Close games meant the difference for the Seminoles last season and the Tribe should have realized it right off the bat. Florida State opened the season at the Great Alaska Shootout where two of the three games were decided by last second shots. The other was a three-point loss to eventual national-surprise Connecticut. It was one of those years!

1989-90 Review 1989-90:

Too Many Glose Ones This Year!

Top: Tharon Mayes averaged 22.8 points per game last season and was among the Metro Conference's top performers. His loss during the second half of the season triggered the Tribe's worst stretch of Right: The ball just never seemed to bounce in the Seminole's direction last season. Irving Thomas rifled this jump ball into the third row of the stands as FSU struggled all season to find a consistent level of play.

lorida State head coach Pat Kennedy termed the 1989-90 season a "bridge" year in the Seminole basketball program. Kennedy has led FSU's basketball program back to national prominence with an NIT bid and back-to-back NCAA Tournament appearances in his first three seasons. But the outlook for the 1989-90 campaign looked relatively bleak. Gone was Metro Conference player of the year George McCloud, along with standout seniors Tony Dawson and Tat Hunter. And FSU would begin the season with only two returning starters. Both seniors, the returning starters Tharon Mayes and Irv Thomas would have to emerge from role players to the leaders of this young Seminole team.

ennedy would find the schedule tough right from the beginning as he took his young squad as far north as possible for the Great Alaska Shootout. This team would see a trial by fire as the three games up north were decided by a total of five points. FSU lost on a tip-in at the buzzer to highly regarded Kansas State, then returned the favor when Aubry Boyd hit a jumper at the buzzer to beat Alaska-Anchorage. FSU played its third wire game in as many days against Connecticut, which turned out to be one of the nation's biggest surprise powerhouses, losing by three at the horn.

The close games would prove to be the norm for FSU in 1989-90 as the Seminoles would see 11 games decided by four points or less. Incredibly, the Seminoles were involved in eight games that were won or lost in the final five seconds.

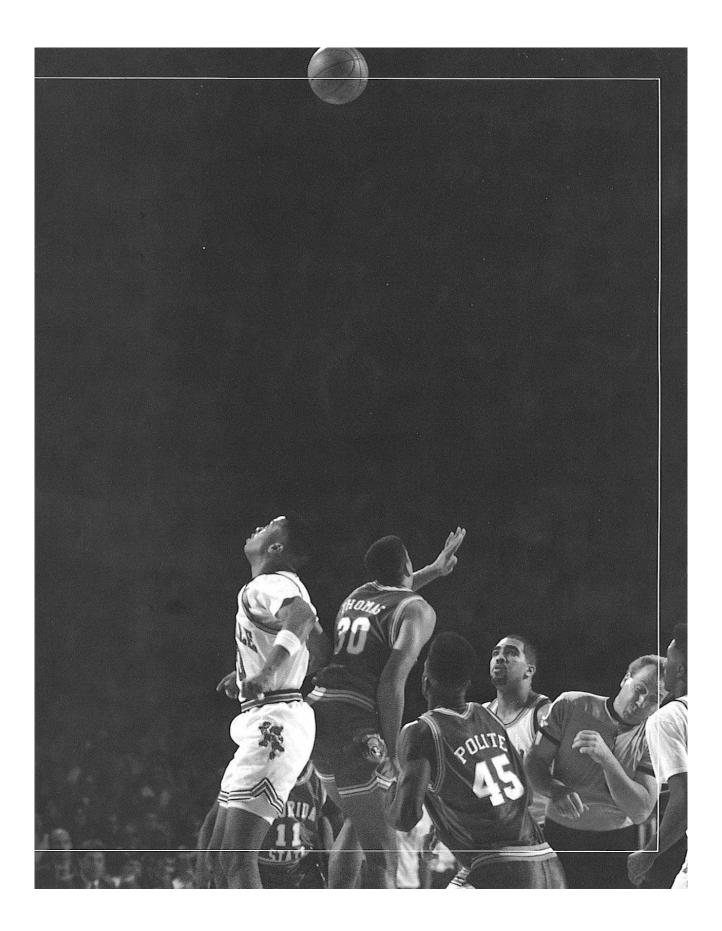

December brought another challenge to the Seminoles as they took a 1-2 record into a game against intra-state rival Florida. The Gators' front line ate up the young Seminoles and they suffered a 82-69 road loss. FSU bounced back with a narrow 82-78 win over Aubum that sparked a four-game winning streak, which gave the 'Noles a 6-3 record going into the Christmas break.

A trip to the ECAC Holiday Festival in New York City, and a date against Jim Valvano's Wolfpack, was next on the agenda for the rapidly improving Seminoles. But NC State proved too much as Chris Corchiani had a season-high 16 assists to lead the Pack to a win. FSU bounced back again in the consolation round playing perhaps its finest game of the year in a 95-76 thrashing of Rhode Island. Tharon Mayes, who had already earned Metro Player of the Week honors twice, burned the Madison Square Garden nets for a season-high 38 points en route to all-tournament honors.

SU took a close 78-75 win at South Alabama on January 2nd in the final tune-up before Metro Conference play began. The Seminoles opened the conference slate against returning Tulane, handing the Green Wave a 92-68 loss. Just two nights later, FSU would play its best conference game of the year running highly respected Southern Mississippi out of gas in a 113-82 route. Next, it took two overtimes for the Tribe to get past Jacksonville, but they did so for win number five in a row, and preparations began for the first conference road tilt of the season against Cincinnati.

Cincinnati was anxiously awaiting FSU as the Tribe took a last-minute win there last season. The Bearcats would make sure that was not repeated as they raced to an 82-62 win that sent the Tribe into a four game losing streak. The Seminoles dropped a home game to Louisville, a surprising double overtime loss at Miami, Florida State saw no fewer than eight games decided by three or fewer points in 1989-90. FSU's first two games of the season were onepointers and the Tribe played two double overtime and one overtime game. The Seminoles were 4-4 in three-point contests including a heart-breaking 65-64 overtime loss to Cincinnati in the first round of the Metro Conference Tournament.

and a 56-53 loss at home against South Carolina that would prove to be the worst offensive game of the year for FSU. But, again, the Seminoles were able to come back, handing Memphis State a 78-72 loss in Tallahassee and getting a road win at alwaystough Virginia Tech to move their record to 13-8 and 4-3 in the Metro.

t that point, the Tribe hit its toughest stretch of the season as Mayes, the conference's second leading scorer at 23.1 points per game, was suspended for seven games by the University. FSU would suffer five straight losses including a pair to nationally-ranked teams, and would not rebound until a non-conference grudge match with Miami in mid-February. During the losing stretch, the Seminoles suffered from very poor shooting, including three games under 40 percent shooting from the field.

Yet, Florida State entered the Metro Tournament on a positive note having closed the year with wins in three of its last four games. The Tribe hammered Miami 92-73 and followed that with a hard-fought 69-67 win at Tulane. After a loss to Virginia Tech, the Seminoles closed the regular season with a 79-70 win over the Gamecocks of South Carolina.

FSU had new life as do all the other Metro teams, battling for the conference's automatic NCAA Tournament bid. But the season would end much like it had begun as Cincinnati won a 65-64 overtime game to end the Tribe's season.

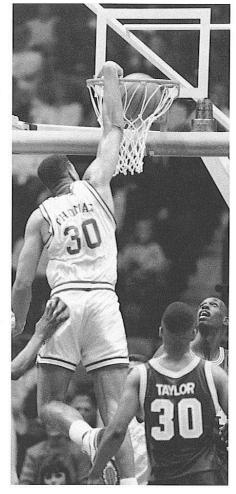

Mayes was the star for the Seminoles providing most of the offensive action for the young team. His suspension from the team proved just too detrimental for the team to overcome.

Michael Polite shed the effects of Guillain-Barre to have an outstanding season, leading the Tribe in rebounding and establishing himself as the leader going into his senior season.

Irv Thomas played out of position at center all year and Aubry Boyd seemed to find his niche at forward scoring 12.5 points per game over the last four. But of all the Seminoles, Chuck Graham will look back with the most fondness at 1989-90. During his rookie year at FSU, Graham put together the finest season ever for a freshman averaging 10.1 points per game. His ability to hit the long shot, drive to the hoop and rebound with the big men made him one of the Metro's outstanding freshmen.

In retrospect, the season turned out much like Pat Kennedy had predicted it could: young team, difficult schedule, unproven talent added up to a season that ended with disappointment after flirting with success.

Irving Thomas was second on the team in scoring last season averaging 16.7 points per game. He scored over 500 points during his senior season and was voted second team all-conference. Thomas signed a free agent contract with the Los Angeles Lakers after last season.
