Florida State vs. Memphis State

Not to get personal or anything, but tonight's game means an awful lot to me. It's kind of a way for me to maintain some dignity around my house for another year.

Yesterday, you see, a van full of people left Memphis en route to Tallahassee to see this game. These people are not just any people, though. I knew that when the van stopped in my driveway and these people began to unload their various personal belongings in my guest bedroom. Yes, my relatives from Memphis are back again.

Don't get me wrong. These are great folks and we've enjoyed some fantastic times over the years. Our kids are ecstatic when they visit. In fact everything is wonderful until it comes to the games. These relatives are died-in-the-wool Tiger fans—"Super Tigers" they call 'em when they write their check to the booster club every year.

Well, thank goodness football meetings have been easy to swallow for the most part. What with the Seminoles winning five of the last six games against the Tigers and gaining a tie in the other one, my folks haven't had much to crow about. Generally, they like to turn the conversation toward basketball (a sport where their beloved Tigers have enjoyed a significant measure of success). Since Pat Kennedy and the FSU hoops resurgence started, even that has been somewhat quiet.

Dinner last night was a little strange, though. I detected a note of Tiger football resurgence in my cousin's tone. With pride he told me of the season-opening win over arch-rival Ole Miss before 62,000 fans in the newly-expanded Liberty Bowl.

"Charlie Bailey," he said, "seems to speak our language. He's going to get things turned around."

"Sounds familiar," I told him. "Somebody once said that here in 1976 when Bobby Bowden stepped in. Now look?"

"Exactly," he proclaimed. "We could be the next force among the Independents. We could be a Florida State someday!"

With that my cousin reached for the check. He did I had an evil flashback. The last time my cousin had reached for a dinner check during football season was a Friday night in 1984 in Memphis. We were all there for the road variety of this family squabble. Our 10th-ranked Seminoles were in town to play the lowly Tigers the next night.

I remembered my cousin grabbing the check that night and saying something like, "anything can happen tomorrow night. You never know." He chuckled like he knew something nobody else knew. He paid the check for dinner and 24 hours later Derek Schmidt — bless his heart — kicked a 42-yard field goal on the last play of the game to eek out a 17-17 tie.

Somehow I've always blamed that nightmarish game on my cousin. Last night I could see the same look in his eye — the same chuckle had just begun.

"Nope," I shouted with a vengeance. "I'm paying the dad-gum tab and let there be no more discussion!"

I breathed a sigh of relief as I paid the bill. My cousin's Old Charter flowed freely last night, but even the hundred bucks it set me back was worth it — not having to listen to that snide chuckle.

I left the house early this morning and my cousins were affixing their blue Tiger streamers to the sides of the van. They smiled and waved as we agreed to get together after the game. But somehow I felt I had staved off the boastful post-game celebration I had to endure in Memphis in 1984 and after several basketball beatings. Staved it off hopefully for at least two years (FSU does not play Memphis State in 1988).

I wanted to rush down to the stadium this morning to tell Coach Bowden that I had done my part. After all, he knows how relatives can be. His all come to the Auburn game every year. In this case, though, I figured he wouldn't really understand. He wouldn't understand how much this game means in the Hogan household. Florida State has no real natural rivalry with Memphis State. I didn't tell him.

So that is why I'll be pulling so hard for the Seminoles tonight. Let's hope my hundred dollar dinner tab will get the job done, but I have a feeling more will depend on the McManus' and the McGowan's than pre-game superstitions.

Let's win this one tonight for old Hogan. And by the way, after the game — Cousin Marvin's got the tab.

NOTES AND QUOTES

... Florida State's victory over East Carolina was Bobby Bowden's 92nd at FSU and 42 of those 92 have come away from Tallahassee. Against one of the nation's toughest road schedules, Bowden has compiled a 42-24-2 record away from home. He is 50-12-1 at Doak Campbell.

... Sammie Smith's 244 yards against East Carolina was the second biggest rushing night in Florida State history. Only Greg Allen's 322-yard performance against Western Carolina in 1981 stands as a better single-game performance. Sammie was selected as Sports Illustrated's Offensive Player of the Week following the game.

... Smith's 83-yard touchdown run in the second quarter was the second longest in the school's history. Only Larry Key's 97-yarder against Virginia Tech in 1976 was longer.

... Part of Smith's incentive last week was the birth of a daughter on Monday, September 7. Sammie and wife Angie welcomed Janay Chantelle Smith. The young Smith was the second new addition to the Seminole family in the last two weeks. Backup linebacker Keith Carter and wife had a baby girl named Keesha the previous week.

... Smith's total moved him to within 24 yards of his first 1,000 at FSU. The 218-pound tailback now has 976 yards in 140 carries. Those totals do not include his 205 yards in last year's All-American Bowl.

... Smith has now had consecutive 200-yard games, counting the bowl game that ended the 1986 season. That is pretty phenomenal since there have been just eight 200-yard games in FSU history. In his last three games Smith has carried the ball 68 times for 565 yards (8.3 yards per carry). That equals 188.3 yards per game.

... Senior kicker Derek Schmidt continues to climb on the all-time NCAA scoring list. His 14 points against East Carolina surpassed Tony Franklin and Tim Lashar on the career kicking points list. He now has 301 career points, ranking ninth all-time. His 55 career field goals rank 16th on the NCAA list.

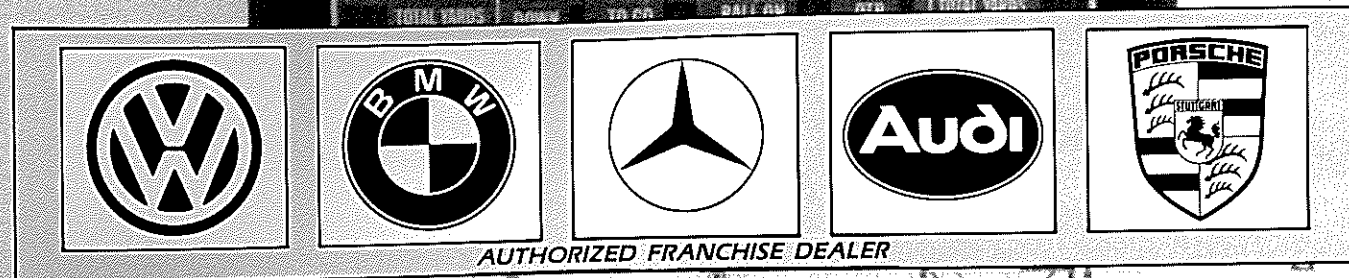

... Ironically, Schmidt has had his biggest games against Memphis State, kicking five field goals in the two contests. One of those came on the final play of the 1984 game and earned the Seminoles a 17-17 tie. His four field goals probably saved the 1985 game.

... Named to last week's defensive "Victor's Club" for winning performance grades were linebackers David Palmer, Paul McGowan and Terry Warren; defensive linemen Steve Gabbard and Odell Haggins; and defensive backs Greg Newell, Stan Shiver and Eric Williams.

... Memphis State has four SEC teams on its 1987 schedule. Having already played Ole Miss and Vanderbilt, the Tigers have upcoming dates with Mississippi State and Alabama.

... Memphis State's only win in 1986 came against the team it just lost to — Vandy. The Tigers shocked the Commodores 22-21 in Nashville for the lone victory of '86.

... The Tigers' home stadium — the Liberty Bowl — is fresh off a $19 million facelift, including the addition of 13,000 extra seats, a stadium club and lighting system.

... Florida State and Memphis State agreed to cancel a game scheduled for October 8, 1988 in Memphis. The two teams will play again in 1989 in Tallahassee. Florida State filled the void next year with a seventh home game — vs. Georgia Southern on that same date.

... Memphis State lists 10 players from the state of Florida, including linebacker Craig Wagner, a freshman signee from Winter Park. Tallahassee native and Godby High School graduate Charles Wilson is a sophomore wide receiver for the Tigers.

... Memphis State coach Charlie Bailey is no stranger to the state of Florida, having served two years on the staff of the USFL Tampa Bay Bandits. He then moved to Galen Hall's UF staff as defensive coordinator in 1985.

... Bowden on the possibility of using 245 pound Marion Butts and 221 pound Sammie Smith in the backfield at the same time: "I like that combination. Marion is an ideal 'I' back for Sammie Smith. He's an ideal co-pilot. Yes, you may see more of that.

... More on Butts from Bowden: "His name describes him to the tee. He's a 'butter' all right. We have have to change his name because the NCAA does not allow us to use terms like 'spear' or 'butt'.

... Marlon Brown, the Memphis State player who KO'd McManus in the 1985 game, is a senior outside linebacker on this year's Tiger team.

NEXT HOME GAME

The big game of the year is tight around the corner. After a trip to Michigan State next week, the Miami Hurricanes invade Doak Campbell Stadium for a Top 10 game. Keep tuned to your local media to find out the game time; both schools expect that the 7:00 p.m. start will be moved up to accommodate a CBS telecast. Miami, of course, was the runnerup to Penn State last year in the national championship and both FSU and Miami will be highly ranked going into the game. The Hurricanes have won the last two games and hold an 8-1 series advantage over FSU in Doak Campbell Stadium.

Seminole Heroes: If Only For One Game

By Nick Gandy, Tribe Staff Writer

Walkon Jerry Coleman was the unsung hero of the Tribe's greatest victory.

In everyone's lifetime, there is one moment which stands out above all others. On the field of play, some get the chance more often than others to achieve a moment of glory. Others get just one.

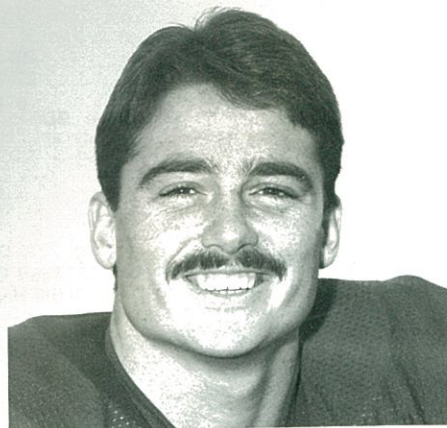

For some of FSU's glittering stars of the past, a chance to shine has been presented before them many times. And many times, they have led Florida State to victory.

This story focuses on former Seminole gridders who have achieved the moment of glory but once. From there they finished their career for the Garnet and Gold in a relatively quiet fashion; they are mentioned only in passing stories about days gone by.

The one-game saga of sophomore center Jerry Coleman during the 1980 season is probably the most dramatic told around Florida State old-time gatherings. "If there was ever one outstanding single performance," says 12th-year assistant coach Jim Gladden. "It would have to be Jerry Coleman's game against Nebraska in 1980." The 18-14 win over the Cornhuskers in Lincoln has been listed by Bobby Bowden as his biggest win at Florida State.

Although most Seminole faithful more than likely remember Paul Piurowski's crunching hit on Nebraska quarterback Jeff Quinn that caused a game-preserving fumble Coleman lived a Cinderella story that day. Just two games before the Nebraska match-up, FSU's two top centers, John Madden and Bob Merson, were injured on successive plays in a 63-7 win over East Carolina. The following week, guard Redus Coggin attempted to fill the position in a 10-9 loss to Miami, the only FSU loss of the regular season. The one-point loss was fueled by the fact that there had been five fumbled snaps and five more bobbled. "I had played with the junior varsity team in Marion, Alabama on Friday night," recalls Coleman, now a sales representative with Roadway Trucking Lines in Ft. Lauderdale. "On Saturday, I watched the team lose in Miami and I said to myself, 'Gosh, I really could have contributed!'"

The Seminole coaching staff must have been thinking along the same lines, because the following week Coleman began working with the first team offense in practice. "Coach George Henshaw came to me and asked if I was ready for use in the Nebraska game," says Coleman. "Of course I told him I was, and that week I worked along with Daryl Kershaw at first team center." Kershaw was a highly-touted freshman who coaches were looking at for future consideration, but the staff felt he did not have enough experience for a game of such magnitude.

Coleman's snapping ability eventually won him the job. Although he admits he was not the best of blockers, he could handle the center exchange without problem. "Since I was a walk-on, I had snapped in drills with Jimmy Jordan, Wally Woodham and Rick Stockstill, and was very used to the exchange," he says.

Even though he was being primed for the big time, Coleman still thought John Madden would get the starting nod. "All during the week they (the coaches) told me that I would play, but I thought John would start even though he was hurt. It came as a total shock to me when we were on the field stretching and the public address announcer said that there was an addition to the program—starting at center #56 Jerry Coleman. Only at that time did I know that I would play."

In his first and only start, Coleman performed flawlessly. In the upset, FSU committed no turnovers and went on to finish the season with six consecutive victories on the way to the Orange Bowl. Coleman considers the Nebraska game the turning point of the season. "With that big win in Nebraska, it gave us even more confidence the next week at home against Pittsburgh. We felt that we were an elite group, going to Nebraska and coming home with a win."

Tempe, Arizona and the Arizona State Sun Devils provided the excitement for two one-game hero stories. In successive seasons, 1983 and 1984, the Seminoles were sparked by off-the-bench performances by quarterbacks who saw the best performance of their careers.

The 1983 contest saw junior Bob Davis, who had thrown but 11 passes in seven prior games, enter the game and direct what has become known as THE DRIVE.

... while Bob Davis also had his day in the sun in Tempe.

Early in the fourth quarter after Kelly Lowery was forced out of the game with a knee injury, Davis took over the Seminole offense and continued the rapid scoring pace. In Davis' first drive, he directed the Seminoles to a TD on a 38-yard screen pass to Rosie Snipes. A two-point conversion put FSU ahead 22-19. ASU marched right back, scoring a touchdown to take a 26-22 lead with slightly over five minutes in the contest. Following two series in which FSU fumbled the ball away and ASU was stopped on three downs, Florida State looked at the end zone 82 yards away with 1:28 remaining and no time outs.

It seems odd that the responsibility would fall on Davis. Before being inserted into the game, quite a discussion had taken place between Bobby Bowden and quarterback coach Mike Kruczek. Bowden wanted to use sophomore Eric Thomas, an option-type quarterback. Kruczek, looking at the situation, disagreed and pushed for Davis, whose dropback style of passing seemed suitable for the immediate need.

THE DRIVE took 10 plays for the Seminoles to complete. Davis completed 5 of 9 passes for 77 yards, including a crucial fourth and five completion to Tom Wheeler. A 10-yard toss to Jessie Hester with six seconds on the clock gave FSU the 29-26 win. Although Davis pulled off the heroic feat, the current assistant football coach at Hephzibah High School in Augusta, Ga. downplays the event. "It was a situation that I had never been in before," he says. "I felt like I was a part of the team being in such a crucial situation. I had a good cast surrounding me and that gave me a great sense of pride because I knew that the players and Mike Kruczek had confidence in me. I had a chance to

This is FSU

Florida State is the University which boasts of such diverse assets as the world's most powerful supercomputer and the greatest all-collegiate show on Earth, the Flying High Circus.

Located in Tallahassee, the capital of Florida, FSU is a public, coeducational university and a senior member of the State University System.

About 23,500 students representing all 50 states and more than 100 foreign countries work toward more than 250 different graduate and undergraduate degrees in the 15 schools and colleges of Florida State. The colleges of arts and sciences, business, communication, education, engineering, home economics, law and social sciences combine with the schools of criminology, library and information studies, music, nursing, social work, theatre and visual arts to make FSU a nationally acclaimed university.

The Florida State campus, located just a few blocks from the state Capitol, is one of the most beautiful in the Southeast. Traditional Gothic-style structures combine with the latest in modern architecture, all brought together by an array of oaks, pines, palms, dogwoods and azaleas. The natural beauty of the 347-acre main campus mirrors the picturesque features of the surrounding North Florida region.

Florida State was founded in 1857 as the Seminary West of the Suwannee River. Name changes over the years included Florida State College and, in 1909, Florida State College for Women. Governor Millard Caldwell signed a bill in 1947 which again made the institution coeducational and named it Florida State University.

Today, Florida State faculty and administrators generate more than $35 million annually in external funding to supplement state sponsorship of research. In addition, almost $13 million in private gifts was raised through the FSU Foundation during the past fiscal year. These contributions from alumni, friends, corporations, the university community and charitable foundations are for the sole benefit of Florida State's academic programs.

The FSU Supercomputer Computations Research Institute has attracted international attention to the University, home of the world's fastest supercomputer. The ETA10 has the capacity to perform 10 billion calculations per second.

The Tandem Van de Graaf-Superconducting Accelerator Laboratory in the Department of Physics houses two powerful atom smashers and has been ranked in the top four in the nation by the National Science Foundation.

The University's location affords excellent research and internship opportunities in government, law and the social sciences. The reputation of Florida State's research programs, the expertise of its more than 1,500 faculty members—including four members of the National Academy of Sciences—and the quality of the graduate students involved in research represent major strengths of the University.

Programs in music, dance and theater at Florida State have earned well-deserved national recognition. The visual and performing arts exhibited and produced on campus offer students and the community a wealth of enrichment opportunities.

Student activities at FSU create an important balance between the classroom experience and the personal life of the individual scholar. Honors programs, student government, intramural sports and more than 200 organizations are available for student involvement.

Students from every academic major have a chance to become stars on the highwire or flying trapeze by participating in the Flying High Circus, the only one of its kind in the nation.

Florida State academic programs extend well beyond Tallahassee. The FSU Marine Laboratory is located on the Gulf of Mexico, 45 miles away. Students participate in professional training programs at the Asolo State Theater in Sarasota and the Burt Reynolds Institute for Theatre Training in Jupiter. The Panama City Campus of Florida State offers upper-level courses which lead to bachelor's and master's degrees. The Center for Professional Development and Public Service, housed in the Florida State Conference Center on the edge of campus, manages educational outreach activities from Pensacola to Miami. In addition, Florida State maintains programs of study in England, Italy, Costa Rica, Switzerland, Yugoslavia, the Panama Canal Zone and even the People's Republic of China.

The physical growth of the University during the Sliger administration is best evidenced by such additions as the new wing of the Rovetta Business Building, the University Union expansion project, the new Paul A.M. Dirac Science Library Building, the Panama City Campus, the Jeffersonian Village Green project at the College of Law and the new building for the FAMU/FSU College of Engineering, now under construction.

Florida State is setting the pace as higher education in Florida prepares to enter the 21st century. And President Sliger takes pride not only in the academic programs and facilities of the University, but also in the people—students, faculty, alumni, administrators and staff—who make Florida State a successful monument to learning.

Bernie Sliger
University President

Dr. Bernard Sliger has served as the 10th president of Florida State University since February 7, 1977, following a six-month stint as the University's interim president. In 1987 he is celebrating the end of his first decade of leadership.

After he joined the administration in 1972 as executive vice president, he assumed the additional duties of chief academic officer, and further served as director of the University's London Study Center during the fall quarter, 1975.

Sliger, a native of Trout Creek, Mi., was born Sept. 30, 1924. He holds three degrees, the B.A. ('49), M.A. ('50) and Ph.D. ('55), from Michigan State University, all in economics. Sliger has taught at Florida State, Michigan State, Louisiana State and at Southern University in Baton Rouge, La.

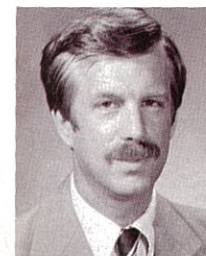

Sliger began his educational career as an instructor in Michigan's Interior Township Schools in 1947. Prior to joining Florida State, he worked for 19 years as a professor and administrator at Louisiana State University. During that time, he served LSU as head of the economics department, member and chairman of the graduate council, dean of academic affairs and vice chancellor. In 1969, he organized the Louisiana Coordinating Council for Higher Education, which is similar to the Florida Board of Regents, and became its executive director.

As president at Florida State, Sliger is involved in athletics. He is a member of the NCAA's Presidents Commission and is one of 22 chief executive officers elected to that body from Division I schools. He began his four-year term in January of this year.

Sliger and his wife, Greta, have four children.

Faculty Athletic Committee Chairman

A professor of Law at Florida State University since 1967, Charles W. Ehrhardt is beginning his fourth year as chairman of the FSU Athletic Committee.

Ehrhardt served on the committee from 1969 to 71, and was reappointed to the board in 1983, becoming Florida State's representative to the NCAA with the appointment.

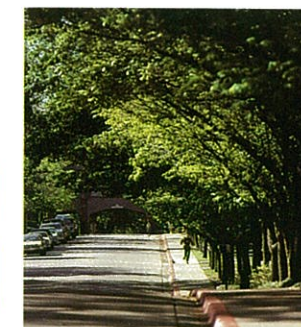

A native of Elkader, Iowa, Ehrhardt received a bachelor's degree from Iowa State University in 1962. Two years later he earned his law degree from the University of Iowa and went on to become an Assistant United States Attorney in that state before coming to Tallahassee.

A widely-respected expert in the field of Evidence, Ehrhardt holds the Florida State position as the Ladd Professor of Evidence. He wrote the Florida Evidence Code, passed by the state legislature in 1976, which deals with the admissibility of evidence.

From 1984-86, he was president of the Metro Conference which made him the league's chief representative to the NCAA. He is still active in conference administration, serving on the editorial committee.

C.W. "Hootie" Ingram

Athletic Director

Cecil Ingram, known to his friends and associates as "Hootie," has headed Florida State's athletic department for the past seven years. He came to FSU in January of 1981 after eight years with the Southeastern Conference.

Upon arriving in Tallahassee, Ingram initiated a $10-million-dollar building program for athletic facilities. Moore Athletic Center, which houses administrative, coaching and ticket personnel, was planned, built and completed under Ingram's leadership.

Dick Howser Stadium, second to none in the South, was completed during Ingram's second year at FSU, while Doak Campbell Stadium, the Bim Stults Aquatic Center and Mike Long Track were all renovated.

Ingram is in his second year of a four-year term on the prestigious NCAA Council. As an elected member of that body, he is one of 22 representatives from Division I schools. Ingram is also a member of the College Football Association (CFA) television committee, chairman of the NCAA nominating committee and chairman of the major independents.

A native of Tuscaloosa, Ala., Ingram played football for the hometown Crimson Tide from 1951 to 1954. He was named all-SEC as a sophomore when he led the nation in pass interceptions. He was a member of both the 1953 Orange and 1954 Cotton Bowl squads, and also lettered for the Alabama baseball team as an infielder.

After graduation and an Army stint, Ingram began his coaching career in 1956 as an assistant football coach at Bradenton (Fla.) Manatee High School. The next year, he became head coach at Tuscaloosa Brookwood High School for three years.

Athletic Director Hootie Ingram and his wife Toni

Ingram moved into the college coaching arena in 1960 as an assistant at Wake Forest. He also made coaching stops at Virginia Tech, Georgia and Arkansas before accepting the head coach's job at Clemson in 1970, the only collegiate head coaching job he held. Three years after taking the position, Ingram left Clemson to join the SEC as assistant commissioner.

During his eight-year tenure with the conference, his duties included supervision of football and basketball officials, rules interpretations and eligibility. After five years as assistant commissioner, he was named associate commissioner in 1978.

Ingram and his wife, Toni, have a son and two daughters.

Head Coach Bobby Bowden

It Began With Bobby

By Wayne Hogan

Put all the rumors to rest and let's play football. Bobby Bowden looks much better in garnet and gold than any other colors anyway.

It seems like a never-ending cycle. Bowden steers his Florida State team to another successful season and into a bowl game and the rumors start to fly. And why not? Can any coach in America claim the success on the field, coupled with the wit, charm and wholesomeness of a Bobby Bowden? Probably not.

It just stands to reason that Bowden's name comes up almost anytime there is a coaching job available. For 11 years now Bowden has been winning football games and friends at Florida State. And for 11 years he's been telling all of these would-be suitors that he really kind of likes it at good Ole FSU. This time, I think he's made his point.

Recently, the most coveted of all coaching jobs on Bowden's list—Alabama—came open. Being a Birmingham native and growing up in the land of red elephants, Bowden seemed a perfect choice to some. And what better circumstance could there be? Bowden's Seminoles just happened to be making their fifth consecutive bowl appearance—where else—Birmingham's All-American Bowl.

For a few days the rumors were rampant. Unofficially, Bowden was contacted by dozens of his long-time Alabama buddies about the job. Things got so desperate that some media outlets reported that the deal was cut for Bobby to move to Tuscaloosa.

But in truth, any possibility of a Bowden move was squelched by none other than Bowden himself.

"I was driving back to Tallahassee from Birmingham with Ann (Bowden's wife of 38 years)," says the coach, "and we just decided the heck with it—we want to stay at Florida State."

Bowden pulled into his driveway that night of January 2, 1987 to find a front yard full of writers and TV cameras. He stepped from his car and said he was staying in Tallahassee . . . period.

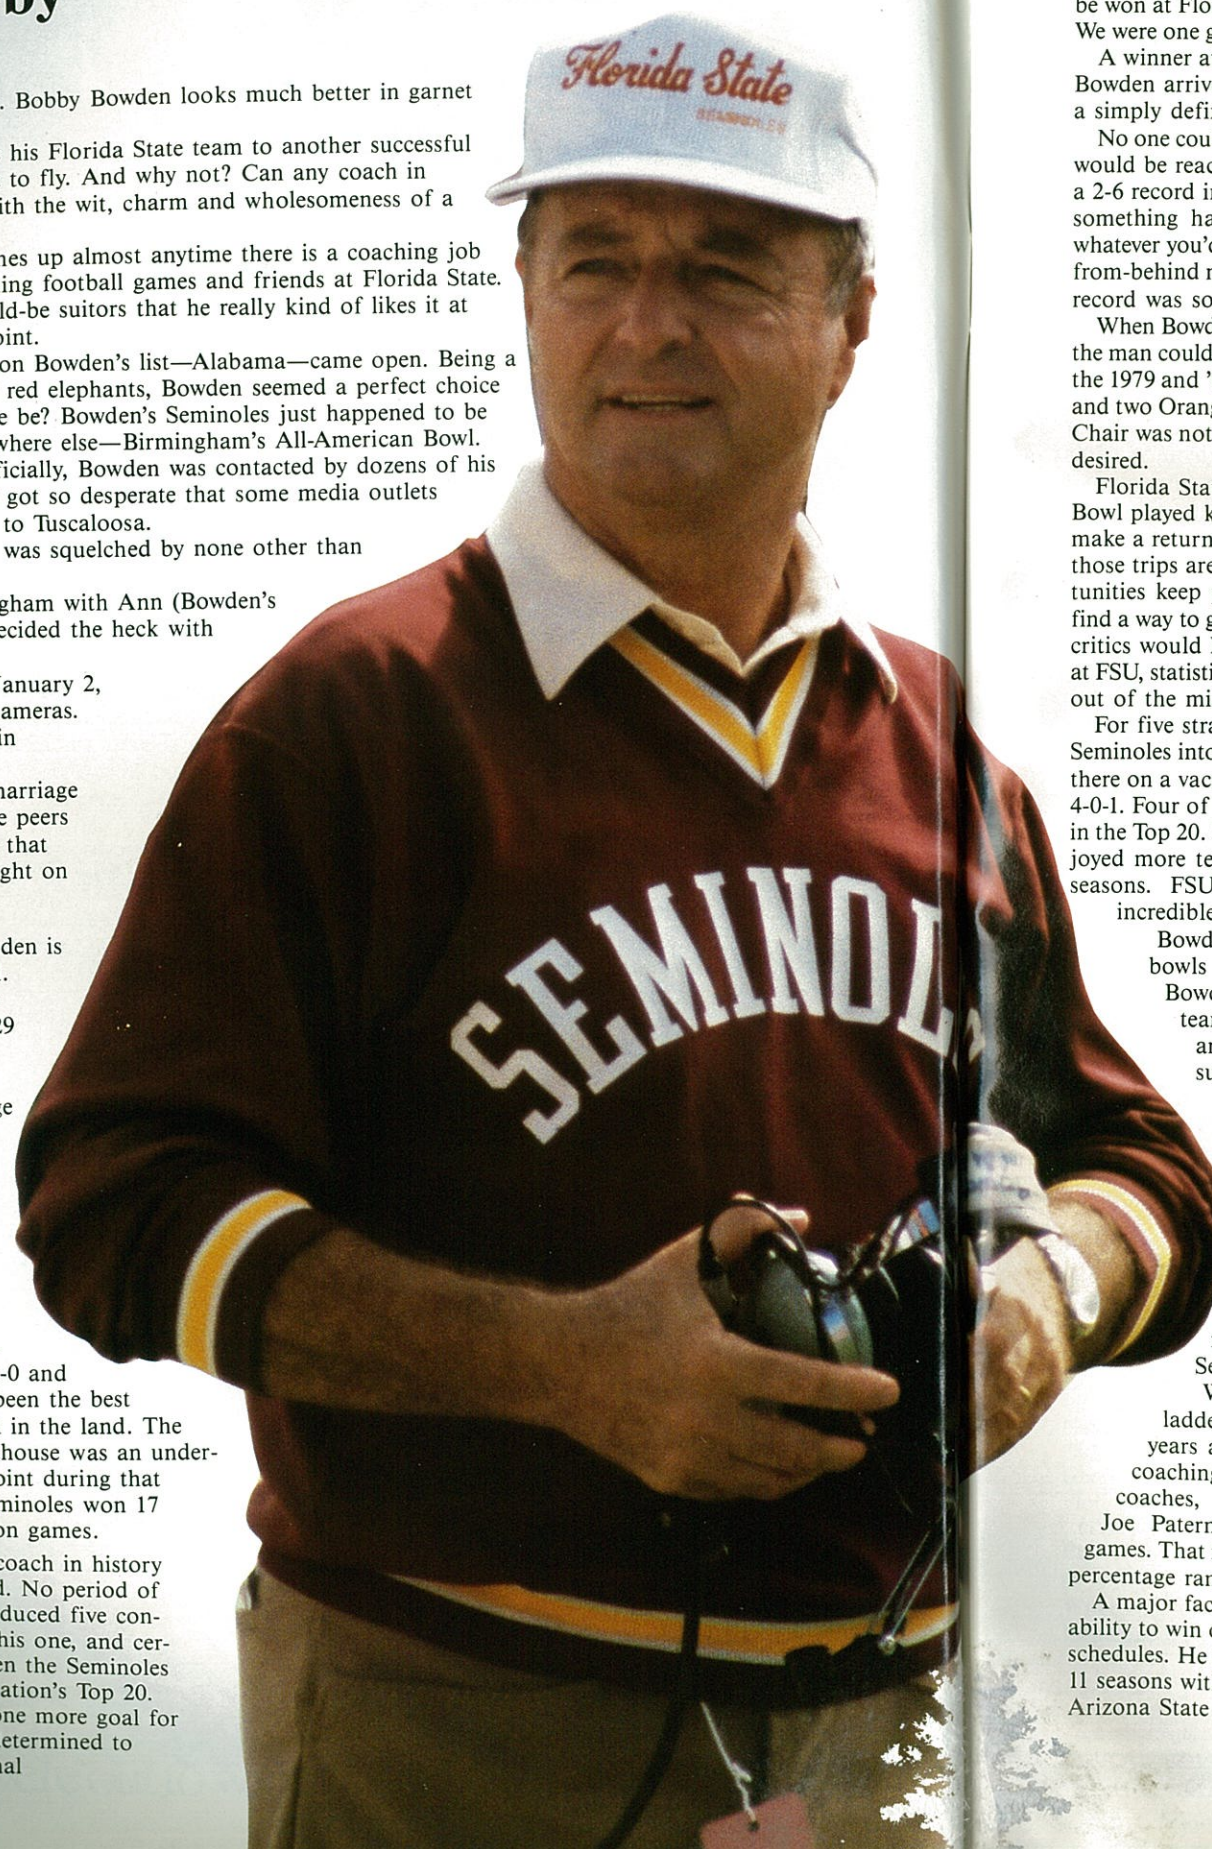

Bowden once said that he and FSU were in a marriage and that no man would put it asunder. Now as he peers at his 12th Seminole season, at age 57, it appears that his remark was just like all other Bowdenisms. Right on target.

In many ways Bowden is Florida State football. He took the program from the ashes of 4-29 over three previous seasons to the very pinnacle of the college football heap. Remember that Florida State was 0-11 and perhaps the worst college team in the land in 1973, and three years into the Bowden era—1979—Florida State went 11-0 and may very well have been the best college football team in the land. The outhouse to the penthouse was an understatement. At one point during that stretch Bowden's Seminoles won 17 straight regular-season games.

No Florida State coach in history can match his record. No period of FSU history has produced five consecutive bowls like this one, and certainly no era has seen the Seminoles consistently in the nation's Top 20. There is really but one more goal for the man and he is determined to reach it. The National Championship.

"I honestly believe that the national championship can and will be won at Florida State University," he said. "The resources are here. We were one game from that goal in 1979 and '80. We will be back?"

A winner at both of his previous coaching jobs, Bowden arrived at Florida State in 1976. He had a simply defined task: "Save the program."

No one could have ever predicted the heights that would be reached. His first FSU team trudged to a 2-6 record in its first eight games. But suddenly something happened. Call it Bowden magic or whatever you'd like. There were three straight come-from-behind miracle wins in 1976 and the final 5-6 record was something to celebrate.

When Bowden's second FSU team won 10 games, the man could have been elected mayor. By the time the 1979 and '80 teams had reeled off a 21-3 record and two Orange Bowl appearances, the Governor's Chair was not out of the question if Bobby had so desired.

Florida State has twice since that 1981 Orange Bowl played key regular-season games to perhaps make a return trip, and twice come up short. But those trips are precious and as long as the opportunities keep presenting themselves, Bowden will find a way to get back. While some of the armchair critics would have you believe that times are lean at FSU, statistics prove that those thoughts are born out of the minds of spoiled brats.

For five straight years Bowden has directed the Seminoles into a bowl. And his teams don't just go there on a vacation. In the five bowl trips they are 4-0-1. Four of five years Florida State has finished in the Top 20. Perhaps no team in America has enjoyed more television exposure over the last five seasons. FSU has appeared on the tube an incredible 20 times since 1982.

Bowden's success and style draws the attention of the bowls and networks. One bowl scout said: "Bobby Bowden makes Florida State one of the most attractive teams in the country. I don't care where your allegiances are, everybody loves to see Bobby's team play. I'm not sure there is a more exciting team in America."

Bowden has built a reputation as a wide-open offensive coach. Trickery and deception are a fact of life for a Bowden team. Nothing is out of the question from any spot on the field.

Last season Bowden stunned a national TV audience and the nation's No. 1 team when he called for a cross-field lateral on a kickoff return at Miami. The Seminoles appeared to be slowly falling out of the game, but the trickery resulted in a 90-yard touchdown play that kept the Seminoles in the battle. Vintage Bobby Bowden.

With any luck Bowden will continue to move up the ladder of the nation's most successful coaches. In 11 years at FSU, Bowden is 90-36-3 (.709). His 21-year head coaching record now stands at 163-68-3. Among active coaches, only Michigan's Bo Schembechler, Penn State's Joe Paterno and Georgia's Vince Dooley have won more games. That is pretty good company. Bowden's .703 career winning percentage ranks eighth among all active head coaches.

A major factor in Bowden's success at FSU has been an uncanny ability to win on the road against one of the nation's toughest road schedules. He is 41-24-2 away from Doak Campbell Stadium in his 11 seasons with 11 of those wins coming at LSU (4), Nebraska (2), Arizona State (2), Ohio State (2) and Notre Dame (1).

Bowden's accomplishments have been recognized many times. Twice he has been named National Coach of the Year. In 1980 he was selected for the prestigious Bobby Dodd Coach of the Year Award. He has been inducted into both the Florida and Alabama Halls of Fame.

Bowden's coaching career actually began in his hometown of Birmingham when he was called to coach his alma mater Samford University in 1959. Bowden had earned a degree there in 1953 and gone on to get a master's from Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee.

In four seasons at Samford he compiled a 31-6 record and caught the eye of then-FSU head coach Bill Peterson. Bowden coached the FSU receivers (including All-American Fred Biletnikoff) in 1963 and '64.

In 1965 he accepted a position as the offensive coordinator under Jim Carlen at West Virginia and succeeded Carlen as the Mountaineer head coach in 1970. In six seasons at WVU, Bowden went 42-26 and capped off his stint there in 1975 with a 9-3 season and a Peach Bowl championship.

Bowden returned to Tallahassee in January of 1976 after a slip on the West Virginia ice convinced him it was time to return to his native South.

In addition to his two national Coach of the Year awards, Bowden was twice named Southern Independent Coach of the Year. He is married to the former Ann Estock of Birmingham and has six children.

Three of his sons are in the coaching business; as well as his son-in-law. Terry is head coach at Samford while son Jeff and son-in-law Jack Hines are assistants on Terry's staff. Tommy Bowden is the receiver coach at Alabama.

They Glitter and They're Gold

By Chris Sears, Tribe Staff Writer

The Garnet and Gold Girls wished the team success before it departed for East Carolina.

It was a story that not even Sports Illustrated could resist. The story, "The Fall Roundup," detailed the life of a college football hostess. It seems that writer Alexander Woolf heard about Florida State's Garnet and Gold Girl's new uniforms that were designed by actresses Loni Anderson's and Cybil Shepherd's personal designer.

"We are in recruiting and want to put our best foot forward," sponsor Sue Hall says. "We like for our girls to look neat and classy and that is what we have achieved with our new uniforms."

"The article was a perfect depiction of the college hostess," Jennifer Fitzgerald, president of the Garnet and Gold Girls says. "I think our new uniforms are beautiful!"

The new uniforms, which were paid for by Burt Reynolds, will be worn for the first time tonight by the Garnet and Gold Girls. The outfits, which came from factories from around the country, were designed by Robert Turturice. Each of the 47 girls will be dressed in a garnet sweater vest and matching skirt.

"This year we tried to buy a new outfit," Hall says. "Some of the girls wrote Burt Reynolds to sponsor us."

Hall said she tried to discourage the girls from approaching Reynolds because he already had donated a wealth of money to the University. Little did Hall know what Reynolds' response would be. "Burt and Loni (Anderson) really wanted to do it," Hall says. "I was flabbergasted."

"We had no idea that he would do it," Fitzgerald says. "I feel privileged that such a distinguished alumnist would help in making us look like sophisticated college women."

Basically, the Garnet and Gold Girls are just that—sophisticated college women who act as hostesses to visitors to Florida State's athletic department. The group, which consists of 47 girls, meets every Tuesday night to plan the week's activities. Each member is assigned to one of three committees which performs tasks as diverse as baking cookies for players on their birthdays or planning sendoffs for the team on road trips.

"We try to show our spirit for the team," Fitzgerald says. "We don't want to forget about the players once they are here."

But the Garnet and Gold Girls' main duty takes place on game days. It is on Saturday that Florida State's athletic department opens up its doors to nearly 100 high school athletes who take unofficial visits to a Seminole home game. Each of the visitors draws a Garnet and Gold girl who shows the player around the facilities and make him feel at home.

"These kids are scared when they get here," Hall says. "The whole situation can be intimidating."

The girls are matched with the prospective players according to common interests, hometown or major. Often times a player becomes friends with his hostess and is likely to tell her his thoughts of Florida State.

"They'll tell them things that they won't tell the coaches," Hall says. "The coaches will ask them (the Garnet and Gold Girls) which school a player has visited."

"We're just as excited as the coach is when a player decides to go to Florida State," Fitzgerald says. "You get attached to the guys you recruit. Some are shy; some aren't. You get a different experience everytime."

"A lot of players will ask for the same girl they met during the season when they take an official visit," Hall says.

If a player decides on Florida State, chances are he will remain friends with the Garnet and Gold Girl who recruited him. Take freshman quarterback Brad Johnson, as an example, a player who Fitzgerald helped recruit. Throughout the course of the recruiting process last season, Fitzgerald wrote several letters to Johnson and became friends with his family. "Before the first game, Brad's mom saw me in the atrium and came up and gave me a big hug," Fitzgerald says. "It was a great experience."

"You really do get to meet a lot of players," Darnette Holbert, a second-year Garnet and Gold Girl says. "Last year I helped to recruit Paul Moore. It was a neat experience for him to come to Florida State."

The FSU coaching staff is quick to point out the efforts of the Garnet and Gold Girls in recruiting. The group's importance has taken on even greater significance because of the NCAA's recent ruling that forbids booster contact with high school athletes. That ruling only allows the coaching staff and the hostess group to have contact with recruits. At a recent luncheon to kick off the season, recruiting coordinator Brad Scott stood up. "Several of the Garnet and Gold Girls who help us with recruiting are here today," Scott said. "They help us a great deal with recruiting. Let's give them a hand!"

One would think that with all the work a Garnet and Gold Girl puts in during the week that few women would be interested in joining. This is not the case. "I get a big thrill working as a Garnet and Gold Girl," Fitzgerald says. "I feel like part of the program. It's what keeps me going!"

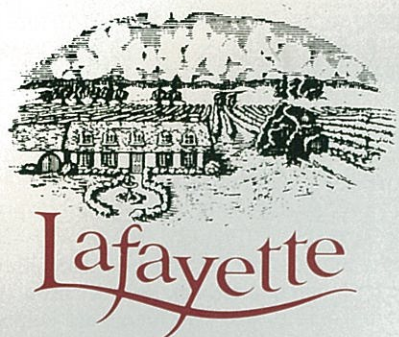

A closer look at the numbers points out the interest in the program. Last spring close to 175 women signed up for just 17 openings. Hall, along with Scott, two coaches' wives, one other coach and two senior members judged the applicants to narrow the field.

Hall, who is extremely busy during the day with her job as head coach Bobby Bowden's secretary, has just one problem as the Garnet and Gold Girl's sponsor—the phone calls. "I can't tell you the number of phone calls I get from people wanting to sign up to become a Golden Girl," Hall says. "I have to tell them that they have the wrong group." Although the Golden Girls are a totally separate group, renowned for their dance routines at Seminole basketball games, it really doesn't bother Fitzgerald to be confused with the Golden Girls.

"People always confuse us," she says. "I'm really not offended. They look so good on their poster. I'm flattered!"

Through their determined effort, the Garnet and Gold Girls are making their own identity known; first to appear in a nationwide publication like Sports Illustrated and now to use the services of a famous Hollywood designer. It's enough to make even Burt Reynolds proud.

Pat Carter: A Nice Catch for FSU

By Anne Bunker, Tribe Staff Writer

He stands 6-5 and weighs 258 lbs, but that does not begin to describe Pat Carter. From listening to his friends and coaches, one would think he was a boy scout rather than one of the best tight ends in the country.

Three years ago, Pat Carter reached his first goal in a line of many when he received a scholarship to play football at Florida State. He did not have high expectations about playing college football, but he had enough determination to help the team in any way he could. Since then, Carter has not only contributed to the team on the field, but has become a leader off the field as well.

In 1984, Carter came to FSU with one thing in mind. "I just wanted to play football. I wanted to contribute to the team," he says. "I was a little nervous about college ball at first. The guys were bigger and stronger and I couldn't get away with as much as I could in high school."

By the end of his freshman year, Carter had started six games for the Seminoles. His 13 catches for 175 yards represented the top season in FSU history enjoyed by a freshman tight end. He received his first collegiate honor when he was named the most improved player on the FSU offense.

In 1985, Pat picked up where he left off. He started nine of the team's 11 regular-season games and caught 14 passes for 154 yards and three TDs. His most impressive performance came in a Tribe Gator Bowl victory where he caught five passes for 81 yards.

By his junior season, word had spread about Carter's blocking prowess. He provided stability for a young offensive line while receiving his first recognition outside of Tallahassee. The sportswriters in the South took notice of his growing reputation among pro scouts and named him to the first team of the All-South Independent squad. Associated Press also tabbed him as an honorable mention selection on its national

All-American squad despite catching only 14 passes in FSU's wide receiver-oriented passing game.

In 1987, Carter is being counted on to dominate his position. In the spring, coaches toyed with the idea of moving him inside to a tackle or guard slot to shore up a lack of depth among an inexperienced group of linemen. But with the combination of Carter's devastating blocking and fine hands, head coach Bobby Bowden decided he wanted his two-fold weapon at tight end. Bowden also promised to throw more to his tight end; Carter's three catches for 35 yards in the home opener vs. Texas Tech represented just under a fourth of his catches for the entire '86 season.

Fellow senior Derek Schmidt, who played at Sarasota's Riverview High School with Carter, has seen some changes in Carter's game over the past few years. Says Schmidt, "I don't think he had the hands that he has now. His catching ability seems to have improved tremendously." What has not changed is his attitude toward playing football. "He has always been a dedicated player who has done everything he can to win," says Schmidt.

Carter exemplifies the type of student athlete that recruiting coordinator and tight end coach Brad Scott looks to bring into the Florida State program. "He's popular and well-liked," says Scott. "Over the past few years, he has earned the respect of the other players. He is a team player, he plays hard on the field and conducts himself as a gentleman off the field." Scott adds that his six-year-old son idolizes Carter, a choice Scott couldn't be happier about.

Pat's teammates have the same admiration for him as his coaches do. Reggie Johnson, a redshirt freshman tight end, is one who will benefit from two years of tutoring under Carter. "Playing behind Pat is a learning experience," he says. "I try to pick up on some of his techniques. Pat has the desire and hustle to win—he's a great motivator for the team."

Cornerback Eric Williams, one of Pat's best friends, also has enormous respect for his teammate. "He wants the most out of everything," Williams says, "and he wants the most out of football and school. He always works hard, whether it is practice or Saturday night."

It is because of that respect that Carter is assuming another role on the Seminole team this fall: leadership. He was recently chosen to be a team captain by a vote of his teammates. Although not an outspoken person, he is proving to be an effective leader both on the field and off.

While Carter lets others do the talking about his being one of the top tight ends in the country, he realizes he will probably be drafted into the NFL. "I would want to play in a city where the weather is fairly warm and where I'll get a chance to play every day," he says, mentioning Atlanta where former team-

'87 Volleyball Season Is Underway

By Anne Bunker, Tribe Staff Writer

Reynaud is in her 12th year at FSU.

Julie Todd is the senior leader of a young team.

Nancy Gaspadarek handles the setting duties.

"To have a successful team, you can't have a weak spot," says head coach Cecile Reynaud. This year's volleyball team appears to be a team without many weak spots.

Despite losing all but four players from last year's Metro Conference championship team, Reynaud already feels good about this year. "We had a big recruiting year and the freshmen are responding well to college ball," Reynaud says.

Reynaud has good reason to be excited about the volleyball season that is underway. Her returning players are experienced, giving the young team a stabilizing effect.

It is nearly impossible to isolate two or three players who stand out from the rest of the team; instead there are seven key players who compose a young but talented Florida State team.

Florida State may not have a weak link this season, but it definitely has a strong one. Senior Julie Todd is the co-captain and obvious leader on the court. She does not mind being the only senior on the team and realizes the majority of leadership is falling to her. "I've never been a real loud person, but this year I feel like the team needs some leadership," Todd says. Her statistics on the court support her leadership role. In the season opening tournament, Todd led the team in kills (17), total attacks (46), hitting percentage (95%), and blocking assists (6). She is a goal-oriented athlete. Most of the freshmen may not know about all the post-season tournaments," Todd says. "I'd really like to win the Metro Championship and play in the NCAA playoffs." Todd thinks that the team has the talent to get that far, even though it is young. "It seems like we've been playing together for a couple of years," Todd says. "I feel very comfortable playing with them."

Reynaud hopes a bright end to this year's season is waiting in the form of another Metro Conference championship.

Helping Todd out with the leadership role is Nancy Gaspadarek, who returns as a sophomore and co-captain. Gaspadarek handles the majority of the setting duties. Although the position is sometimes overlooked, good setting is the key to a great offense.

Deanne Kaleta is the only junior on the team and leads the team in blocking. She also plays an important part in the offense, registering a significant percentage of the squad's kills in each game.

Sophomore Maria Magoulas is the squad's defensive specialist. Not to be overlooked is her strong serving ability.

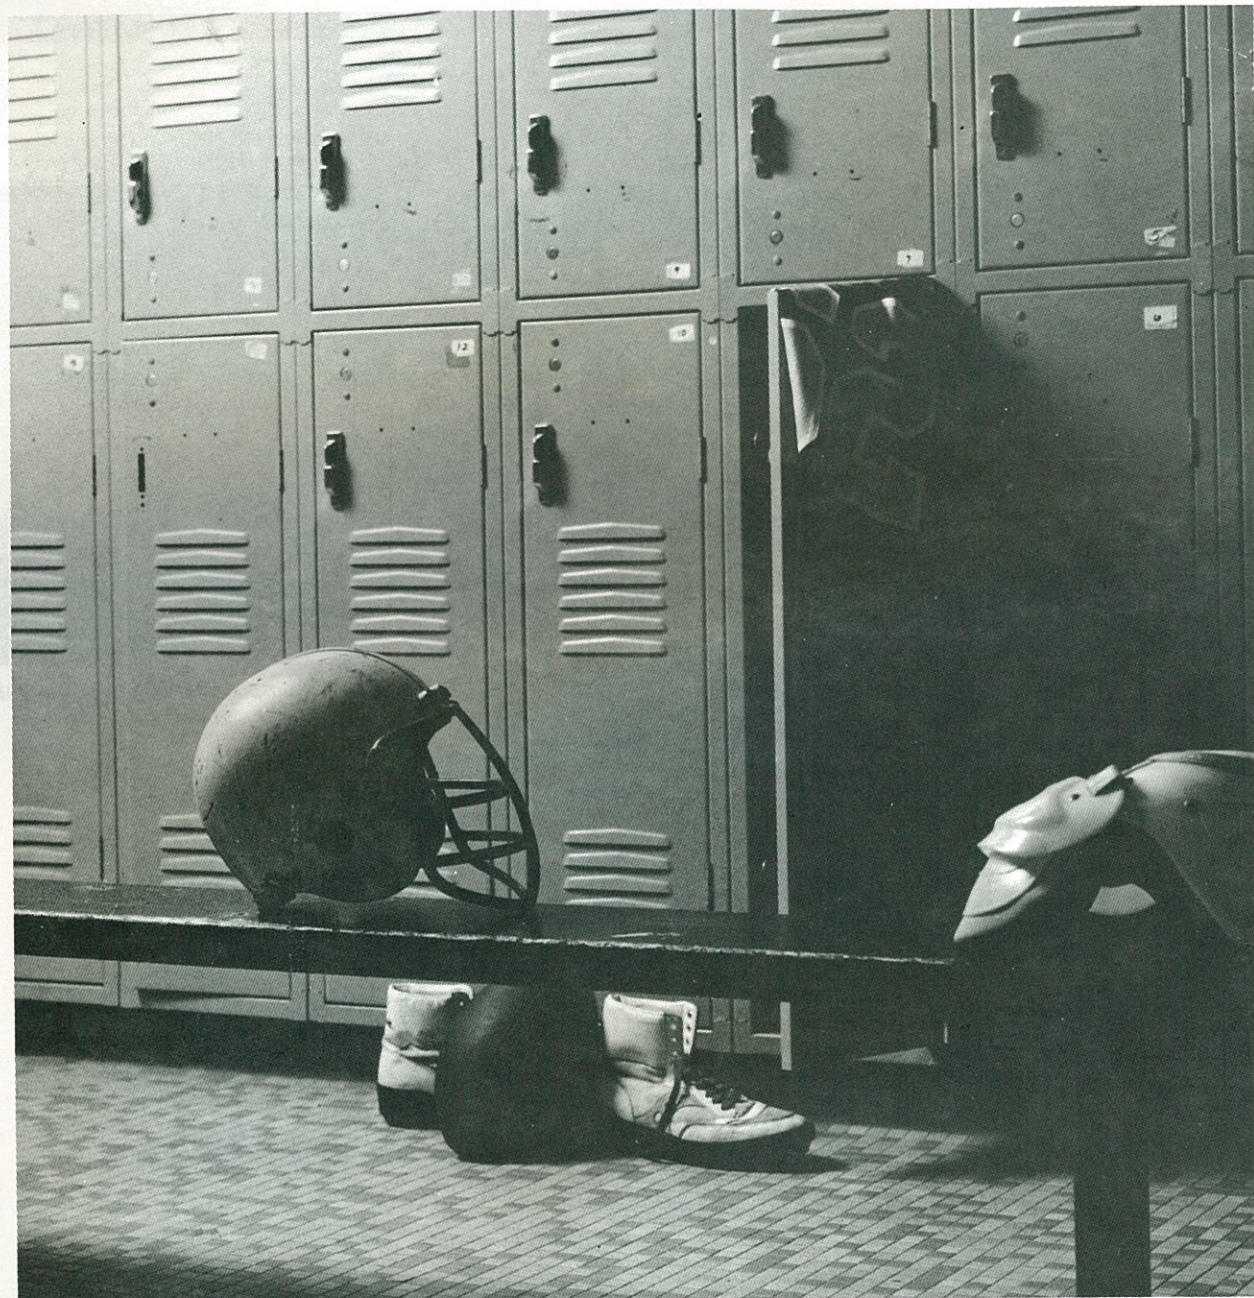

Freshmen Maggie Philgence is perhaps the most intimidating player. She possesses a 30-inch vertical leap which enables her to place her hits effectively.

Marybeth Sutcliffe may be the most mature and experienced of the freshmen. She participated in tournaments across the country in high school and brings that experience to FSU.

Reynaud expects other players to come off the bench and contribute throughout the season. Shannon Kelly alternates with Magoulas to provide another strong hitter on the front row. Jennifer Marrafino will help Gaspadarek with the setting responsibilities and Gabrielle Reece at 6-3 will contribute to the offensive game. Marci Rard and Debbie Meyer will also contribute to Florida State's strong offense.

Reynaud hopes a bright end to this year's season is waiting in the form of another Metro Conference championship. She got a preview of what her team could accomplish when it hosted the Converse Classic two weeks ago. The Lady Seminoles defeated Georgia for the first time in five meetings 16-14, 15-8, 15-11. If the Georgia match is a sign of things to come, Reynaud can expect some outstanding performances from her young team. (See volleyball schedule, page 94)

Bob Goin Works Behind the Scenes

Once a Coach, Not Always a Coach

By Rob Wilson, Tribe Staff Writer

The old saying goes "behind every successful man, there is a woman." After polling most of Florida State's coaches and administrators, the quote should be adapted: "Behind every successful program, there is a dedicated worker!" In the case of the Seminoles, that man is Bob Goin.

Goin serves as associate athletic director at Florida State, a position he has held for the past six years, and a position not often understood or appreciated by those outside the athletic family.

Goin's duties, by his own definition, surround the day-to-day operation of the FSU athletic department. The task is as difficult as it appears. The Seminoles field 18 sports and carry the NCAA maximum number of scholarship athletes. It is not difficult to imagine how complicated that can get.

The first thing that comes to mind when one thinks about trying to organize a department that diversified is that the man in charge better be organized. Bob Goin certainly fits that bill.

"He's a note taker," says Associate Sports Information Director Lisa Franson. "A lot of us will see something wrong and say we should improve it and it slips our memory. Bob has extensive files. When he sees something that needs to be changed or noted, he goes right to the files and writes it down. Then the next day, week, or season, he has the information in front of him. He rarely makes a mistake twice."

His background is one reason that he has enjoyed the success he has at Florida State. Goin, who joined the FSU family in July of 1981, came to Tallahassee after serving as athletic director of California (Pa.) State College. He was credited with expanding the athletic department and forming the booster club, radio network and athletic scholarship fund.

Prior to taking the California post, Goin was assistant athletic director at West Virginia from 1976-79. He spearheaded several expansion projects at WVU, including construction of a new stadium and athletic facility.

Between 1960 and 1976, he held a variety of positions at his alma mater Bethany (W. Va.) College including coaching assignments in football, basketball and baseball. Goin was associate professor and chairman of the physical education department and athletics from 1972 to 1976, and coached Bethany football teams from 1963 to 1972.

Goin's Bethany teams won numerous championships and he was awarded several individual awards, including Tri-State Small College Coach of the Year, Pittsburgh and Ohio Dapper Dan awards and the Morgantown Touchdown Club award.

It seems that Goin has left his coaching days behind, or so he would have you believe. He still runs an annual summer football camp in Pennsylvania for two weeks, but the other 50 weeks of the year he is pure administrator.

"My skills are really tuned to athletic administration now," says Goin, a native of Penn Hills, Pa. "Fifteen years ago I was coaching and had different priorities. Hopefully, that has made me more sensitive to the needs and pressures of all our coaches. I don't give in to just any whim they have, but I do know where they are coming from."

His diversified background and considerable experience have not only made Goin one of the most sought-after administrators in college athletics, but it has also given him

The old coach in Goin is alive during Seminole games when the sidelines is a familiar place to locate him.

But during the week, his role as an administrator is where his value lies with Florida State.

an educated voice when evaluating the state of intercollegiate athletics.

"Most of the change in athletics has come at the Division I level," says Goin. "But everywhere, at every level, we discuss things that we didn't really consider 15 years ago. Nowadays, we discuss and worry about our athletes being influenced by alcoholism, drug abuse, agents, those kinds of things. We never even addressed those issues a few years ago."

"I may be on the other side of the issue of where athletics is now," he continues, "but I really believe that intercollegiate athletics is in great shape. The CEOs and athletic directors across the nation are returning academics to a priority and treating the total student-athlete and I think that our sensitivity to these issues is the key to the future."

"One of the big improvements has been in the direction of athletic programs. We are very fortunate to have someone of the caliber and perception of Hootie Ingram at Florida State. People with great expertise are running athletic programs and not just the old coach who didn't want to coach anymore."

Asked about whether the old coach in Goin ever comes out, athletic director Ingram was quick to agree.

"I'd be disappointed if some of his coaching philosophy and technique didn't come out," says Ingram who has worked with Goin for the past six years. "To be frank, that is one of the reasons I hired him. I'm not saying that you cannot or are not successful in administration if you haven't coached, but it does help to understand the coaches' needs."

"Bob is the guy who really makes things tick here," continues Ingram. "He puts all our plans in motion. He is a tireless worker who operates on a 25-hour-a-day clock."

"Our philosophies are very similar and we enjoy a great working relationship. We both feel that it has been important to make our coaches and staff as aware and knowledgeable of our goals and standards as he and I are."

"There is something about Bob that is contagious. He does things by example and others follow his lead. It is hard to be around a guy like Bob and not do your best work."

Florida State has enjoyed some of its most explosive growth under the direction of this administration and a great deal of the credit must go to the leadership of Ingram and Goin.

"Since I have been at Florida State we have had some brick and mortar changes that have been very good for the University," says Goin. "But the most important advances have been made in four areas."

"The most important fact is that all our coaches are aware of the importance of every athlete getting a degree. We have stressed that

From the Memphis State Sidelines

By Frank Bertelt

Marlon Brown (#53), shown here trying to block a kick, was responsible for knocking Danny McManus out of action in 1985. Brown was injured himself a year ago and sat out the '86 season.

The Memphis State football program is getting excited! After a 1-10 campaign last year, the Tigers have already equalled their win total from 1986 after only their first game this year.

The real excitement began two weeks ago when the Tigers upset potential national power Ole Miss, 16-10, before a packed crowd of 64,187 at the recently-renovated Liberty Bowl Memorial Stadium. The highlight of that game was a goal-line stand in the final two minutes of the contest.

Of course, the goal-line stand is one of the most adrenaline-pumping and character-building phenomena in football. It powered the likes of the San Francisco 49ers and the New York Giants to victories in the Super Bowl. The credit for the win must mainly go to the defense, led by Damon Young's 16 tackles. He also made two crucial stops in that final stand to secure the win. On the year, Young has 26 tackles, 19 of them solo stops, which leads the team.

However, the key to MSU's success must lie in offensive control. In the first half this year against Ole Miss and Vanderbilt, Memphis State did not turn the ball over, and ran a ball-hogging, clock-controlling offense that denied the opposition a chance to put up a lot of points. The opposite proved the downfall in the second half last week at Vanderbilt, when the offense turned the ball over five times, were outscored 27-0 and eventually lost the game, 27-17. The main reason that the MSU defense allowed 102 yards more than it did in week one against Ole Miss is that it had to stay out on the field much longer with the five turnovers in the second half.

The Tigers jumped out to a 17-0 halftime lead with that same ball-controlling style they exhibited against Ole Miss. In that game, Memphis State captured the early lead, 10-0, let the Rebels back into the game, and held on in the last two minutes for the victory. Last week, however, proved to be different with the Commodores rallying for 20 points in the decisive fourth quarter. Scoring for MSU were backs Wayne Pryor and John Norman as well as sophomore placekicker Johnny Butler. Pryor's and Norman's runs were both from a yard out and Butler's field goal was from 46 yards away. Butler is now four-for-four in field goal attempts this year as he hit from 27, 31, 41 and 46 yards in 1987. The Tigers have averaged 188.0 yards rushing per game in the prior two contests and are led individually by sophomore Gerald White with 152 yards. White rushed for 100 yards on 19 carries last week. Pryor ranks second on the team with 110 yards, compiling 66 of them on 19 rushes last week.

In the air, Memphis State is led by redshirt freshman Rusty Trail. Trail started the first two games for MSU but is only 3-13 for 15 yards. Andy Whitwell, the "two-minute passer," came in against Vanderbilt and threw quite effectively, completing 6 of 11 for 70 yards. However, Whitwell came in late and was forced to gamble with some deep passes, and two were intercepted. The Tigers have averaged only 48.5 yards passing per game.

In getting ready for Florida State, the defense has worked hard on stopping the running game of sophomore Sammie Smith, who rushed for 244 yards last week against East Carolina. While the Seminoles have averaged 42.0 points per game, the Tiger defense has only yielded an average of 18.5 points.

Today's Memphis State-Florida State game marks the 16th meeting between the two schools, as the series is tied at 7-7-1. The Seminoles won the last meeting in 1985, 19-10, coming back from a 10-0 deficit. This game should be equally exciting if both teams can avoid the turnover.

Frank Bertelt is a student assistant in the Memphis State Sports Information Office.

EMINENT SCHOLAR CHAIR

In an attempt to promote greater scholastic interest in state assisted universities, the Florida Legislature created the Eminent Scholar Chair Program in 1979 to add distinguished professors to university faculties and to stimulate private contributions to public university programs.

A private contribution of $600,000, either as a single gift or a number of gifts in combination, is matched by the State of Florida with $400,000 to create a $1 million Eminent Scholar Endowed Fund. The income from that fund is used to support, in perpetuity, the scholarship activities of an Eminent Scholar.

Those fully funded chairs at Florida State University include:

The Burt Reynolds Chair in Regional and Professional Theatre	The Mack and Effie Campbell Tyner Chair in Home Economics
The Maximilian E. and Marion O. Hoffman Chair in Theatre	The Edward Ball Chair in International Law
The Mildred and Claude Pepper Chair in Social Gerontology	The Bernard F. Sliger Chair in Economic Education
The Wiley and Lucilla Housewright Chair in Music	The Tobias Simon Chair in Public Law
The Thomas L. Williams, Jr. Chair in Information and Management Sciences

Additional Chairs pledged to Florida State University include:

The Syde P. Deeb Chair in Political Science	The Pat Winthrop-King Chair in French
The Jerry Collins Chair in Public Administration	Anonymous Chair in Biological Science
The Payne H. and Charlotte Hodges Midyette Chair in Insurance

MAJOR GIFT CHALLENGE PROGRAM

Under the State of Florida's Major Gift Challenge Program a contribution of $100,000 is matched with $50,000 from the state. This program advances Florida State's academic mission through the establishment of named professorships and scholarships and the enhancement of library resources and technical equipment.

Those Major Gifts at Florida State University which have received or will receive matching funds include:

The John Shaw Family Endowment	The Arthur Andersen Endowed Professorship in Accounting
The Peat, Marwick, Mitchell Endowed Professorship in Accounting	The James Jacob Jones Presidential Scholars Fund
The Martha G. Moore Endowed Scholarship Fund	The Ucola Katzentine Endowed Scholarship Funds
The Ernst and Whinney Endowed Professorship in Accounting	The Rose and Joe Lindsay Scholarship Funds

PRESIDENTIAL SCHOLARS

To enable the University to be in a position to encourage academically gifted students to attend Florida State University, the Florida State University Foundation has created a prestigious category of scholarship funds for this purpose. The special category is called Presidential Scholars.

With a gift of $25,000 you can place your name on a Presidential Scholars Fund. Selected students who are entering the University out of high school will receive an annual stipend based on the earnings of the $25,000 endowed fund for their entire four year undergraduate university career. In the case of a community college student the commitment will be for two years.

Senior now studies defenses

Dr. Palmer: Hitting Both Books and Ball Carriers

By Chris Sears, Tribe Staff Writer

Palmer is intense both on the field and in his field of study.

If you ever want to talk to David Palmer after practice, he's easy to find. On this night, like most others, he's in his room studying in Burt Reynolds Hall.

After a most demanding schedule during the day, Palmer spends his evenings preparing for exams in classes that most people have a hard enough time pronouncing much less understanding.

Palmer, a pre-med major, is taking histology and bio-chemistry this semester as he works to complete his coursework for graduation this spring.

"At nights is when I like to study," Palmer says. "That's when I get the most work done."

On Saturday nights, Palmer does a different kind of reading as a member of one of the country's top defensive units. As a starting middle linebacker, Palmer's tasks are many as he must make instantaneous defensive reads to stop the opponent's offense.

Palmer's rise to the top of the depth chart did not come easily, however. Starring for Florida High in the shadow of Doak Campbell Stadium, Palmer became the first player ever to win the Tallahassee Quarterback Club's Offensive and Defensive Player of the Year Award as a senior in 1983. He averaged 18 tackles a game, rushed for 1,083 yards and was named to the first team all-state team. Even with all the publicity he received in high school, the choice of colleges was relatively easy for Palmer.

"I stayed in Tallahassee because my family is close and I wanted them to see me play," says Palmer, whose younger brother Dean originally signed with the Seminoles before turning to professional baseball. "I was also impressed with Coach Bowden. I just wanted to play for Florida State."

Ironically, when Palmer came in as a freshman, he played linebacker during the early part of fall practice before injuries decimated the team at fullback. Palmer moved to offense and played in seven games, carrying the ball once.

The next two years found him in a backup role while he continued to be one of Florida State's top special teams performers.

Still, Palmer longed for a starting job. Last year, it looked as though he would finally have his chance, but senior Tanner Holloman and sophomore Dayne Williams took most of the playing time. Midway through the season, Palmer had only carried the ball five times.

"I felt like I was not going to get any better at fullback; I had reached by potential there," Palmer says. "I went and talked to Coach Bowden and I think he already had it in his mind to make the move."

"I had just gotten discouraged with football. I felt like I had nothing to lose and everything to gain."

Bowden suggested that Palmer wait to make the move during the spring to allow him time to learn the position. When spring arrived, he made the move to linebacker an easy one. "I had that natural instinct," he says. "I guess I've always had that."

Linebacker coach Wally Burnham agrees. "If David had been playing linebacker for the last three years, he'd be starting," Burnham said at the conclusion of spring practice. He

Remind You:

Install smoke detectors: Smoke is responsible for three out of four fire deaths. The loud siren will give your family those extra minutes to escape safely. Test it once a month. Change batteries once a year.

Establish an escape plan: Have frequent family meetings to establish escape routes from your dwelling. Every room should have two means of escape, rope ladders for upper floor windows. Have practice drills every three months.

Place fire extinguishers throughout your home: For extinguishing all three types of fire, use an  fire extinguisher. Fire extinguishers should only be used in the case of small fires; if there is a large fire, get out of your home immediately.

As winter approaches: It's highly recommended to have heating systems, fireplaces and wood burning stoves checked, serviced and cleaned by a professional.

NOT JUST A JOB, A COMMITMENT

For a free home fire safety inspection, please call the Tallahassee Fire Department Fire Prevention Department at 222-9277.

was able to make a smooth transition to linebacker, but he still found himself behind John Eaford and Odell Haggins, a pair of established players at the position.

Midway through fall workouts a chain of events dramatically shook up the linebacking corps. Haggins was shifted to noseguard in a move to shore up the noseguard position, which had been the biggest question mark for the Seminoles entering the season. Then, Eaford, the first teamer, was seriously injured in an automobile accident, leaving Palmer to start along side Paul McGowan at middle linebacker.

While Palmer's name won't be thrown around for consideration for the Butkus Award, given annually to the nation's top linebacker, he has quietly taken care of the task at hand.

In his first start two weeks ago against Texas Tech, Palmer played like a veteran, leading the FSU defense with 11 tackles. That's pretty good for a player who runs only a 4.9 40 yard dash compared to most linebackers who run in the 4.7 range. "I'm an overachiever," Palmer says. "I have to make up for a lack of physical talent."

Following the East Carolina game, Palmer was one of the players Bowden mentioned as looking good in the game films. "The most improved I saw was David Palmer," he said. "The only way he's going to improve is to play. I imagine by the end of the year he'll be a heck of a linebacker."

"I feel very comfortable with David at middle linebacker," says Paul McGowan, who

"There's a love for both football and school with me,"
—David Palmer

is a top All-American and Butkus Award candidate. "We played together at linebacker as freshmen. He is a very smart player at the position."

While he has found success on the field, Palmer's accomplishments in school have been even more impressive. Leading the team with a 3.4 grade point average, he has received numerous academic awards, including the NCNB Football-Scholar Athlete Award. Toyota also awarded him the Toyota Leadership Award in 1986 and donated $1,000 in his name to Florida State.

He is also a prime candidate this season for NCAA post graduate scholarship and a spot on the Academic All-American team.

The annual academic All-American team, voted on by the College Sports Information Directors of America, is based on both grades and statistics. With his limited carries as a fullback, he has never had the opportunity to be a legitimate contender.

"During the times that I was discouraged with football, I put more emphasis on school," says Palmer, who also is a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. "Now that I'm this far, I'm happy that I put more emphasis on school. I feel like I've accomplished a lot and I needed to if I was going to go on to medical school."

His choices for medical school are many. Palmer says that he may enter Florida State's PIMS program which would allow him to spend one year of medical school at FSU before gaining automatic enrollment to the University of Florida's medical school. He also is applying to Emory, South Florida, Wake Forest, Miami and Tulane. Palmer plans on becoming an eyes, ears and throat specialist.

"There's a love for both football and school with me," Palmer says. "I now feel like I can contribute to the team better at linebacker. I want to go out to practice everyday now. I have a new outlook on football."

Palmer's new outlook makes one thing certain. He will continue to hit opposing running backs as hard as he hits the books.

myself and looking at the final outcome of the game, I guess I did."

The following year, in what could be termed the most explosive offensive show in FSU football history, junior quarterback and former walk-on Kirk Coker got the call against Arizona State and aided the Seminoles in a 52-44 win.

Subbing for an injured Eric Thomas, out of the game with a hip-pointer, Coker entered with FSU trailing by 10 points. Before the end of the second half, he directed a drive which moved the Seminoles into striking distance as ASU went into the locker room with only a 20-17 lead.

Florida State went ahead early in the second half with the help of two touchdown strikes from Coker to Hester and an 81-yard run by Greg Allen. In the third quarter offensive showcase that put FSU ahead, the former Taylor County High School standout connected on five passes in five attempts for 131 yards. Offensive coordinator Wayne McDuffie says that it was a lack of preparation that accounted for Coker's accuracy. "It was a sudden move that got him in the game," McDuffie says. "He had no time to worry about it. He went into the game uninhibited and reacted positively. Also the fact that Arizona State was a blitzing team helped him, because our offensive line was picking up the blitz."

Over the course of the 1984 and 85 seasons,

Coker never eclipsed his 8 for 11, 203 yard, 2 touchdown performance of Tempe. He did surpass his yardage total the following week against South Carolina. But the fact that it was in a losing effort and he threw three interceptions probably erased the game from Coker's memory banks.

In keeping with one game performers, FSU fans can also claim their most heralded one-game hero as Burt Reynolds. Reynolds was quite a promising runner with he hit the FSU campus in 1954, but injuries cut short a career which never came about. In actuality, Actor Burt Reynolds has enjoyed more longevity on the screen than in football.

Reynold's moment of glory came in one play. Against Auburn, he broke loose for a 54-yard gain. The run, which was recently featured on ESPN's first NFL halftime show, brought back the old memories for Burt. He relived some of them while speaking to a crowd of 1,500 Garnet and Gold fans at a "Bernie and the Bandit" luncheon just two weeks ago in Tallahassee.

In many heroic efforts, details get stretched out of proportion. The same goes for the legendary games that Jerry Coleman and Bob Davis helped the Seminoles produce a big win.

The Coleman saga had the former walk-on never playing another down in a Seminole uniform. Not so, he confirms, "I played a good bit more, but it makes for a good story, so I go along with it."

In Davis' drive, the Florida newspapers played upon the fact that the Seminole quarterback was playing minus his contact lenses. They reported that he could barely see his receivers. Davis rejects the theory now. "I had only worn the contacts for a couple of weeks," he says. "My eyesight was not that bad. It was really not as big as it was made up to be."

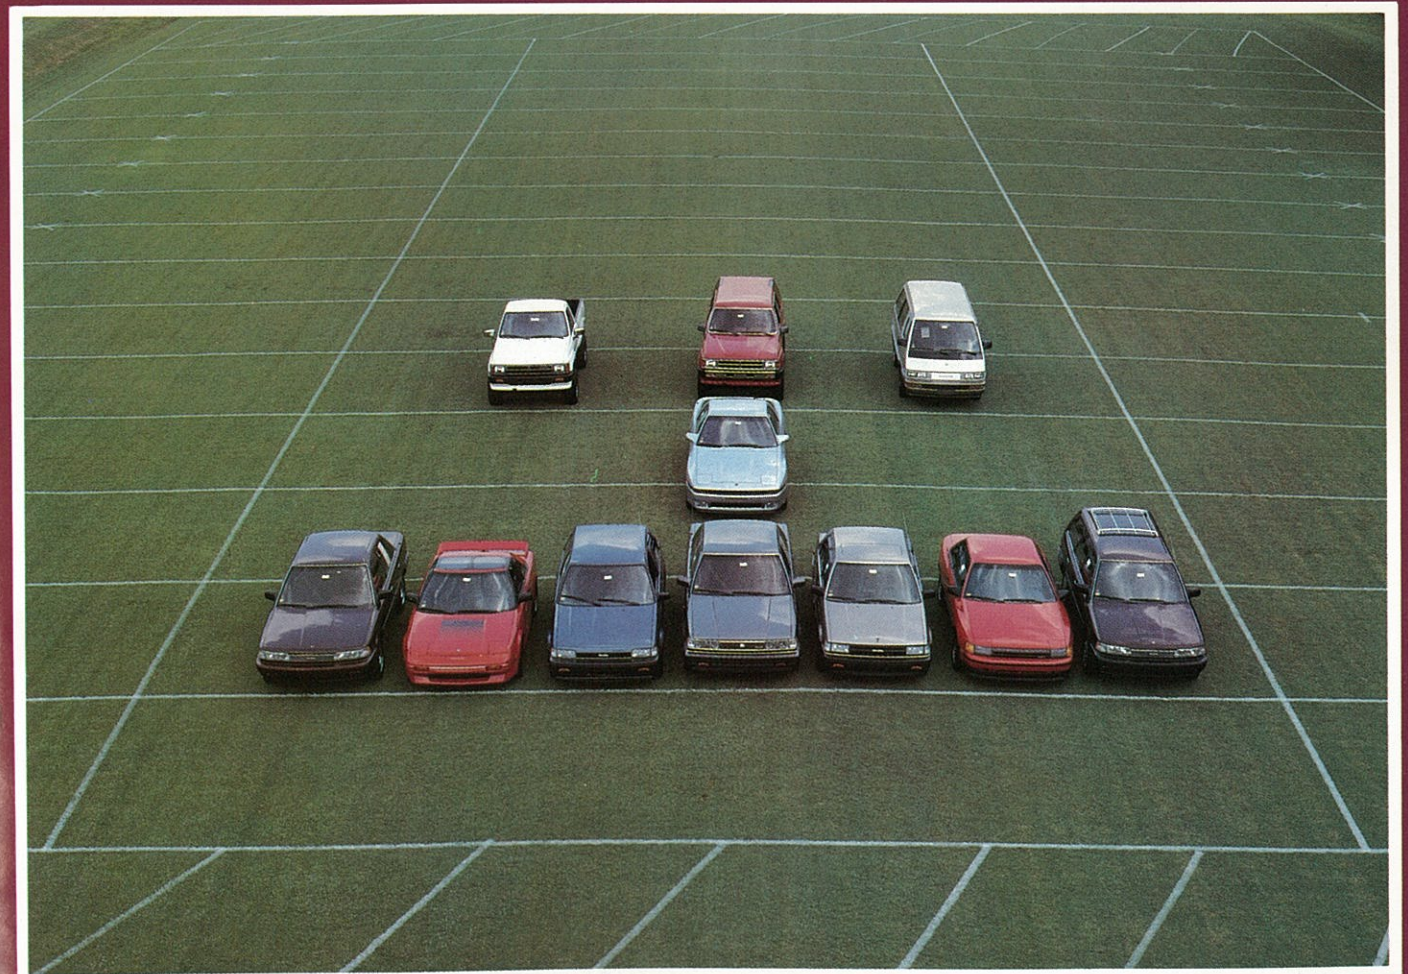

Davis summed the experience with a shrug. "I really had fun in that game," he says. "I mean, how many people get the chance that I did and have it come out the way things did?"

Not many, Bob, but Seminole fans will always remember that one game.

The Marching Chiefs

The Marching Chiefs, some 350 members strong, are the band behind the Florida State fight song. They are as much a part of college football in Tallahassee as the game itself.

Since 1951, the Chiefs have provided football fans with the best in upbeat musical entertainment in their pregame and halftime shows.

The Chiefs' entourage includes feature twirlers, majorettes and flag girls representing every school and college in the university. In addition to home game performances, the Chiefs have traveled to many out of town games to cheer on the Seminoles. FSU's regional and national TV appearances have also put them in the living rooms of millions of viewers, including thousands of Seminole alumni across the country.

Under the direction of Bentley Shellahammer, director of the Chiefs; Charles Carter, associate director and arranger; graduate assistant John Carmichael; graduate staff assistants David Legette, Roger Duncan, Steve Grugin, Michael Friedman, Bill Faucett, Lisa Crews, Rick Greenwood and Jim Bye; and drum major Rodney Dorsey, the 1987 Marching Chiefs will once again greet Seminole fans with the familiar style that has entertained millions over the past four decades.

ALMA MATER

High o'er the towering pines our voices swell,
Praising those Gothic spires we love so well,
Here sons and daughters stand, faithful and true.
Hailing our ALMA MATER, FSU.

FIGHT SONG

Words by Doug Alley
You've got to fight, fight, fight, for FSU.
You've got to scalp 'em Seminoles.
You've got to win, win, win, this game and roll on down to make those goals.
For FSU is on the warpath now and at the battle's end, she's great
So fight, fight, fight to victory, our point since I arrived and have reached a point where that is a great motivation for the coach and student.

"The second factor is that we all know that we are challenged to protect the integrity of this University. We, as the athletic department, must conduct ourselves in a manner deserving of Florida State University.

"Thirdly, we have made it a priority that everyone works within the financial resources available and last, but not least, we have emphasized to our staff the need to protect the NCAA rules and regulations.

"Those are the points that the administration has emphasized and which, in turn, have put Florida State University in the position of leadership it enjoys. FSU has established itself as one of the programs worthy of emulation and a great deal of that is due to the priorities and restrictions posed internally."

Personable and approachable, Goin runs his staff meetings like a football huddle. He is in control, and it is his call. In fact, as the

"Bob is the guy who really makes things
tick here,"

—Athletic Director

meeting is dismissed one almost has the urge to join hands and jog to the line of scrimmage!

Naturally, Bob credits his wife Nancy and their family for much of his success. The Goins have four children and one son, Brian, is an assistant football coach at Shippensburg (Pa.) State University. One of the favorite "inside" jokes in Seminole athletics centers around his son's school. Goin, who coordinates all on-field activities during football games and communicates via radio, always asks the press box for the Shippensburg State score. No small task for whomever is given the responsibility!

"I really enjoy coming to work every day," says Goin. "I feel like I can make a difference in our coaches and athletes. It is my goal to give our student-athletes the best quality environment in which to compete."

The Seminoles are coming off one of their finest years ever from an athletic standpoint. Florida State won the coveted Metro Conference all-around trophy. The football team went to a bowl game, the basketball team to the NIT Tournament and the baseball and softball teams to the World Series. Golf finished among the nation's top 10 and volleyball and track enjoyed Metro Championship years.

It would be difficult for a department not to pat itself on the back after a performance like that. And if there is a line forming to do so, maybe it just ought to start behind Bob Goin.

mate Jamie Dukes now makes his living, or Florida or California.

Some pro scouts see Carter as an offensive lineman in the NFL because his 4.8 speed in the 40 is slow for a pro tight end. But former FSU tight ends Zeke Mowatt and Orson Mobley, both tall and weighing in close to Carter, have both made it in the NFL; neither has outstanding speed. Said one NFL pro scout who watched Carter at East Carolina last week, "It all depends on what team drafts him as to whether he'll play tight end or not. If it's a team like Pittsburgh who uses their tight ends to block a lot, he could still play tight end." "I would like to play tight end in the pros, but I'm willing to move if it means I can play," says Carter, the diplomat. While it's fun to think about his future pro possibilities, his mind is set on the Seminoles having their best season ever. "I'm just thinking about this season," he says. "My first priority in football is doing the best I can for FSU."

"He is a team player, he plays hard on the field and conducts himself as a gentleman off the field."

—Tight End Coach
Brad Scott

Carter is quick to mention, however, that his very first priority is always his family. His grandmother lives in Tallahassee and Pat spends a lot of his spare time with her. "Football is a big part of my life, but my family will always come first," he says. He also keeps close contact with his father who lives in Hawaii. The senior Carter makes the trip to Tallahassee to watch his son play about three times a year.

Pat takes the dedication and determination he has on the field into other aspects of his life. He is just 30 credit hours short of graduation, and he has covered most of his academic requirements without a football redshirt year. He looks forward to one day using his degree in political science.

Brad Scott beams when he talks about how proud he is of his star pupil, especially when it comes to education. Says Scott, "Pat has his priorities in place. He is motivated academically as well as athletically." Carter's commitment to his education allows him to be confident that if he does not play professional football, he will succeed in his chosen profession. "Pat is prepared to adjust and adapt to any situation," says Scott. "He is the kind of man who will make a positive contribution to society."
