your "eyes and ears"
with the
Miami Hurricanes

No matter how exciting the game,
there's an added thrill awaiting you in tomorrow morning's HERALD.

The trained eyes of HERALD sports writers capture all the color and drama...the heartbeats and the statistics...the strategy and dressing-room lore that adds so much to the pleasure of football. Inside knowledge of U. of M. football, players and practice sessions... colorfully reported in The HERALD makes it a must for Hurricane supporters.

— and don't tell us that it isn't dignified for a bank to cheer . . .

We are just as enthusiastic about the Hurricanes as any of the other old-timers who are still "saving splinters" from the old, original wooden grandstand which preceded this beautiful Orange Bowl Stadium.

Those were the days when loyal supporters of Miami went out on Saturday afternoons . . . and absorbed the dust and the wind and the sun, right along with the early players —as they took on teams far older and stronger than themselves . . . and won many a hard, hot battle!

Memories of those years come back to us every time the crowd roars for this year's team! And it is a double satisfaction, to realize that scattered in this audience — to watch this very game — are some of the old time fans who shared the "ups and downs" at the beginning!

So, we say again: "We are for the Hurricanes!" (And for every other group or enterprise that will help build Miami.)

DIAL C FOR CONFUSION—

The Hel-met It

THERE'S BEEN SOME mention in the public prints of late on the subject of wiring football helmets for sound to provide a system of communication between the coach on the sidelines and the quarterback on the field.

These same public prints announced first that the opposition team had "tuned in" on the conversation with highly entertaining results. Later it was announced from on high that the whole thing was illegal from now on.

From sources which we hope no one will trust, we have obtained a different version of the whole thing.

Let us play back the script:

The mighty behemoth, wired for sound but not quite so sound on the field, have started an irresistible downfield march. Every time a defender strays six inches out of position, an alert press box scout spots the indiscretion, rushes the information to the coach and he, at once relays this vital information to the field in the form of a play calculated to take advantage of the situation.

Four yards—seven yards for first down—eleven yards for another—six yards, five—another first down and so on downfield go the Behemoths.

It appears that nothing can stop them. It heralds the age when two sets of Univacs will clash in mighty combat in perfection football and fans, with built in TV sets will no longer find it necessary to venture forth to the gridions. Monday morning injury stories will calculate on how long it will take the factory to turn out spare parts needed to restore the vitality of a Univac.

But hey—what's this? The quarterback, in whose helmet the radio receiver was installed, seemed a little perplexed—nay, even dazed after he crawled out from under that last pileup. And what gives with those two big tackles from the Giants who are running off the field laughing their fool heads off and stuffing screwdrivers, nippers and loose pieces of wire under their jersies? Let's go back to the quarterback and tune in with him on the messages he is receiving from the bench—the bench?—listen for yourself . . .

"The flavor's in, caffeine's out," says the bench.

"What the—" says the quarterback. "Okay, Caffie, you go out, the boss says but who's this guy Flavor" Didn't know we had him on the team—the play, coach, the play, give me the play. I haven't called one on my own since I joined the club. Don't let me down now . . . "

"Stop soft spot decay with flouristan," chattily advises the helmet radio.

"I know there's a soft spot up there between left guard and tackle but what's this flouristan business? Is that a new defensive formation you put in that day when I missed practice? Hey there you ref., what's the idea of penalizing us five yards? . . . Delay? Heck, I got a crazy coach on the sidelines. Just a second ref.—he's calling me again . . .

"It's three to one you've got a hole in your head," squawks the merry little voice inside the leather.

"It's not a luxury, it's a modern necessity. Saves you more work, saves you more time than any other appliance you own. The new roll-o-matic dishwasher dryer, so easy to own—only pennies a day?

"There's ain't no such play . . . "

" . . . taste's good like a cigaret should . . . "

"Time out, ref., time out—I'm going to the sidelines . . . "

And our hero rushes to the sidelines, opposite the one on which one ex-radio repairman tackle confides to an ex-do-it-yourself repairman tackle—"I hope we got him tuned into the Doctor Kildare Series."

On the other side of the field in tableau you will see a disgruntled quarterback, pointing to the helmet in hand and his coach stands facing him while the helmet announces . . .

"Do you have financial worries: Come to us and get up to $300 on your signature alone and, as a public service, let us remind you that every good citizen of these United States will cast his vote on November 6. Are you a good citizen?"

week, they outplayed University of Georgia and scored a touchdown only to have it nullified by a penalty. Georgia could not move the stubborn FSU defense and the Bulldogs finally came up with a fourth quarter field goal, a couple of minutes from the final gun for a 3-0 decision. Virginia Tech, beaten only by Tulane, was hard pressed to win 14-7 over the Seminoles.

A week later, North Carolina State bowed to FSU 14-0 and then tough Wake Forest was played to a 14-14 tie. Last week, Villanova, going into action with a three-game winning streak, was flattened 20-13.

This is a smart, well coached and spirited Florida State University ball club, the kind that can take advantage of any opening, can exploit any weakness in the opposition.

It has 19 lettermen but not too much depth as this year the Seminoles have adopted the three year eligibility rule and hence have been able to add but little talent to their 1955 squad.

Their first team should be able to give the Hurricanes a good fight but, unless there is too much of a letdown, the Miami second unit should enjoy a distinct edge over the FSU replacements.

The Seminoles are big enough and their first team has enough experience to give a good account of itself.

Al Pacifico, 205 pound right guard, is rated one of the best in the business and they can put together a starting line averaging close to 210 pounds.

Spark plug of the ball club and a lad who can be counted on for a great performance Friday night is Lee Corso, quarterback who hails from Miami where he quarterbacked for Jackson High School.

Corso was named back of the week in the nation by the United Press after his great play against Wake Forest and he has sparkled against Miami in past performances. He's only 5 feet 10 and weighs but 166. He's all football player, and tonight he'll be keyed to give the greatest performance of a fine college football career. If any one player can upset Miami this evening, he's the lad to do it.

By George Gallet

WHAT HAS SHAPED UP to be the best Florida State University football team of all time offers the opposition to the University of Miami Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl this evening.

And the Seminoles are in an excellent position to attain one of their goals—a football victory over the University of Miami.

All season long, the Hurricanes, who in their first two units use as many sophomores as does Notre Dame, have shown the result of this comparative inexperience by being up for one game and down for the next.

The club turned in a fine performance in vanquishing tough South Carolina 14-7 in the season opener — and the following week had to depend upon mistakes of green Boston College to achieve their second victory.

Miami got back up to turn in a winning performance against then still-potent Maryland in the third game of the season—and then followed with that flat showing against underrated Georgia, the game winding up in a 7-7 tie.

Against Texas Christian, Miami reached its season peak for a 14-0 decision over the highly ranked Horned Frogs. If Miami plays true to form, there's trouble ahead.

Florida State University, fighting desperately to attain the same gridiron stature of Miami and Florida, has turned in a fine campaign and but for one bad break, would come into the game tonight with a 4-1-1 record, instead of its 3-2-1 mark.

The Seminoles opened their campaign by running over Ohio University 47-7. The following

Clemson Scents Orange Blossoms

IF ANY TEAM has more incentive to win a football game than will the Clemson Tigers when they come to Miami two weeks hence, you'd have quite a story to tell.

For instance, the Clemson Tigers, with their record smirched only by a 20-20 tie with Florida, are red hot favorites to represent the Atlantic Conference in the Orange Bowl next New Year's afternoon.

Only a poor showing against the University of Miami hurricanes in that same Orange Bowl two weeks from tonight could jeopardize that opportunity. The Tigers face a fairly stiff test next week against stubborn Virginia Tech but will be overwhelming favorites. Virginia, Maryland and Furman, their other foes ahead are strictly second rate this ycar and pose no real problem. The Miami game is THE one. The Tigers will shoot the works for this one; they can disregard their other games to a large extent to be ready for Miami.

And there are some other reasons why the Tigers will be giving their all in this one. Back on January 1, 1951, Clemson made its last previous Orange Bowl Classic appearance and edged Miami 15-14 in a game which still arouses a lot of ire among Miami fans. The following year, a crippled Hurricane eleven humiliated highly rated Clemson in the Gator Bowl 14-0. That one still rankles in South Carolina but even more, a 39-7 pasting handed Clemson in 1953 by Miami is remembered with no joy in Palmetto-land. That Clemson team was crippled while some of Miami's current seniors were just catching fire and went to town in a big way. Coach Frank Howard relishes defeat less than most coaches and to be "whomped" riles him no end.

Clemson will be ready two weeks from tonight.

And Howard has the wherewithal to make things very tough. He lost 14 lettermen from a 1955 squad, which had a 7-3 record and nearly upset then mighty Maryland. He retained 24 lettermen, most of them with a lot of experience and picked up a fine lot of sophomores, several of whom are starters. He's welded this into a ball club of great balance. It has functioned almost flawlessly on defense, yielding two touchdown in four games. Florida's 20 points represent more tallies than all other Clemson foes have been able to muster. Paradoxically, it was the ease with which Clemson rolled to two quick scores in that game which resulted in a defensive letdown on Clemson's part and the Tigers then had to come from behind to knot the count.

Ace of the line is Dick Marazza, 225 pound tackle giant who won the Jacobs blocking trophy last year, emblematic of his outstanding downfield blocking in his junior campaign. The first team line averages 203 pounds.

Two brilliant seniors and a pair of amazingly good sophomores make up the first string backfield. Charlie Bussey, 162 pound senior quarterback, is called the "headiest quarterback he has ever seen" by Coach Howard. In addition to his sparkling play directing, Bussey is a sharp passer and an able punter.

Joel Wells, at left halfback, a 195 pounder, has been called "the best back in the Atlantic conference and one of the best in the country" by Howard. He topped the Atlantic conference ground gainers with 782 yards a year ago and seems destined to come out on top again this year. He's a defensive wizard as well.

Charley Horne, a transfer from Georgia Tech, gives elusive running skill at right halfback while 215 pound Rudy Hayes is one of the best line plungers Howard has had in a long time—and he generally has lots of fullbacking power.

And this Clemson club doesn't wear down. It has a whole team of lettermen in reserves and most of the third stringers are 1955 lettermen—with plenty of eager sophomores sprinkled in.

There'll be big doings in the Orange Bowl November 16.

UPSETS ARE THE regular order of things these days and present, future and past U. of Miami foes have engaged in their share.

Miami's next foe, Clemson, will have its hands full avoiding an upset this week for the Tigers, undefeated though tied by Florida, tangle with the best Virginia Tech football team in years. Tech has a 6-1 record, the only loss being 21-14 to Tulane. Tech has shown lots of offense and an adequate defense. Only Florida was able to bother the Tigers on defense, but the Tigers have been no world beaters in scoring. Clemson is the better team but if there is any letdown, if there is any looking ahead to Maryland and Miami by the Tigers, they could run into real trouble. Weak North Carolina State nearly caught a letdown Clemson team early in the year. Clemson's 7-0 win over South Carolina could have settled the Orange Bowl issue.

West Virginia fell to 3-3 for the season in losing to Penn State 16-6, but West Virginia has one of the toughest schedules in the East—to date. Their losses were to Pitt 14-13 and to Syracuse 20-13 in other titlts. They have one chance to get back into the national picture—by licking Miami November 24 and George Washington, V.M.I. and Furman will be nothing more than game-type scrimmages as they take a bead on Miami.

Florida assured itself of at least an average season by licking Louisiana 21-6 and running its winning streak to three in a row. The toughies are ahead and if the Gators can win two of their last four, it'll be a successful season. This week's tilt with Auburn's somewhat punchless Tigers gives the Gators a chance to get away flying on the home stretch. Auburn has looked good only against Kentucky, but the defense which blanked three of five foes will give the Gators a busy time of it.

The ponderous Pittsburgh Panthers, who roam the nation looking for rigorous assignments, are 4-1 on the year, could really climb in the national ratings by taking Minnesota this week. The Gophers have had one rough assignment after another this year, may have reached their mid-season peak against Michigan last week—but it would still be an upset if Pitt could win. The winner should reach the nation's top 10 teams.

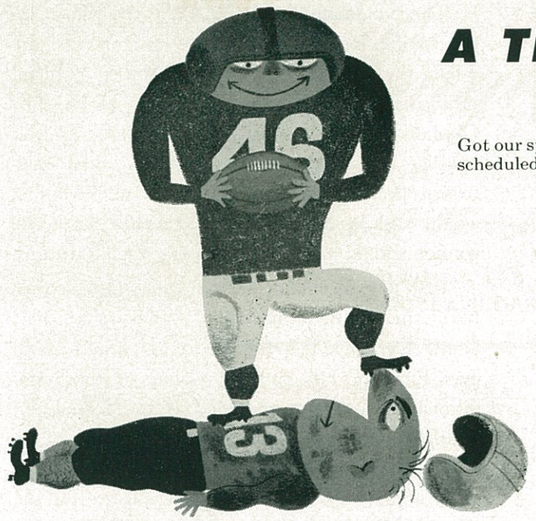

Past foes of Miami are plunging into November's crucial tilts. Ordinarily, you'd figure that South Carolina, 4-2 for the year, would romp over Furman, 1-4, but this is one of those traditional intrastate tussles and it won't be easy. South Carolina will have to be rallied after losing its key game to Clemson and having its Orange Bowl hopes blighted. The Gamecocks are far the superior team, but will have to be rallied to outfight Furman.

Boston College finally makes its home debut, meeting Villanova and should win, though this is a traditional game in which past records are misleading.

Marylands demoralized Terps aren't likely to get organized against a slashing, spirited Kentucky team which edged Georgia last week on a long forward pass two minutes before the final whistle. The Wildcats haven't mustered much offense this year but they are improving defensively and the shattered Terps will provide the openings.

Georgia was disappointed by being unable to hold Kentucky last week yet should gain solace at Alabama's expense this week. The Bulldogs still have not straightened out their offense but the Alabama defense should make Butts' attack look good this week.

Texas Christian meets its third rough test in a row in Baylor this week. The winner has a chance to tie or win the conference crown and a good shot at a bowl bid, but the loser can start building for next year. The TCU club learned the facts of life the hard way in the Miami game and should rebound from this loss. The Frogs could write off the Texas Aggie loss to the weather but what happened to them in the Miami game was something else.

Dean of the School of Music

The 120 members of the Band of the Hour, Fred McCall Director, rate high as musical diplomats. Their flying trips to play in South American countries have made personal friends of Good Neighbors.

The Arnold Volpe Building is the first unit of an expanding School of Music. Here are trained the students you enjoy in the University Symphony Orchestra and Band of the Hour.

The University of Miami Symphony Orchestra, shown here in a joint concert with the chorus, is the only one in the nation to present a full symphony season with an ensemble composed for the most part of student players.

John Bitter, Dean of the School of Music and Conductor of the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra, runs over a score with some of his student players.

Enthusiasm does it. Good music teaching has the same up-and-at-'em as good football coaching. Hold that note!

☆BOB STEWART, junior center from Ocala, is 6 feet, 1 inch tall, weighs 195 pounds. Bob was due for a careful season of conditioning a year ago, playing behind veterans Mike Hudock and Sylvester Martin. However, he had to be rushed into service as early as the Notre Dame game when both regulars got hurt. Bob wound up playing in 82 formations against Notre Dame and went on to win a letter. He seemed set for a season of heavy service this fall but had to miss most of spring practice and when he reported back this fall, he carried the rating of the No. 5 center, that being the total of centers on the varsity squad. Bob saw very little action in the early stages of the fall, but a couple of weeks ago, worked back into shape and his return to form happily coincided with a dearth of experienced centers caused by the injury to Mike Hudock. Bob played a lot of football against both Georgia and Texas Christian and is now beginning to prove what his coaches have believed all along—he has the potential and even on as talented a line as Miami has this year, he can hold up his end satisfactorily.

☆GARY GREAVES, sophomore right tackle, who weighs 200 pounds and stands 6 feet, 2 inches tall, is still filling out and may add 15 or 20 pounds before he graduates. He did his high school playing for Baldwin High in Pittsburgh, where he was an outstanding star—and he was a standout on the 1955 freshman outfit, to prove that his high school honors of all-Valley and all-Western Pennsylvania selection were well merited. Greaves is a natural defensive player as he is quick, a good pursuer and has great speed. He didn't play enough offense in high school to give him experience on that side of the game and actually, last spring he was an ineffective blocker. However, he learns quickly, has the fire and desire, and there's no doubt that, for his weight, he is as good a prospect as they come. He's already had a starting assignment and is one of the best of a fine crop of sophomore linemen. Gary is a three sport man, having played center in basketball and left field in baseball in high school.

☆ED OLIVER, senior right halfback from East Liverpool, O., is 5 feet, 11 inches tall and weighs 184 pounds. At the moment, Ed is Miami's leading point maker—both for this season and also for the carcer of any current player. He is also the toast of the town for a brilliant performance in Miami's sensational 14-0 win over Texas Christian in Ft. Worth last week. It was not ever thus. Ed, a chunky 220 pounder as a freshman, earned the name of "Porky" during those 'over' formative years. Coaches waged a long and bitter battle with Ed over that weight. They figured that if he would get some poundage off, he would be always as great as a football player as he sometimes was. Over the years, he was capable of clutch performances—twice he has been the difference in Florida games. As a freshman, he caught a pass for 28 yards and then smashed over from the 3 to give Miami an upset win, 14-10. As a sophomore, he got off one 55-yard punt to the Florida 5 and in his junior year, his extra point kick was the difference in a 7-6 ball game. He also got off a 47-yard punt to the Florida 10 late in that tilt. This year, his clutch catch and run to the Georgia 1 on a 4th and 11 situation, earned Miami its 7-7 tie with Georgia—and he supplied the extra point. Against TCU, he performed brilliantly on defense, made two fine runs, scored a TD and kicked two extra points. He has nine in a row this year and 11 in succession, starting back in 1955. He has 15 points to his credit this year, 71 in his Miami career.

☆JOE PLEVEL, 6 feet tall and weighing 175 pounds, plays quarterback or, more recently, right halfback. He's from Rochester, Pa., and none other than Babe Parilli, the Kentucky great and also from Rochester, taught him a lot about forward passing. Joe is an excellent defensive player. His all around backfield ability makes him an extremely valuable member of this squad and his elevation to the No. 2 at right halfback in the T.C.U. game indicates he has come a long way toward realizing his potentiality. Joe is in his first year as a member of the varsity squad.
