LEROY BUTLER

Football

He wasn't a typical child growing up in the Blodgett Homes projects in Jacksonville, Florida. LeRoy Butler struggled with extremely weak bones in his feet causing a misalignment which prevented him from running. Several years in his youth were spent in braces, casts or even a wheelchair for a time. By the seventh grade, LeRoy's feet had healed and the doors would soon open to a whole new world.

By 1986, LeRoy had become one of the most honored football players in the history of Lee High School. He was named to the Bally and Adidas All-America teams and ranked in Football News' top 100 recruits.

Butler became a household name for his role in the punt-rooskie play against Clemson in 1988. His senior season he moved from free safety to cornerback to replace teammate Deion Sanders. That season he had key interceptions in wins over Miami, Syracuse and Virginia Tech finishing the year with seven interceptions which to this day still list him 4th on the Seminoles' all-time single season record. He was named a defensive back consensus All-America and in the summer, LeRoy was named MVP of the Japan Bowl after an interception and 67 yard punt return. In 1990, LeRoy was selected in the NFL's second round and 48th pick overall by the Green Bay Packers.

LeRoy Butler today is a feisty fixture in the Packers green and gold entering his 12th season with the NFL team. He is a five time NFL Pro-Bowl and is set to become the first NFL player in history to record 40 career interceptions and 20 career sacks. Butler is also known as the originator of the Lambeau Leap, where the players soar into the stands after scoring a touchdown on their home turf. In 1999, #36 was voted "NFL Man of the Year" for his extensive off-field community service.

Coach Bowden played an important role in LeRoy's life, "His coaching prowess is legend and celebrated. However, his love of his athletes while inspiring them to do the right thing, is equally celebrated ... he became my father away from home, a confidant with sincerity and a person who I will always trust."

"Coach Mickey Andrews is a teacher who specializes in giving you the appropriate killer instinct while showing you how to take your opponent's heart out of his chest ... he literally taught me everything about taking your defensive game to the next level."

-LeRoy Butler

BOB CLEM

Baseball

Robert Clem, called the "most prolific hitter in city league history" by Georgia newspapers in the late 1950s began impressing the coaches early in his career. The Atlanta native attended Bass High School where he lettered in football and baseball for four years. He made All-State in football and was named to the North/South All-Star baseball team where he earned MVP honors. His 1957 batting average of .610 still holds the top spot in the city of Atlanta.

After a brief season on the football team at Georgia Tech, Bob joined the Seminoles. His impact was immediate, batting .461 as a sophomore in 1958. The talent behind the plate was noticed on a national scale as he was named to the District 3 All-Star team. Clem also became the youngest player named to the 30-man All-America squad in 1959 which made him only the second All-America in Seminole history behind Dick Howser who received the honor in 1957 and '58. Before leaving Florida State, the 6-1 second baseman broke the records for the most triples and doubles in a season and led his team in most hits, total bases, stolen bases, runs batted in and batting average. He is still listed in the Seminole record book for the highest single-season batting average.

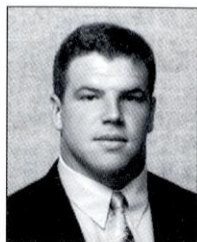

On May 24, 1960 Bob signed a contract with the Baltimore Orioles. But after just four seasons in Baltimore, Clem saw his career cut short. While playing centerfield, Bob hit the fence going after a fly ball and injured his arm. Though his time with the pros was not as long as he liked, Bob did have the opportunity to hit a 3-run homer off a famous major league pitcher named Satchell Paige.

John Slaton, a member of the Varsity Club's board of directors introduced Bob to his wife Martha who was also a student at FSU in the late 1950s.

"Danny Litwhiler was a great coach, could correct mistakes immediately and gave me great support and encouragement. He believed in me."

Bob Clem's most memorable moment at FSU:

"When I met my wife Martha at the Tri-Delt house."

CLAY SHIVER

Football

In his back yard he was usually the quarterback for the fantasy game. He never dreamed of becoming a All-American hero at center but that's just what he did.

In 1993, Clay perfected the shotgun snap for a quarterback named Charlie Ward. He gave up just a 1/2 a sack in over 700 snaps to help lead the team to its first National Championship trophy. By the 1995 campaign, Clay had become one of the top linemen in the country. He was a dominating blocker with quickness to pass block in FSU's intricate offensive system. Shiver was named to the Football Writer's first team All-America squad and Scripps Howard All-America team. He was a three time All-ACC selection and received numerous ACC Player of the Week honors as well. In his junior and senior years, Clay was awarded the prestigious Jacobs Trophy presented annually to the best blocker in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

In 1996, Clay was the first Seminole selected to the NFL draft, 67th overall pick by the Dallas Cowboys. Clay played in 14 games for Dallas his first season, started in all 16 games in '97 and nine games in the '98 campaign. After three seasons with Dallas he became a free agent, signed in '99 with Denver and Carolina before having to give up the game with a shoulder injury.

Clint Purvis (FSU Team Chaplin), Robbie Baker (former FSU Center) and Greg Frey (Clay's roommate) made the biggest impact on Clay's life while at FSU.

The most interesting place Clay has traveled is to Fiji on his honeymoon and Australia.

ANGELA WRIGHT

Track and Field

It was that obvious to folks in Marion County that Forest High School track star Angie Wright was headed for greatness. She broke the Class 3A state records in the 440-meter hurdles and 110 low hurdles and placed second in the 220. Angela also competed in the 220, long jump and high jump in high school, and played basketball and ran cross-country. As a senior she was honored for her accomplishments on and off the field receiving the scholar athlete award after finishing at Forest with a 3.5 grade point average.

As a Lady Seminole, Angela was a 15 time All-America. She received numerous honors including being named MVP of the Pepsi Invitation in Los Angeles, California. Her 1983 Seminole team placed second in Houston at the NCAA Division I Outdoor Track and Field Championship finishing behind UCLA. Angela's relay team set a new NCAA record in the 440-meter relay and the 1600-meter relay. As an individual, she placed third in the 400-meter hurdles.

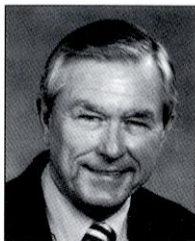

In early 1984, she place third at the U.S Track and Field National Meet and second at the U.S. Olympic Trials. This gave Angela the opportunity of a lifetime to become an Olympic Athlete. At this time, she was ranked third in the United States and eleventh in the world in the 400-meter hurdles.

Angela graduated from University of Virginia with her law degree and is currently a practicing attorney in the Tampa area where she lives with her son Julian.

In 1984, Angela traveled to Europe as an international competitor with the United States Track Team. She visited Germany, Italy, Belgium, England, Switzerland and France.

Dr. Daisy Flory was a professor of Angela's, who Angela says she "welcomed me into her home and mailed me a graduation photo album of UVA" (where Angela later attended law school).

BILL DURHAM MOORE-STONE AWARD

Bill Durham was a typical student in the 1960s at Florida State. He was active in campus intramurals, played in a band called the Velvets and was a member of the Sigma Chi Fraternity. During his sophomore year he was involved in the Homecoming committee when he came up with an idea to really bring alive the Seminoles of Florida State. It was an idea that would not fly at the time and was tabled for nearly 15 years.

But as the saying goes, timing is everything. Bill entered the insurance industry and was talking with a client at home who happened to be the new football coach at Florida State. Coach Bowden shared his desire of establishing some new tradition at FSU and tossed out some ideas. And so, the opportunity arose for Durham to pitch the idea again. By the fall of 1977, Chief Osceola and Renegade began to materialize with the support of Bobby and Ann Bowden. One of Durham's first steps was to seek the approval of the Seminole Indian Tribe. He then ran an ad in the Flambeau and received 168 applicants for the first rider. They were unable to locate the "right" horse so the original Renegade who premiered at the 1978 season opener against Oklahoma State was borrowed from a friend. Fans at that game got a chance to witness the birth of a legend.

The sacred tradition is well known and well protected, thanks to the hard work and dedication of tonight's Moore-Stone award winner, Bill Durham.

In 1990 FSU was invited to play in the Blockbuster Bowl; however, Chief Osceola and Renegade were not extended an invitation. After Dr. Bernie Sliger and Wayne Huizenga met for dinner, a deal was struck that Renegade could attend. Frantic calls went out to Bill who was hunting in South Georgia, and the Chief Osceola Tom Sawyer, who was in the Bahamas. The Renegade team drove all night to Ft. Lauderdale to make the game and see FSU defeat Penn State.
