1984 IN REVIEW:

A Team That Wouldn't Quit - Back on April 8, the Seminoles were returning from a four-game road trip. It was not a happy ride. Florida State had just lost two games to Jacksonville and could only manage a split against Georgia Southern. With the 1-3 mark, the season record stood at 33-19-0 - not bad by most standards but sub-par and unacceptable to the Florida State faithful.

During the first nine weeks of the season, Florida State failed to win more than eight games in a row and had also pulled off a five game losing streak - longest in the school's history.

Losses to Southern Miss, South Florida (both at home) and two thrashings at Clemson were particularly painful losses. Many quickly pointed out that the Seminoles were well on their way to setting the school record for losses in a single season.

Seminole head coach Mike Martin felt helpless. "After that road trip to Jacksonville and Statesboro I was at an all-time low," Martin said. "I wasn't sure that we weren't playing the best we could and that's what scared me. I decided right then I was going to keep the faith and try and ride the storm out. It was the only thing I thought we could do at that point."

Fortunately for the Seminoles and Martin, the team wasn't playing to its abilities. FSU's luck took a turn for the better and the Seminoles started to win those close ball games that had eluded them earlier.

Florida State started by whipping Mercer twice before winning two out of three from a hungry Miami team at home. A split with Florida on the road, was followed by two losses to a fine South Alabama team. It was at this point, in which Florida State owned a 39-23 record, that things began to happen.

A sweep of Florida International before finals week was followed with a big weekend series against Tulane. The Green Wave brought a number 12 ranking into the series, but left with two losses in three games as the Seminoles took the series, 17-4, 8-4, 0-1.

Following a tough road loss to South Alabama, FSU closed out the regular season by sweeping Southern Miss in Hattiesburg and doing the same to a tough Memphis State team to finish the road trip with a 6-1 record.

At the start of the Metro Conference Tournament, the Seminoles found themselves in an unusual position - seeded fifth in an eight team tournament. To make matters worse, Florida State lost its opening round game to South Carolina, 4-3 - after taking a two run lead into the ninth.

"Most people counted us out right there," senior co-captain Jody Reed said. "It was a tough loss, but we knew if we stuck together we had a chance. It just meant there was no room for another error."

FSU faced one of its toughest challenges in the first game of the loser's bracket. Number one seeded Tulane, which was upset by Southern Miss in the first round, was the Seminole opponent. Behind Barry Grinnel, who shutout the Seminoles 1-0 just two weeks before, Tulane grabbed a 2-0 lead through six innings. FSU fought back however, winning 4-2 behind Jeff Gray's relief pitching.

A couple of big wins over Memphis State and Cincinnati propelled the Seminoles into Sunday's final day of competition. The Tribe first had to face a sky high Virginia Tech team that knocked off unbeaten South Carolina the night before on a grandslam home run with two outs in the bottom of the ninth.

Riding the momentum, Tech jumped out to a 3-0 lead on a pair of home runs in the first two innings, but FSU came back to pound out 17 hits to take a 17-3 decision over the Hokies.

Exhausted from playing five games in three days, FSU fell behind South Carolina in the championship game 6-1 after four innings. But Vince Calandra's fifth inning grandslam keyed a seven run rally and FSU went on to win 11-10 - claiming its second straight Metro Conference title and its fifth crown overall.

Seven players, including tournament MVP Reed, were named to the all-tourney team from FSU.

In the games leading up to the South Region, Florida State beat a tough New Orleans team two out of three to lift its season record to 55-27-0. The two wins put FSU to within one game of tying the FSU school record for most wins in a season at 56.

In discussing the keys to turning around the 1984 season, Martin noted that three things came to mind. The recovery of Jody Reed from a disastrous mid-season ankle injury, the moving of Jeff Gray from the starting rotation to bullpen and stabilizing thirdbase and centerfield.

"If I could take any one event that held this club back it would be Reed going down in the Cal State-Fullerton game (March 9). I've said it before and I'll say it again, Jody Reed is the finest shortstop I have EVER seen at Florida State and possibly the best in the country. He can do so much for you and we lost him for 10 games and had him hobbling around for another 25 games. When Jody Reed was 100 percent, we started playing better," Martin said.

"Moving Jeff Gray to the bullpen was an iffy move. I wasn't for it at first, but you can't argue with the results. Give the credit to assistant coach Mike McLeod. He recommended it and the results have been satisfying.

"A lot of our early troubles came from thirdbase and centerfield. We had guys who could field but couldn't hit. We had other players who were just the opposite. Basically we made a decision to play Greg Dennis at third and Eric Mangham at center on a daily basis. It's worked out for us," Martin added.

Although the fifth year coach pointed to the three factors above as turning points, he quickly added that the Metro Conference championship was a total team effort. "This team did not have the talent to have two or three players carry the team. We had freshmen contribute all year. Doug Little pitched well down the stretch, so did Jeff Ledbetter, Mike Loynd and Ray Revak. The results of this season was true team effort."

Teammates mob Vince Calandra as fifth inning grandslam brings FSU back from 6-2 deficit against South Carolina in championship game of Metro Conference Tournament.

METRO CONFERENCE

Formed in 1975, the Metro Conference has emerged as one of the top collegiate athletic conferences in the nation.

Larry Albus envisioned the formation of the conference when he was athletic director at St. Louis. His dream became reality when six schools - Cincinnati, Georgia Tech, Tulane, Louisville, Memphis State, and St. Louis - announced they would become charter members of the conference.

Under Albus' direction, the Metro quickly became a force to be reckoned with on the college athletic scene. When Louisville won the NCAA basketball championship in 1980, the Metro became the first conference to produce a champion in is first five years of existence.

The conference quickly grew in prestige. Florida State joined the conference in 1976 and when Georgia Tech withdrew a year later, Virginia Tech quickly enlisted into the ranks

A new look was added in 1982 when St. Louis resigned its membership and was replaced with southern independent Southern Mississippi. The conference's image as a tough all-sports conference received a boost when South Carolina became the eighth member prior to the 1983-84 school year.

Although considered one of the top basketball conferences year-in and year-out, the Metro is one of the best baseball conferences in the nation from top to bottom. Florida State, Tulane, South Carolina and Memphis State have all played in NCAA regional competition in recent years; while the Gamecocks and Seminoles have been almost a yearly fixture in the national championship tournament.

Recognizing the strength of the conference, the NCAA has granted an automatic regional berth to the conference champion. A second team is almost always selected from the Metro.

For the seventh straight year, Seminole Stadium will be the home of the Metro Conference Championship. Excellent facilities and weather make the FSU campus an ideal spot for the Metro. Fan support is high, with more than 14,500 fans attending the championship in 1984. FSU leads all conference teams with five baseball championships (1977-80-81-83-84); while Memphis State (1976-78) and Tulane (1979-82) have won two titles each.

THIS IS FSU BASEBALL

A Program of Tradition, Success - Few teams have managed to maintain the success that the Florida State baseball team has enjoyed since 1948.

But this is no surprise to the people associated with college baseball, as the Seminoles annually have lived up to their billing as the "Best in College Baseball."

Florida State's most recent appearance in the College World Series was in 1980 and that trip marked the seventh time the Seminoles have appeared in the NCAA's prestigious "Final Eight." Consider that only five other teams played in that many CWS.

Added to that statistic is the fact that the Seminoles have played in 22 NCAA regional tournaments, which easily places Florida State in the top five schools in the country in the number of regional tournaments qualified for. FSU has been a member of the NCAA Championship field every year since 1978.

A tribute to the Florida State program has been the school's overall record since the beginning. Despite playing one of the toughest schedules year in and out, Florida State has compiled an overall mark of 1176-470-7 (.714 winning percentage). Florida State had never experienced a losing season and has dipped below the .600 winning percentage mark just once since 1954. FSU's 56 post-season wins in NCAA play also ranks the school in the top five nationally.

Many Florida State players go on to professional ball. With three signings in 1984, the Florida State total of professional signings have increased to 90 since 1966.

Florida State's excellence is recognized around the country. Many scouts recommend that players attend FSU, rather than turn pro directly out of high school.

If a player is determined to get a college diploma before turning professional, Florida State offers an excellent opportunity. High school and junior college coaches around the country recognize this fact. It's reflected on the 1985 FSU roster that is dotted with players from 11 different states, Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic.

Florida State players are given the opportunity to play in 100 to 140 games a year. Following the conclusion of a 40-game fall exhibition season, FSU plays a 70-80 game spring schedule. Following the NCAA tournament, many players elect to stay in Tallahassee to play for Jerry's Caterers, FSU's summer league team. The FSU-Alumni game, which features former Seminole greats like Dick Howser and Terry Kennedy, an exhibition game against a major league team and the Metro Conference Championship are three events that have become popular in Tallahassee.

In the off season, Florida State athletes take advantage of FSU's weight training facilities - among the finest in the nation in terms of facilities and instruction.

An opportunity to play baseball year round does not mean that FSU is not concerned with academic life. The Seminole athletic department employs a full-time academic advisor and several assistants, whose sole concern is to monitor and help the student athlete obtain a marketable degree. If the athlete needs help in scheduling, tutoring or other special service, help is always available.

Keeping with the tradition, it is not surprising that Florida State has some of the best facilities in the nation. The new $3.9 million Moore Athletic Center serves as the hub of Seminole Athletics.

Seminole Stadium, home of FSU baseball, is often praised by opposing coaches as the finest natural grass facility in college baseball. Lights make night baseball a local favorite.

A training program under the direction of Don Fauls, insures that every Seminole athlete receives the finest medical and athletic training care available. An athletic trainer is present at every practice and game.

If playing before large crowds is important to the prospective athlete, FSU has an answer. Annually a top ten team in attendance (seventh in 1984), Florida State sold over 1200 season tickets last season. Crowds in excess of 3,000 have become commonplace; while over 100,000 fans saw Florida State play 1984.

Media attention is also high. FSU baseball is page one news in Tallahassee and is covered on a regular basis in the state's major newspapers. Over 100 members of the news and electronic media requested credentials to the 1984 NCAA South Region playoff hosted by the Seminoles. WTNT radio will carry 50 games this season back to Tallahassee; while commercial television stations in Tallahassee carry Florida State baseball as their lead sports story in the spring.

It is little wonder that Florida State has served as a role model of several upcoming programs. In terms of facilities, coaching, education, fan support, and one the field successes, FSU lives up to the claim "The Best in College Baseball."

The 1970 Seminoles played in the Championship Game of NCAA College World Series.

JERRY'S CATERERS

Summer Baseball for FSU Players - Many Florida State baseball players take advantage of year round baseball at FSU by electing to stay in Tallahassee during the summer months and play for Jerry's Caterers - FSU's summer team coached by Rod Delmonico.

This program affords incoming freshmen and transfers the opportunity to play 35-40 additional games of highly competitive summer league ball, while attending summer school at the same time. Many veteran players also take advantage of the program.

Jerry's schedule is highlighted by an annual trip to North Carolina in August for the Lenoir National Invitational tournament.

In 1984, Jerry's finished the summer with a sparkling 27-3 record and successfully defended its title at Lenoir.

WTNT RADIO

Rod Meadows Seminole Play-By-Play Announcer

For the fifth straight year, WTNT Radio will broadcast Seminole baseball live on it's AM station, 1270 AM. This year's schedule is the largest in the station's history, as WTNTwill broadcast 48 regular season games; as well as the 1985 Metro Conference Tournament and any subsequent regional and World Series action the Seminole might be involved in.

Highlights of this year's package include all six scheduled games with the University of Miami, four games with Florida, the New York Yankees exhibition on March 14, and all 18 conference games the Seminoles are slated to play.

Popular sports personality Rod Meadows will handle the play-by-play chores this season. Sports Director for WTNT, Meadows is in his fifth campaign as the "Voice of Seminole Baseball."

Former Seminole baseball coach Dave Fannin will provide color commentary on select broadcasts.

As a special feature of Seminole Baseball on WTNT, each broadcast will feature 15-minute pre and post game show with Seminole head coach Mike Martin.

"We are extremely pleased to present Seminole baseball for the fifth straight year on WTNT," Meadows noted. "Our broadcasts in the past have been well received in the community and we are happy to expand our coverage."

SEMINOLES IN THE PROS

FSU's Professional Pipeline - Few universities in the country have provided a pipeline to professional baseball as Florida State has. Since 1966, a total of 91 have signed contracts.

Several former FSU players are currently active in the major leagues. Terry Kennedy (Padres) and Johnny Grubb (Tigers) played key roles in helping their teams into the 1984 World Series.

Former FSU All-American and head coach Dick Howser managed his Kansas City Royal club to the 1984 American League West championship. Woody Woodward, another ex-FSU player and head coach, is now assistant general manager of the New York Yankees.

Howser, Grubb and Kennedy are the three former Seminoles to play in a major league all-star game; while Woodward, Kennedy, Grubb and Rick Langford hold the distinction of former Seminoles to play in World Series competition.

Many Seminoles including Jim Weaver, Mark Gilbert and Mike Fuentes, are currently playing in triple A ball - just one step away from the majors.

In all, 30 former Florida State players are still active in professional baseball.

Overall, the Seminoles have had two or more players signed to professional contracts every year since 1968. In 1977, 11 players signed.

The list below contains the names of former Seminoles that have played one or more years in professional baseball, along with the team they originally signed with.

FSU BAT GIRL ORGANIZATION

A long time tradition at Florida State baseball games has been the participation of the FSU Bat Girls. An organization of FSU students, the Bat Girls handle several on-the-field duties associated with FSU baseball games.

In addition, the Bat Girls serve as hostesses at several baseball parties and receptions over the course of the season and provide support in other ways - including remembering players' birthdays and providing sendoffs on road trips.

This year's captains include Shelley Stephens and Rhonda Kerr.
