FSU wins Metro golf tourney

ISLE OF PALMS, S.C. — Brian Kamm fired a 4-under-par 68 to take individual honors and his teammates took second through fourth place as the Florida State Seminoles won the Metro Conference Golf Tournament on Saturday.

FSU, which finished with a three-day total of 857, won the team championship by 49 strokes over second-place South Carolina. Memphis State was third at 929, Southern Mississippi was fourth with 936, followed by Virginia Tech (959) and Louisville (962).

Kamm, who entered the final round trailing teammate Tom Krystyn by five shots, came up with the second-best round of the tournament to edge Krystyn, who ballooned to 3-over 75 after firing a 66 the day before.

Greg Fleischer finished third overall for the Seminoles, shooting even-par 72 for a three-day total of even-par 216. Nolan Henke was fourth overall for FSU at 1-over 217.

Southern Miss' Terry Budzinski was the highest non-FSU finisher at 4-over 220. Keith Kulzer finished ninth for FSU with a 10-over 226.

Florida State jumped out to a 13-stroke lead in the tournament after one day and continued to build on the advantage throughout.
