

An expected rematch between Northwestern's Marty Reissen and Florida State's Lex Wood failed to materialize at the FSU courts Wednesday, and Northwestern swept to an 8-1 win over the Seminoles.

Coaches Clair Reissen of Northwestern and Paul Scarpa of FSU agreed to pit their second players against the others' aces for experience's sake, and Reissen took on FSU's Don Caton and Wood played NU's Clark Graebner.

Neither had much trouble. Reissen kept Caton deep with hard volleys and won their match 6-2, 6-3.

Wood dispensed with Graebner in record time, winning two six-love sets with overwhelming decisiveness. Lex, loser to Reissen in their first match Tuesday, showed Graebner no mercy and confused the NU senior with looping shots spread over the court.

Wood's win was the only victory for a frustrated FSU team that still has three matches to play this week. Scarpa's team, now 3-7 for the year, plays Notre Dame today at 2:30, Clemson Friday at 2:30, and Georgia Tech Saturday at 10:30, all on the Seminole clay courts.

In Wednesday's doubles action, Reissen and Graebner, second-ranked U. S. mens' doubles team, bottled up Wood and Caton with precision drives and turned out a victory in two quick sets, 6-2 and 6-2.
