really confused the other team. And completely demoralized 'em. We didn't belong on the same field with them, but you know what? We ended up winning that game, 7-0.

"Only one thing wrong with that play, though," he sighed. "They've outlawed it now. Too bad. That baby was good for a 'touch' about once every five years."

Ah, but shed no tears for the feigned injury. For there are still all manner of fakes in football, a vast, intriguing variety of trickery, gimmickry, and skullduggery which coaches can call upon when all appears lost. And they're all legal.

"I remember," said a highly successful

Eastern coach, "that we won a bowl game on a fake. It accounted for the only touchdown of the game.

"It was just before halftime. Neither team had moved the ball much. But we recovered a fumble deep in their territory. We lined up for a field goal, faked it, and threw a screen pass instead. Touchdown. Just like you diagram it."

The same coach used almost the same play a few years later. Except the holder was supposed to run with the ball this time. Everything went according to plan. The defense rushed all 11 men. The offense blocked, but not very hard, just enough to encourage the defense, and then the blockers peeled off to form a wall. Except the holder suddenly decided to pass.

"I almost passed out right there," the coach said. "Here's a wide open field, all he's got to do is run 20 yards, and he throws the ball. If I'd had a gun, I'd have shot the kid. I mean, we ended up with

The vast array of trickery, gimmickry, and skullduggery that coaches can call upon—all legal fakes—adds another dimension of excitement to the college game.

THE FAKE

*ABOUT THE AUTHOR—Bill Lyon has been a sports columnist for The Philadelphia Inquirer since 1973, covering Penn State football on a regular basis and reporting on such other major events as the Super Bowl, World Series, Masters, U.S. Open, pro basketball, Stanley Cup playoffs, heavyweight fights and even the Evel Knievel Snake River Canyon jump. a fake off a fake."

The story, however, has a happy ending. The pass was completed—to a very startled receiver—for a touchdown. The holder ended up a hero anyway. "Yeah," the coach laughed, "and he got to keep his scholarship, too."

You've seen most of the standard razzle-dazzle, dating back to the old Statue of Liberty and the flea-flicker. The fake punt, the quick kick, the pass off a double reverse, the fake of a reverse on a punt return... the sort of stuff that's usually reserved for Saturday afternoons on the sandlot.

"Best one I ever saw," said a veteran coach from the South, "was pulled off against us. Darndest play I ever saw. We kicked off to them, right about the goal line. And every one of their players peeled back. One of the backs catches the ball. Now the kick is fairly deep and this team hasn't won a game in two years so we're loafing down the field."

"Well, all 11 people on that kickoff team get into a huddle, and then they come spinning out of it, and everyone of them is acting like he's got the ball. Bootlegging it, you know. Nobody's blocking; they're all acting like they're the one with the ball, and they're running in about 30 different directions. Man, our guys don't know who to tackle."

"We're grabbing people right and left, searching the officials, mugging players on the bench. In the huddle, they'd given the ball to this little-bitty guy and I'm darned if he doesn't go 101 yards to score."

"You know, it's been 13 years since they pulled that, but every year before we play them I get out the film and show that play. I was mad as the devil when it happened. But I sure got to admire it. I guess it's like if you're a detective and some guy gets away with the perfect crime. You're really boiling and frustrated, but you got to give the guy his due."

A successful fake can have immediate psychological impact, an impact that is devastating for the victim, and enormously uplifting for the team which has negotiated it. Obviously, it can change the entire course and outcome of a game.

"The timing," said a Midwestern coach, "is really important in a fake. Not just the timing of the blockers, but the time you decide to pull it. There's a real knack in knowing exactly when, what situation, to go for it."

"And that's not something you'll find in any textbook. You develop a gut feeling. You're standing there and your instinct tells you—NOW!"

"You know, there's an old gambling saying about never playing with money you can't afford to lose. Same with the fake. Once you're committed to try it, then you have to go ahead with complete recklessness. You can't be worrying about the consequences."

Most coaches agree there are two occasions when a fake is most effective:

1. You have moved the ball up and down the field but haven't been able to punch across a score. Meanwhile, your opponent has been taking chance after chance. A big fake play at this time will finally get your offense untracked and gamblers and bad gamblers.

"Make no mistake about it," said a coach from the Southwest. "A fake is an all-out psychological gamble."

"You're not just going for a big chunk of yardage or for a touchdown, you're trying to create an atmosphere. You're trying to take away the other team's confidence, get him to thinking and worrying about what you're liable to do next. Then you've disrupted his concentration and you can control the game, its tempo. Maybe you can negate his best weapons."

also take away the opponent's building momentum.

2. You are over-matched. There is no way you can beat the other team playing them straight-up. They are too physical, have too much talent. In other words, when out-manned, get sneaky.

"Most of us," said a coach from the West, "are probably conservatives at heart. And when you get on top, you tend to be even more conservative. We'd really rather not gamble on a fake, especially if we've got the horses."

"But sometimes, you've got no choice. Sometimes, the fake is the most logical thing in the world to do. But it's very important how you sell the fake to your team. Don't make it out to be a gimmick, just some crazy thing that's got to work or you'll lose. Because then your players won't have any confidence in it. And they'll think that you don't really believe they can win, and that you're just grasping at straws."

There are, in other words, good fakes and bad fakes. Just as there are good

The fake, coaches seem to agree, can be a game-breaker. But for both sides. If it works, your players are sky-walking and the opponent is confused, demoralized, panicked. But if it backfires, well...

"If it backfires," said the coach of a big-name independent, "then it's like sticking a pin in a very large balloon. It's like the story they tell of this one coach who made a pregame speech and got his team all fired up. Those players were ready to kill. He opened the door, the door he thought led to the field, and they went busting through it. But the door led to a swimming pool instead. Talk about a letdown."

That same coach remembers when an opponent cooked up a lateral off a kickoff return. Except the lateral was intercepted and run 15 yards for a touchdown.

"That was three years ago," he said, "and to this day if you mention the word 'fake' around that coach he starts foaming at the mouth."

THE "OTHER" FALL SPORTS

by Dave Distel, Los Angeles TIMES

A crisp, sunny Autumn afternoon, perfect weather for a cross country race.

Six miles of steep hills later, a winner emerges—here, Henry Rono, 1977 NCAA champ.

For sixty four 50-yard-line seats at the bowl game of one's choice, name the winner of the 1977 National Collegiate Athletic Association soccer championship.

Let's make it easier. Let's make it multiple choice.

Choose from among A.) Notre Dame, B.) Oklahoma, C.) Alabama, or D.) Hartwick.

That's right. Hartwick. It had to be just a little bit obvious. Why else would it have been on the list?

However, it could have been Notre Dame or Oklahoma or Alabama and who would have known?

Soccer is one of those Fall sports which exists in the giant shadow cast by college football. Indeed, in deference to Chris Schenkel, there ARE other wonderful ways to spend Autumn afternoons.

Their names are soccer, water polo, and cross country, and those who participate in such endeavors usually labor in anonymity. They kick, splash, and gasp for little clusters of relatives and girlfriends, and maybe for a fraternity brother or two.

Indeed, the national championship water polo match between California and Cal-Irvine a year ago was played before a gathering of 765 at Brown University in Providence, R.I. Cal was the winner, 8-6.

Water polo combines the strength and speed required of a short-distance swimmer with strategy borrowed from basketball and soccer.

It would seem that Fall's so-called minor sports are dominated by institutions which are not dominated by football.

Take, for example, soccer. Last year's championship match was between Hartwick and the University of San Francisco, neither of which has a football team. Hartwick, playing in the NCAA tournament for the 11th time, was a 2-1 winner. For the information of those who got less than straight A's in geography or trivia, Hartwick is located in Oneonta, N.Y. Wherever that is.

USF, just a little bit more renowned for its basketball teams, won the soccer championship in 1975 and 1976. The dominant soccer power has been St. Louis University, winner of 10 national championships.

These are all institutions which play a foot ball game—but not a football game.

"We get pretty good crowds with a lot of enthusiasm," one of the coaches said,

Have you any idea how much America's colleges mean to you?

It was college-based research and college-trained minds that gave us electronic computers, television, space-craft. That conquered polio, smallpox, diphtheria. That developed new strains of rice and wheat to help feed the world's hungry.

And it will be today's college-trained minds that will solve tomorrow's problems: Energy. Transportation.

Health. City planning. International relations.

But only if you help. America's colleges are in deep financial trouble.

They cannot train minds for tomorrow unless you make it possible now.

So give them a hand. The help you give today will make tomorrow's world a better one.

FUNDRAISING:

The Backbone of the Athletic Budget

by Del Black, Kansas City STAR

In 1959, during the fading seconds of Nebraska's victory that snapped Oklahoma's Big Eight Conference unbeaten football streak of more than 70 games, fans made a futile effort to tear down the goal posts. The uprights were not only anchored in concrete, they were made of steel.

What the determined fans did, however, was bend the posts so badly that they had to be replaced. Seeing the possibilities of salvaging something from the wreckage sustained in the season finale, an enterprising Cornhusker alum obtained the steel posts. He cut them into one-half-inch pieces, filled them with cement, painted the score and date of the game on the surfaces, and sold them for $5 apiece. The proceeds went to the Nebraska football program.

While this scheme was the result of more imagination than most, it was typical of how schools' alumni and friends scratch and scrape for funds to fuel their athletic programs. The bigger the program, the more people and backing are needed.

College athletics is big business, and to keep the sports productive, their followers must be organizers, salesmen, and—possibly most of all—generous.

The structure of such fundraising exploits ranges from selling bumper stickers to tapping the big businessman for support. In between there are gimmicks that border on the unusual.

How about the school, steeped in agricultural tradition, that solicits a steer-a-year from its rancher alums? Or the pork-a-year plan? Or turkeys? Or truck loads of wheat?

"Don't laugh, they all help," says one fundraiser. "I'll listen to any gimmick, no matter how ridiculous. Who knows until you try it? My desk is filled with letters offering ideas. Some of them we can't implement, but if you get the people thinking about what you're trying to accomplish, you're making progress."

"Getting people involved in their school is important. It used to be that alums would sit in the stadiums or arenas, cheer, and go home. They were taking things for granted, and really had a right to."

"But today, a good share of them are getting involved in helping put those teams out there on the fields, on the courts, and on the tracks. In this day and age, without involvement by the

SEATBELTS THAT PUT THEMSELVES ON.

Remember when Mom attached your mittens to your coatsleeves? The theory was, even the warmest gloves in the class wouldn't do you much good if you didn't use them.

The theory's the same for seatbelts.

That's why one of the many exclusive features in the deluxe model Rabbit—the Rabbit "L"—is an automatic seatbelt in each front seat.

When you slide into your seat, you're sliding behind the seatbelt.

When you shut the door, the seatbelt is fastened.

There's no buzzing to remind you that you forgot.

Because if you're driving our Rabbit "L", you don't have to remember.

Together with a knee bar that restrains you from jolting forward, our seatbelt makes the most advanced passive restraint system available.

Of course, by 1984 every new car in America must have a passive restraint system. Transportation Secretary Adams says so.

But we didn't wait to be told. Only the Rabbit "L" has automatic seatbelts today. And has had them since 1975.

That's because Volkswagen doesn't think like any old car company. Volkswagen thinks like a mother.

THE HALFTIME SHOW

by Art Rosenbaum, San Francisco CHRONICLE

Non-football diversion at college football games, such as a halftime show, is (1), a marvelous mixture of sight and sound; (2), an entertainment which reflects the pace, customs and imperfections of the times; (3), a continuation of the Big Band Era; (4), a turf springboard for bouncing, bounding youth; (5), a method of including students other than gladiators in the school program; (6), a zestful modifier to the game itself, and sometimes more fun; (7), a necessary pause that allows spectators to form long lines to the rest rooms; or (8), all of the above.

The radiance and enthusiasm of youth is all-pervasive at a college game, whether it be before, during, or between halves. The footballers have the spark one misses among the pros, and it's equally true with the sideline or the on-field spectaculars. Colleges offer real cheerleaders who produce real laughs and cry real tears.

The kids are involved. They are not the plastic cheerleaders of the NFL who wouldn't know, or care, if they were exhibiting forced smiles or fighting flesh wars on behalf of the Denver Dolphins or the New England Oilers.

The pros have been copying college rules, and rule-changes, for years. They've also attempted to imitate halftime shows, but they can't buy or provide the natural buoyancy of a school extravaganza. The pros bring in performers; college performers are themselves.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR—Art Rosenbaum is sports editor of The San Francisco Chronicle, a position he has held since 1954. He writes a six-times-weekly column. Born in San Francisco, he went to UC Berkeley and San Francisco State.

Unmatchable are the great bands, or funky bands, or even the standard bands with their Sam Browne-belted youngsters, those last representatives of that old time musical religion. From any campus, it seems, bands will go anywhere for a chance to play and display. They'll sleep or not sleep, as the occasion warrants, doing their act day or night, home or away. Athletes are numbered, taped, and otherwise pampered, but bandspeople, unlike the armored warriors they salute, are mostly anonymous and totally dedicated. They play hurt, if necessary, with the attitude that the march for old State U. must go on.

They volunteer for preseason physical training with as much vigor as the footballers; song girls at many schools average 20 hours a week practicing, without credit. They are not on scholarship ... there is no NFL pension plan in their futures. In short, they care because they care.

Somehow, that sense of wanting to take part, of providing inspiration for the home team, comes through in the music. Good or adequate, loud or louder, a college band can be counted on to blare forth with fervor, sincerity, and love.

Halftime presentations often are images of current culture. Surveys and polls tend to prove that these shows have outlived the political base of student attitudes from one era to the next. Last year there were fewer controversial themes than in a dozen seasons past. Outer space, conveniently borrowed from "Star Wars" and "Close Encounters," had replaced the occasional anti-Vietnam halftime shows of the '60s and early '70s.

This year, by all forecasts, the programs will continue to be comparatively sedate; but then, who can properly predict student trends? Collegians create the questions today that forecasters ask tomorrow.

The young people of 1978 have inherited much of the impishness and independence of the '60s but not the fiery resistance. (It says here.)

Cheerleading is an American institution, but only in recent years has an institute been established in its cause. The International Cheerleading Foundation at Shawnee Mission, Kan., is an affiliated member of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA), and, through its Cheer Leader/Song Girl Institute, invades college and high school campuses every Summer to conduct workshops that teach the bumps, gyrations, and rah-rah-rahs of the art which, it is pointed out, go hand-in-hand with school spirit, athletic competition, free enterprise, controlling unruly crowds, and leader training.

"Without imaginative leaders," the foundation's Encyclopedia of Cheerleading intones, "both our schools and our nation can experience a serious disintegrating process—for any human group without leaders is, at best, apathetic, and at worst, destructive."

Such a thought would have been derided as upstream rhetoric in the "radical" '60s. Which is not to say that entertainment at today's football games is staid or routine. Far, far from it. The field is immense and calls up grandiose productions. Imagination runs the gamut and hardly any subject (except possibly school work) is exempt.

Traditionalists wonder if there will ever be a revival of words for students to live by, like this turn-of-the-century cheer from Ottawa University:

Sophocles, Demosthenes, Peloponnesian War,

X2, Y2, C2-SO4,

Greek books, Latin books, Ancient History,

Ottawa, Ottawa, Ottawa Varsity.

One hopes there will never be a need to revive a popular theme of the Depression '30s:

Football, Baseball,

Swimming in the tank,

Who needs college

With money in the bank?

DO-IT-YOURSELF STATS N' FACTS

Every football fan knows that the score doesn't always give a good picture of a game. A few statistics, like those that can be kept on this page can make the picture clearer, show what the individual stars contribute and help to win post-game "debates." Besides, it can be fun to second guess the official scorers whose statistics will appear in tomorrow's papers. But before you start, here are some pointers on being a statistician:

1. Keep cumulative totals to be informed "up to the minute" and to simplify your figuring of team totals. EXAMPLE: Jones gains 3, 6, 9, 2 yards and you write 3, 9, 18, 20 on his line.
2. On plays involving penalties measured from the point of the foul, credit the rusher or pass receiver with yardage only to the point of the infraction.
3. Charge gains and losses on fumbles to the player who, in your judgement, contributed most to the error.
4. Don't score two-point conversion attempts after touchdowns as rushing or passing plays.

FALL SPORTS

"because we're the biggest game on campus. In fact, we're the only game on campus."

Indeed, it does not really matter whether or not football exists in terms of pride in accomplishment. A lady does not have to be competing for Miss America to want to comb her hair. St. Louis was not playing in front of a television audience of 50 million, but it had to feel good about those 10 soccer championships.

It is the same with cross country. Oregon and Texas-El Paso (UTEP) have been dominant of late. They have shared the NCAA championships since 1973—Oregon winning in 1973, 1974, and 1977, and UTEP winning the other two years. Furthermore, Oregon won in 1971 and UTEP won in 1969.

Which university has won the most cross country titles? Michigan State.

—"The football team gets its budget," a cross country runner said, "and then the rest of us get what's left."

—"I think soccer's an exciting game," a coach said, "one that's really going to be big in this country, but we don't really need stands for the crowds we have. Everyone sits around on blankets. But everyone has fun."

The ultimate frustration—and chagrin—was experienced by the cross country team at a California university. It was one of five sports eliminated so that the football team would have enough money to compete at the Division I level. It will probably be reinstated now, because the university must add sports to qualify as Division I under the new national guidelines. So much for fickle friends.

Football does consume money in great chunks. Because of the number of players involved and the expense of safety equipment, a football program costs thousands of dollars regardless of its level of competition.

However, football can be a sugar daddy. A successful program can make enough money to support its dependent little brothers.

"Really," an assistant coach from the Southwest said, "I don't think we have to apologize for our football budget. We get gate receipts and television money and it all goes into the general athletic department budget, and what we end up being allotted is less than what we bring in. We've got to get what we get to be successful—and we've got to be successful or everybody suffers."

Football budgets are invariably into six figures—some of them well into six figures. The other fall sports are usually barely into four figures—some not even that "lavish."

Those who coach the "minor sports" of Autumn have grown accustomed to being in the back seat, not that it thrills them.

"Our kids work hard," said a soccer coach, "and they enjoy winning just as much as the football team enjoys winning. It's just that not as many people watch them or read about them."

There is, of course, a "plus" of sorts. Wins do not attract a lot of attention, but neither do losses.

"When I run across someone I haven't seen for a while," a soccer player mused, "he'll ask me how we're doing. We're not having too good a year, so I say, 'Just so-so,' and he'll be satisfied. The football team isn't doing too well either, but everyone asks those guys why..."

So there are both joys and frustrations on the other side of Autumn afternoons. And a little bit of excitement too. Let's hear it for Hartwick.

Soccer players must be agile and well-conditioned, and ready to take a few bruises now and then.

Running to stay warm, perhaps, the Spartans have won eight NCAA championships. However, it has been cold of late in East Lansing. The Spartans have not won an NCAA cross country crown since 1959.

Water polo championships have been the domain of the West Coast. In fact, all of the titles have been won by California schools—Cal, four; UCLA, three; Cal-Irvine, one; and Stanford, one.

"There's just more emphasis on water polo at the high school level out there," an Eastern coach said. "We just don't have the budget to even begin to think about recruiting out there."

By the same token, California schools have not exactly been juggernauts in ice hockey. Folks out West prefer ice in the form of cubes.

There may come a time when Eastern institutions get their heads above water and make their presence felt in water polo. Bucknell became the first Eastern college to win a match in NCAA water polo play last fall. Who did it beat? Brown, another Easterner.

There has to be a certain amount of frustration in the ranks of the minor sports. Football is so dominant in terms of budget and attention.

Witness observations by a number of minor sports fans, coaches and participants:

—"We can be unbeaten and playing for a championship," said a water polo fan, "and our results will be in little type back next to the classified ads. The football team is lousy and it's always at the top of the front page."

alums and friends in fundraising, athletic departments will struggle."

There are incentives for some of the alums and friends who render more than token support to their schools' athletic programs. Starting in the early and mid-1960s, colleges and universities discovered they could kill two birds with one stone. They needed larger and more functional press boxes, and to build them, they went to the big donors. The results were not merely press facilities, but plushly-packaged structures that included club and restaurant facilities from which the donors could enjoy the games.

Other incentives derived from financial support of collegiate athletics include seating priorities, parking privileges, and admittance to other sports-oriented functions.

While such privileges are rewards, and without question a trade-out for fan support, schools must be careful that they don't become an irritant among other fans. Obviously, without exerting tact and discretion, such a practice can become a double-edged sword.

"What athletic programs can't lose sight of is that no matter how many or how few backers they might have, everybody counts and must be appreciated," said one athletic director. "Those people who come through the gates are our most important assets. For every contributor, dollar-wise, to our program, there are hundreds, possibly thousands, who are ticket holders. We need them even more, and they are appreciated. We will never take them for granted."

How far back does fundraising go?

One athletic director, who at one time assisted in his school's alumni association, recalls his playing days in the late 1940s and the administration's attempts to raise money for athletics and get everybody involved in the school.

"The endowment associations, for many, many years, could have very easily been subsidizing athletic programs from contributions made to the university earmarked for athletics," he said.

Another athletic administrator renders his philosophies about fundraising: "I get emotional when I talk about fundraising. First of all you've got to have a purpose. Then you've got to have the organization behind it to be successful. And obviously, you've got to have the people.

"If you have a real need, then it's very enjoyable. Not everybody can raise money. Not everybody can go out and solicit money. But if you have all those things going for you, and if it's for a good cause, then it's very, very enjoyable.

"And most of all, it's a challenge. I don't know too many people who don't like challenges, so when you approach fundraising, you can spur yourself and the others involved to heights they never believed possible."

For instance, a Midwestern school, seeking to install artificial turf on its football field, subscribed its alumni and friends to purchase it by the yard. It did the same when building a track and field complex, complete with synthetic surfaces.

But fundraising is not without its frustrations.

As one athletic official recalls, "I wanted our school to be the first in the conference to install synthetic turf on the football field. We had been fighting for our program and believed the turf would be a real plus for it. One of the other schools in the conference found out about our plans, and more or less just took the funds out of its petty cash and covered its field with synthetic turf, too.

"Schools with big touchdown clubs, lettermen clubs, etc., can do this more easily than smaller schools, or those in low-populated areas."

But here, too, the big boys, supposedly the utopias for athletic success, must face the realities of stretching the dollar. One coach and athletic director at such a school once commented that his next chore would be to raise a half-million dollars from the booster club so the department could make ends meet.

"You must have a loyal atmosphere to raise money," another school official states. There's no limit to what you can accomplish. All schools are into it now. Some are so big they have separate corporations outside the school, downtown offices, and clubs off-campus. All their proceeds go to the betterment of school athletics.

"It's a necessity now, because I believe the days are gone when a state-supported school will ever reach the personal philosophies of state legislators to support athletics.

"For all practical purposes, most state schools have lost most state appropriations. As a result, more and more schools are going to and staying with fundraising to survive athletically.

"Women's sports, which are growing by leaps and bounds throughout the nation, have put an even greater priority on fundraising.

"But because there are more athletes being served, and even though it is becoming more costly, more people are becoming involved—participating, spectating and coaching.

"And each is a prospective fundraiser. That's where the loyalty figures. And, of course, the challenge."

A remote reason for buying a Sony TV.

Obviously, people don't buy Sony Trinitron® Color TVs because of our remote control.

They buy them, primarily, for our unique Trinitron one-gun, one-lens system—the thing that's largely responsible for the remarkable Sony picture.

But what is interesting to note, is that one out of every four people who buy Sony Trinitrons buys one with remote control.

We guess they just naturally feel more comfortable with Sony's remote control system. And with good reason. Sony's remote models go one step further, with quick, silent, all-electronic channel selection and tuning.

Sony remote control is available on our 15," 17," 19" and 21" models (measured diagonally).

As we said before, it may not be the main reason for buying a Sony. But it's not such a bad one either.

What's All That JAZZ At The University of Pittsburgh?

Five minutes to curtain time and Elvin Jones, premiere jazz drummer, is nervous backstage of Pittsburgh's Carnegie Hall. Jones' artistry is not the nervous issue in the tense, offstage air. His pioneering drumwork redefined modern percussion theory and charted the rhythms of the uncharted John Coltrane during the 1960s.
But also nervous backstage is the evenings guitarist Jim Hall, saxophonist Sonny Rollins, bassist Ron Carter, pianist Jaki Byard, and trumpeter Woody Shaw. Like Jones, they've all paid the price to be the bosses of their own jazz world kingdoms.
What makes these jazz artists nervous? Most of them have never played together before. In fact, the Who's Who in jazz has had just one rehearsal prior to tonight's concert. And although all of them understand that the essence of the music is improvisation, this is a heckuva way to enter the academic community at the University of Pittsburgh's Annual Jazz Seminar and Concert.

By Greg Mims

MORE than 40 nervous musicians have sat backstage of a sold-out Carnegie Music Hall since the Pitt Jazz Seminar and Concert Series began in 1970. Each October they've harnessed the one-rehearsal butterflies and taken to the Music Hall stage to amaze a full house of students, music scholars and city jazz fans.

Dr. Nathan Davis, jazz saxophonist, composer, and director of the University's Jazz Studies Program, is usually relaxed five minutes before the evening's performance. For him, the upcoming concert with a "pick-up" band of the music's major talents, represents a battle won. Whatever the University's Department of Music had meant to serious music lovers prior to 1969, it now means jazz to just as many other serious music lovers.

It was not always so. Prior to Davis' appointment, jazz, as an art form and academic endeavor did not exist within Pitt's music department. Traditional academicians have always had problems with the music's ethnic and folk origins and tenuous links to mainstream American culture.

At that time, however, new voices were redefining the terms "art form" and "academic endeavor." These voices, many of them Pitt faculty and students, recognized jazz as America's true, indigenous, classical music form. As such, the music and its creators were deserving of full stature within the nation's pantheon of the arts. Davis' hiring represented one of the University's first commitments to its new voices. Solidifying that commitment, however, to the tune of an annual Pitt jazz event, meant waging the same uphill battle for respectability that jazz musicians have always fought.

"It's a cliché but it's true," says Davis. "In Europe, jazz was, and is integrated into most higher education curricula and is considered classical music. It is no big thing. Over there, it's taught under the banner of ethnomusicology," says Davis, himself a former instructor at the Paris-American Academy, one of the most prestigious conservatories in France.

"In the states in 1969, higher education had no idea about jazz and what its major creators were like. Jazz was considered solely from an entertainment-show business point of view. Me, I'm a jazz musician and I take pride in saying that, but at that time, they didn't know if that meant I smoked pot, hung from the lights, taught conventional classes or what. Besides, in their minds, they figured how can you study academically, that which at its fiercest artistic level, is not written down?"

Davis laughs when remembering how various Pitt music department faculty would stop by his office during the early days of jazz on campus. "Informally, they'd ask me serious questions about what they called 'real' music and I'd answer them with more scholarship than they expected. They didn't realize that I'd written for symphony orchestras in Europe."

DR. NATHAN DAVIS, Director of the Jazz Studies Program.

"Real" music notwithstanding, most jazz musicians "know" their instrument's capabilities as well as or better than classical musicians. "They have to," Davis points out. "Eighty percent of the music we create is spontaneous composition... improvisation... It's the impromptu composition of a thousand different melodic themes. A good jazz musician has more to do than read notes, he or she must interpret the music for the way the particular instrument sings."

The first Pitt Jazz Seminar offered only a clue of the now-established, all-star pick-up band format. Like most jazz events, it began with an elusive idea about music and the certain promise of improvised excitement.

"I was teaching my courses here and my old boss, Art Blakey (a venerated jazz drummer, was performing in town with the Jazz Messengers. So I went to the dean of the College of Arts and Sciences to get money for Blakey and a Messenger side-man to lecture."

It was an experimental time for higher education and for $75 experimental dollars apiece, the academic community booked Blakey and saxophonist side-man Don Byas in lecture/in concert, one performance only, in the lower lounge of the Pitt Student Union.

"It was all impromptu," Nathan remembers. "I asked Art and Dan just to lecture at one of my classes, but they also brought their instruments with them. And with no publicity, no poster, just word of mouth, the students and the faculty filled the room. Blakey had never seen such a young, curious audience; he responded by delivering an eloquent, scholarly, analysis of the drum, its history, and percussion theory."

Robert Snow, then chairman of Pitt's music department, was among the many impressed by Blakey's literate analysis of percussion and theory and history.

With the success of the Blakey event, a variation on the theme was planned for the next year featuring pianist Roland Hanna, trumpeter Donald Byrd, and drummer Alan Dawson. Jazz, in the form of a "pick-up" band composed of the music's major innovators, had become and established force at the University of Pittsburgh.

It's a force that has been well served throughout the years by invited musicians like saxophonists Dexter Gordon, Joe Henderson, Sonny Stitt, Jimmy Heath, and James Moody; pianists Terry Pollard and Mike Longo; guitarists "Toots" Thielemans, Jim Hall, and Kenny Burrell; trumpeters Thad Jones, Clark Terry, Terumasa Hino, and Woody Shaw, Donald Byrd; drummers Max Roach, Kenny Clarke, and Louis Hayes; and bassists Ron Carter, Abraham Laboriel, and Richard Davis.

Nationally, Pitt's jazz curriculum is regarded by music educators and journalists as one of the superior jazz studies programs in the nation. This high regard is echoed by the many musicians and lecturers who've spread the word that the Pitt gig is one of the better teaching/performance bookings on the jazz circuit.

Davis attributes the program's initial success to Pitt's students. In addition to the seminar and concert series, their interest fueled the development of the University of Pittsburgh Jazz Ensemble, a 20-piece recording and performing big band composed entirely of University students. The band has performed at the prestigious Montreux Jazz Festival in Switzerland (it was one of the first Pitt music groups to go abroad), and recently completed a tour in New Orleans.

"I demand a lot from them," Davis notes, "if they're going to be professional musicians they must develop their talents as if they're competing with the best. They are."

This year, Pitt's eighth annual jazz fest will be held October 26-28 in the Student Union lower lounge and Carnegie Music Hall. Scheduled are lectures, films, and workshop sessions featuring the talents of invited "faculty" pianist John Lewis, saxophonist Joe Henderson, guitarist "Toots" Thielemans, trombonist, "Slide" Hampton, trumpeter Terumasa Hino, bassist Larry Ridley, drummer Alan Dawson (all are nervous jazz musicians) and saxophonist Nathan Davis (who's relaxed).

The concert will be held October 28 at 8 p.m. in Carnegie Music Hall. Tickets are available at the Pitt Student Union Ticket Office for $2 with a student I.D.; all others $5. The workshop sessions, featuring the invited musicians, are free, and the public is welcome to attend.

TODAY, the city of Pittsburgh houses controlling interests of over $29 billion in assets. This makes Pittsburgh the fourth leading corporate headquarters in the country, with 23 of the world's 500 largest corporations.

Today, the University of Pittsburgh, which has championed the city academically since 1787, continues to feed thousands of technical and professional degrees into the blood stream of one of the top production centers in the world.

Every employer continues to call on Pitt graduates for professional services—medicine, dentistry, nursing, legal counseling and business, to name a few. The Pitt diploma continues to be recognized, respected . . . and called upon.

Today, Pittsburgh is the 10th largest media outlet center in the United States, a fact which serves both the city and the University well.

And, amazingly, the University of Pittsburgh is the second largest employer in the city with over 6,000 full-time staff members, including 2,100 full-time faculty members, 550 part-time faculty members and more than 1,500 part-time technical and professional personnel.

There was a day when both were small and growing. But they have always grown together, hand in hand, dependent upon each other.

The Cathedral of Learning.

The University of Pittsburgh was first chartered in 1787 as Pittsburgh Academy. Less than 50 students comprised the student body then. In 1789, the city of Pittsburgh's official population was listed at less than 500.

The city continued to grow and in 1819 Pittsburgh Academy became Western University of Pennsylvania, a one-building structure on Third Avenue and Cherry Street, Downtown.

In July 1907, the first cornerstone of the first University building was laid in Oakland and Western University of Pennsylvania became the University of Pittsburgh. During the same period Pittsburgh continued to grow. The rivers were developing and Pittsburgh was becoming a big city.

In March of 1921, Chancellor John G. Bowman told Richard B. Mellon, "The Cathedral of Learning is not a commonplace idea. But, what is the future of Pittsburgh if it is to grow with commonplace ideas and commonplace loyalties?"

Mellon bought the argument, financed the building, and the relationship between the City and the University began blooming to today's heights.

The University of Pittsburgh

In 1926, Chancellor Bowman announced the building plan that today is the Cathedral of Learning. "We want a building that is symbolic of Education's higher aspirations—one that has eternal reach for both education and the entire community," Bowman proclaimed.

During this time, the University was establishing what is now a long and illustrious sports tradition. Pitt ranks fifth in all-time National Championships won—according to Sports Illustrated—with nine. And, to Pittsburgh, which has always been a sports front-runner, the University has added its fair contribution. Last year, for example, the University contributed a 7th ranking in a major football poll and had nine athletes achieve All-America honors. Two years ago, Pitt brought the national collegiate championship to the city.

Recently, too, the University reached an academic milestone, being elected a member of the Association of American Universities—an elite group of just over 50 universities with the major criterion being an exceptional academic standing.

Undergraduates can take an active interest in varied fields of study. Pitt even has a self-designed major for specialization areas. Post-graduates and practicing professionals find a wealth of avenues to pursue higher education. The Health Professions schools—medical, dental, and pharmacy—are world-renowned. The law department ranks among the nation's best.

Within a 15-minute radius of the University there are six museums and art galleries, ten hospitals, and over a dozen other colleges and universities—plus one of the better symphony orchestras in the land. All of this adds a cultural touch to both the city and the University of Pittsburgh.

In addition, the countryside serves as an outdoor recreational heaven for all seasons—set in the rolling hills, valleys, rivers and streams, which are characteristic of Western Pennsylvania—to form a compact, yet classy, big-time city.

That's quite a relationship the City of Pittsburgh and the University of Pittsburgh have nurtured through the years.

The Pitt Band in formation.

THE 1978 edition of the University of Pittsburgh Marching Band is one of the largest musical organizations to ever represent the University in Pitt Stadium. The Marching Band numbers 180 instrumentalists, 15 majorettes and an operations crew of 7.

Comprised of students from almost every school of the University, the Marching Band rehearses every Monday, Tuesday and Thursday night during the football season. Besides the regular schedule, the Band also holds a warm-up rehearsal on Saturday mornings before home football games. The Marching Band is a totally volunteer organization with the members receiving no financial aid for their participation. The students are in the Band simply because they enjoy it.

The Marching Band is under the direction of Donald E. Hower, Director of Bands at Pitt. He is assisted by Vince Bianucci. Joe Campus provides the musical arrangements with the choreography provided by Larry Cervi. Jack Dilanni coaches the Percussion section. The announcements heard in Pitt Stadium are provided by Clayton Hartman now in his 25th season with the Pitt Band.

Today's Half-Time presentation is centered around the theme of the 1978 Homecoming—"Through the Looking Glass." The Pitt Band would like to acknowledge the presence of the Band Alumni at this afternoon's game with the playing of the John Phillip Sousa march "The Thunderer". The 1978 Homecoming Queen is saluted with "You Light Up My Life". To conclude its show, the Band would like to look "Through the Looking Glass" at two American composers who have contributed some of the best known melodies to the music of America. They are George Gershwin and Irving Berlin, who is celebrating his 90th birthday this year. The Band will play "Alexander's Ragtime Band", "There's No Business Like Show Business", "Strike Up the Band" and "God Bless America".

The Pitt Band would like to welcome the Band Alumni to this game. They will share this afternoon's activities.

PITT ALUMNI BAND Homecoming Performance

The Pitt Alumni Band will perform at half-time today under the direction of Robert L. Arthur, Director Emeritus of University Bands. Mr. Arthur conducted the Pitt Varsity Marching Band from 1939 until 1971. Joining Mr. Arthur in the preparation and direction of today's performance will be Jack B. Anderson, Ben E. Benack, and Richard Obrycki. Robert H. Wigton will be the announcer. One hundred and twenty alumni of Pitt Band's from the 1930's through the 1970's will perform.

This half-time performance is sponsored by the Pitt Band Alumni Association whose 1978 officers are J. Roger Glunt, President; W. Creighton McClintock, Vice President; and Charles Schlotter, Secretary-Treasurer.
