BOBBY BOWDEN

Many factors go into the making of a truly great head football coach. Many of today's "young gun-slingers" in the coaching business have some of those elements. But few have been able to piece together the entire package like Florida State's amazing Bobby Bowden.

Oh, some claim to be better strategists than Bobby. Some think they are better recruiters. Others claim to be better spokesmen and disciplinarians. But truth be known, you could wrap all those head coaching attributes and so many more into a gift box, and out would pop Bobby Bowden.

With records and personal triumphs mounting at an unbelievable pace, Bowden now leads his program into a bold new world — the Atlantic Coast Conference. A world in which the conference champion is guaranteed a New Year's Day Bowl slot and will likely have a say in the national championship race.

Bowden leads his forces into the new league on an incredible hot streak. A streak virtually unprecedented in college football history.

When Bowden's Florida State Seminoles notched their 10th victory of the 1991 season last November, the amazing Seminole coach had once again figured a way to put himself among the elite coaches of all-time.

Before 1991, only Alabama's Bear Bryant and Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson had been able to coach their teams to 10 or more wins in five consecutive seasons.

To top it off, Bowden led his 1991 bunch to a season-ending 10-2 victory over Texas A&M in the Cotton Bowl. That bowl appearance completed a cycle of New Year's Day bowls for Bowden.

"When I was growing up in Alabama," Bowden said, "there were only the big four New Year's Day games. You had made the big time if you made it to the Orange, the Sugar, the Cotton or the Rose. Well, since FSU can't play in the Rose Bowl, this gives us the complete cycle — Orange, Sugar and Cotton."

Add to that a couple of Fiesta Bowls and a multitude of other post-season trips, and the man may stake his claim as the bowl master of all-time.

The Cotton Bowl win solidified Bowden's place as one of college football's best bowl coaches. His 11-3-1 record in bowl games is truly remarkable. The Cotton was the 10th straight post-season showing by Bowden's Seminoles — a string in which there has not been a loss.

Like fine wine, the 62-year-old Bowden keeps getting better. The list of coaches who have won more games than Bobby is getting so short you might want to jot them down on a matchbook cover. In 1991, Bowden climbed to seventh on the all-time win list. His 216 career victories rank second among active Division I coaches behind only Joe Paterno.

Just how impressive is Bowden's 26-year coaching record? He's now on the same page with all the legends of college football. The six coaches in front of him might as well have invented the game: Bear Bryant, Alonzo Stagg, Pop Warner, Woody Hayes, Bo Schembechler and Paterno.

When Bowden first arrived in Tallahassee in 1976, he described his relationship with the school as "a marriage" and was determined to let "no man put it asunder." True to his word, he begins his 17th season at FSU in 1992.

What Bobby Bowden means to Florida State University off the playing field cannot be measured, even by the most sophisticated of supercomputers. Respect, sincerity, class, honesty, charisma, charm and humor. When they put that kind of data into the system, a giant replica of Bowden will appear.

As if his character isn't enough, his coaching style draws admirers nationwide. A wide-open, gambling style makes Bowden teams a treat to watch, a pleasure to play on and a delight to cover. Reverses, flea-flickers, laterals — you name it, here it comes!

A look at the record shows he's done it both ways. The flashy wins may get all the attention, but for every one of those, there are a dozen others spawned from sound fundamental football. This guy's not just a gambling magician, he can flat out coach!

By now it's been well-chronicled how the Birmingham cracker left the snow and ice of West Virginia to come to Florida State and save the program. Three seasons after he walked on campus, he had taken one of the worst football teams in the country to within one game of a national championship.

Bowden's Florida State record is 143-44-3 (.760). That includes a 76-15-1 (.831) record in Tallahassee and a 67-29-2 (.694) mark away from home. He has built those numbers against some of the nation's toughest schedules. His road record alone includes a 2-0 mark at Ohio State, 1-0 at Notre Dame, 2-0 at Arizona State, 1-0 at Clemson, 4-2 against Nebraska and 2-0 at Syracuse, to name just a few. Last season, he added a coveted 51-31 victory over Michigan in Ann Arbor.

The Coach has been a man of his word, too. At his first FSU press conference in 1976, he said his biggest priority was to play arch-rival Florida on an even keel. The Gators, you see, had owned Florida State, leading the series 15-2-1 at the time. In 16 meetings since his arrival, Bowden owns an 8-8 mark vs. the intrastate school.

Bowden achieved some impressive numbers in his previous coaching stops (31-6 at Samford University in Birmingham between 1959 and 1962, and 42-26 at West Virginia from 1970-75), but what he has done at Florida State is simply phenomenal. Eight times in 16 years, his Seminoles have won 10 or more games in a season. Florida State

Golden Torch Gala Honors FSU's Top Student-Athletes

By Wayne Hogan

Athletic events of varying magnitude always dot the yearly calendar and keep all of us die-hard sports fans on the edge of our seats. But there has emerged one shining star on the Florida State events calendar that has very little to do with athletic achievement.

Last night's second annual Golden Torch Gala proved to be a dazzling and memorable event that promises to have attendees marking their calendars again in 1993. National Football League Hall of Famer and recently-elected Minnesota Supreme Court justice Alan Page provided one of the most prestigious role model guest speakers found in this country.

Terry Fillyaw of our Communications staff wrote the following recap of the night's festivities and here's a tip of my hat to those student-athletes who have distinguished themselves in the classroom. It is indeed unfortunate that these good deeds many times don't get the attention they deserve!

Last night some of Florida State University's brightest stars came out. A sparkling array of prominent individuals filled the Ross Oglesby Union Ballroom. The gala, created by athletic director Bob Goin, is a black-tie affair honoring FSU's student-athletes who have excelled in the classroom. The gala has become an annual tradition at FSU.

"We see the gala as something very special," Goin said. "This black-tie event is the only one of its kind in our department and is a symbol of academic excellence. We have banquets to recognize their athletic accomplishments on the field, but this affair focuses on the success of the student-athlete."

One athlete from each of FSU's 14 sports was honored during the evening's ceremony. These student-athletes were recognized for having the highest grade point averages on their teams for the 1991-92 academic school year.

Highlighting the evening's award presentation was the naming of the Outstanding Scholar-Athletes for the year. The male and female with the highest GPA among FSU's 350 student-athletes was awarded the top prize. Taking home the gala's premier honors were tennis players Amy Hanby and Hiro Takata.

Hanby, a native of Kingwood, Texas, was the lone senior on coach Alice Reen's 13-10 squad last year. A walk-on who overcame career-threatening injuries, Hanby earned the team's highest recognition in winning the 110 Percent Award from her teammates for her commitment and determination.

In the College of Education, Hanby proved to be just as deserving. A 3.94 grade point average is evidence of her academic character.

Reen boasts that Hanby's academic accomplishment is the pinnacle of achievement among student-athletes. "Academics have always been our highest team goal," Reen said. "We talk about academics regularly and stress that they are the real priority around here. Amy is a very conscientious person. Her winning this award shows the discipline she possesses and that discipline rubs off on her fellow teammates."

Takata, a psychology major from Hartford, Conn., literally 'aced' all academic obstacles on his way to posting a perfect 4.0 grade point average.

Men's tennis coach David Barron takes great pride in Takata's academic feat. "I am very excited for him," Barron exclaimed. "He works extremely hard and leads by example. Everyone on our team gains from his accomplishments. We stress that school comes first, tennis is second. It takes a special athlete to excel off, as well as on, the court. Hiro Takata is an individual who fits this very mold."

The Atlantic Coast Conference tossed its elite hat into the gala. Two FSU senior student-athletes were selected as recipients of the ACC Outstanding Senior Male/Female Scholarship Athlete Award.

Penny Siqueiros finished in a league of her own at FSU both athletically and academically. Coach JoAnne Graf's all-star shortstop concluded a career that saw her settle in among the top women softball players ever to attend Florida State. Siqueiros will leave as one of the career leaders in games played, at bats, runs scored, hits, doubles and RBI. She will receive her degree this spring in physical education.

Ron Miller, a member of Coach Pat Kennedy's 1991-92 Sweet 16 squad, used his savvy to excel in the classroom as well as on the hardwood. The former guard supplied Coach Kennedy's team with depth and could often be counted on to hit a key three-pointer or two coming off the bench. Academically, Miller graduated this past summer with a degree in communications and is now working on his master's in athletic administration.

In the team category, it was a clean sweep for FSU's tennis program as both the men's and women's team garnered this year's Golden Torch Gala Award. The women's (3.06) and men's (3.01) tennis teams each posted the highest overall team grade point averages. For the men's team it was the second academic victory in as many years.

President Dale Lick, Goin and keynote speaker Alan Page were just a few of the guests. Also in attendance were all of the Seminoles' head coaches.

The Golden Torch Gala has been set in stone as an annual showcase. Its significance is in honoring the academic achievements of the student-athlete. It symbolizes an appreciation for the extraordinary efforts of Florida State University's finest ... our scholar athletes.

Tribe Scholar-Athlete of the Week

Lewis Tyre
Offensive Guard

The Tribe Scholar-Athlete of the Week is offensive lineman Lewis Tyre.

On the field, Tyre, at 6-5, 262 pounds, is an intimidating force, yet in the classroom it is not his frame that intimidates others.

Tyre's driving desire to receive a quality college education is almost scary.

Seminole Academic Advisor Mark Meloney attributes Tyre's academic success to a strong family background. "His strengths in the classroom are directly related to the support he receives from his family," Meloney said. "He just displays a strong interest in obtaining a college education."

What is the driving force that compels Lewis to get his degree? Well, when he walks up that stage to shake President Lick's hand, Lewis will be the first Tyre to graduate from a university. "Both my parents finished high school, but that's as far as their education took them," Tyre said. "Ever since I can remember, my mom's been there to push my grades. Both my parents stressed academics."

As far as finding the perfect student-athlete, Tyre needs only to look in the mirror. Lewis maintains all the physical intensity on the gridiron to succeed, yet leaves it there. In the business building, where Tyre may major (he is undecided), Lewis maintains all the mental intensity needed to excel.

Coach Jimmy Heggins, Tyre's position coach on the split side of the line, admires his ability to work so hard on both football and academics.

"Lewis is a very conscientious person," Heggins said. "He takes that with him not only on the field, but in the classroom as well."

After this semester, the Surrency, Ga., native will be hovering around a 3.0 grade point average. Only a redshirt freshman, Lewis has three years left to reach the Tyre family milestone. With his determination and family support, Lewis will probably be the first of a long line of Tyres to graduate with a college degree.

had been to just eight bowls in 29 years before him. Since his arrival, FSU has been to 13 bowl games, including a string of 10 in a row and six New Year's Day trips.

In his 16 years, the Seminoles have been a mainstay in the Associated Press Top 20 — ranked by that poll in 176 polls out of 230 possible weeks. An incredible 96 times under Bowden, the Seminoles have been in the top 10 on a given week. What about a top 20 finish? Twelve times in 16 seasons!

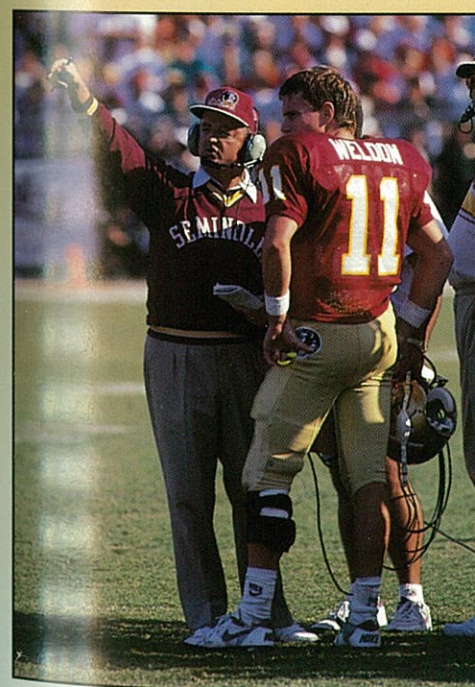

Last year, Florida State became only the fourth school in college football history to record five consecutive top five finishes in the AP rankings. The current run has seen the Seminoles finish second (1987), third (1988-89) and fourth (1990-91) over the last five years. A truly remarkable run.

Above all Bowden's coaching accomplishments, though, are his credentials as a man. Friendly and outgoing, he is a devoted Christian and family man. The Coach loves people. His personality and charm are bigger than life. He has become somewhat of a folk hero in the Deep South.

A polished speaker, Bowden is constantly in demand. His busy coaching schedule curtails many speaking engagements, but any free evening in the year will find him on the after-dinner circuit. Every free Sunday morning will find him in the pulpit of a church somewhere in the South.

Outside of football, Bowden has an intense interest in World War II history and reads countless books and articles on the subject. He traced his ancestry to parts of Germany and had an opportunity to visit the country again last summer.

Bowden was an outstanding player at Woodlawn High School in Birmingham, Ala. and went on to Alabama as a freshman quarterback, fulfilling a lifelong dream to play for the Crimson Tide. During one semester in Tuscaloosa, he found his childhood sweetheart, Ann Estock, and she was enough to lure him back to Birmingham. He soon married Ann and transferred to Howard College (now Samford University) in Birmingham.

Bowden was a Little All-American there and started a long Bowden tradition at the school which goes on even today. He began his collegiate head coaching career there in 1959, and his son Terry is currently the head coach while son-in-law Jack Hines is on Terry's staff. The youngest Bowden son, Jeff, is an assistant coach at Southern Mississippi and Tommy Bowden is the offensive coordinator at Auburn. Oldest son Steve is on the faculty at Flagler College in St. Augustine, Fla. The four boys, daughters Robyn Hines and Ginger Madden, and their families, make up the Bowden clan, which numbers 24 and includes 10 grandchildren.

The Seminole Hit Man

John Davis Has Had More Big Hits Than Elvis

By Terry Fillyaw

If getting through Florida State's defensive front is like a bad night's rest for an offensive back, then making it into the secondary is an absolute nightmare. For it is here that strong safety John Davis roams.

When opposing players enter Davis' neck of the woods they best beware because his domain is not for the faint of heart. "He's got the stuff of a Ronnie Lott or Steve Atwater," says teammate Felix Harris. "You can't go in there half-stepping because JD's gonna bring the funk (heat)."

John Davis, or JD for short, was once a skinny, quiet kid from Pahokee, Fla. Although he is still a quiet soul, his skinny frame has nicely made room for an additional 30 pounds of muscle over the past four years.

"My teammates and Coach Van (strength coach Dave Van Halanger) are inspiring when it comes to the weight room," Davis says. "Every summer we have our strength program and Coach Van has constantly been on my back about working out. It's also something I have to do for myself in order to be a great player."

When his 6-2, 225-pound frame gets cranked up to full velocity, Davis can utterly ruin an opponent's visit to Doak Campbell Stadium. A Cheshire cat like smile comes across Davis' face when he talks about his favorite part of football.

"As an individual I thrive on making big hits," Davis says. "I mean, I like to hit people so hard that there has to be a TV timeout while they collect themselves. Interceptions are great, but knocking somebody backwards, that's what I consider my job."

"If I don't make that big hit then I feel I've let my teammates and coaches down. I'm disappointed in myself. Playing defense on this team can be compared to a musical group signing a recording contract. If you don't make any big hits you won't last long," Davis states.

In 1989 he was one of only two true freshmen to play for the Seminoles. He certainly was not the biggest, or fastest, at his position, but Davis possessed a nasty streak on the football field. It is Davis' vicious disposition that allows him to wreck dreams of victory for his adversaries.

"My freshman year in '89 I hit Amp Lee so hard during a drill that coaches and players stopped practice to surround me. That was when it all started," Davis remembered.

Davis' big hits seem to stick in his memory like records in a jukebox. Just punch the number and replay a tune. "Last year at LSU they thought they had won that game. I hit their flanker, Todd Kinchen (now with the Los Angeles Rams) so hard it separated him from the ball and he just laid there for a while listening to my lecture on the price to be paid for coming into my area," Davis says.

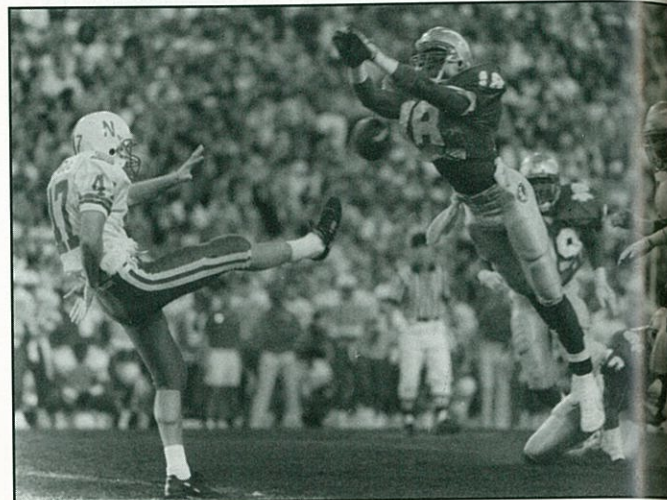

Stan Shiver, a former strong safety who once gave offenses fits while playing for the Seminoles, now coaches Davis. Shiver says Davis' mentality on the field is one of complete destruction.

"He loves the physical part of the game," Shiver says. "If he comes off the field without a big hit he feels dejected. He's got this pent-up energy that can only be released through physical contact. He's a ball player."

Davis' piercing eyes have earned him the nickname "Gator" from teammates. His eery gaze into an offensive backfield is reminiscent of an anxious tiger ready for an assault. An error in judgement usually spells doom for an offensive back or receiver.

"You can see the over-intensity in his eyes from across the line, they say, 'Get ready for a collision,'" Harris says.

With enough big hits to make Casey Kasem's weekly "American Top 40" countdown, Davis has caught the eye of NFL scouts. They have already begun comparing him to the likes of Miami Dolphins' safety

Louis Oliver and the Denver Broncos' Steve Atwater.

"It's a great feeling to be compared to guys like them," says a reserved Davis. "It gives me an emotional high and I'm going to do my darndest to not disappoint any of those expectations. But right now, I'm in this for the team."

"We realized a team goal this year winning the ACC championship. The Miami loss hurt our dreams of a national championship, but it's still within reach. I'm giving my best for the team which, in turn, helps prepare me for the next level," Davis says.

Thinking of the material luxuries that an NFL career affords, Davis' thoughts are focused on his immediate family. "My mom has done everything to help get me where I am today," Davis says. "I'll provide my mom with a nice home and car. Making my mom happy is a priority. I'm a patient person and can put off my wants until later."

Once he steps across the white line though, that's where the kindness ends. To those running backs and receivers who enter Doak Campbell Stadium with visions of offensive success against a Seminole defense that features the likes of John Davis ... dream on.

This is Florida State

Florida State University, nearing its golden anniversary as a coeducational graduate research institution, is on the brink of joining the nation's academic elite.

Located on the oldest continuous site of higher education in Florida and building rapidly on the framework of a highly regarded liberal arts college for women, the university has emerged over the past 45 years as an institution of national and international esteem. Its stature is evidenced by a number of exciting additions to its record of excellence since the 1990s began:

- In 1990, the National Science Foundation established the $100 million National High Magnetic Field Laboratory at Florida State, which is partnered in research with the Los Alamos National Laboratory and the University of Florida. A Nobel laureate in physics and a top Russian physicist are among the first scholars drawn to the FSU faculty by the magnet lab.

- In 1990, Florida State ranked second in popularity nationwide among high school seniors, based on the number of students who request that their Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores be sent to an institution. FSU was the only institution listed among the top 10 choices of both black and white college-bound students.

- The Appleton Museum of Art in Ocala, its vast and varied art collection and an eminent scholar chair were donated to FSU and Central Florida Community College in 1990. Valued at $42 million, the gift is the largest ever received at Florida State.

- Now the professional training ground for one of Florida's fastest growing industries, film production, FSU graduated the first class of graduate film students from its School of Motion Picture, Television and Recording Arts in 1991. The school offers a bachelor's degree program in Tallahassee and a master of fine arts program in Sarasota. Its students have already succeeded in producing award-winning films at national and international levels.

- Construction of the $82 million University Center is under way adjacent to Doak

When completed, the University Center will provide 550,000 square feet of classroom and office space and a centralized location for student services. The three-phase project will include two eight-story buildings and three four-story buildings on the east and west sides of the stadium, enclosure of the south end zone and expansion of Moore Athletic Center.

- FSU ranked 20th in the nation for 1990-91 in the number of black Ph.D. students it graduates. Over the five years from 1986 to 1990, FSU ranked eighth nationally by granting doctorates to 70 African-Americans.

- In 1992, FSU College of Law graduates led the state with a 97.5 percent passing rate among law graduates taking the state bar exam for the first time.

As this list attests, Florida State has begun the 1990s with exceptional strength, energy and vision for the future. And, under the leadership of the university's president, Dr. Dale W. Lick, FSU will continue to build on the foundation of its long history of excellence in scholarship, research and service.

A public institution and a senior member of the nine-member State University System, FSU was founded in 1851 by legislative act and began operating in Tallahassee with its first students in 1857.

For years FSU has reached far beyond Florida through international programs in Switzerland, Yugoslavia, France, Panama, Costa Rica and the Caribbean. FSU's study centers in Florence, Italy, and London, England, are considered by many to be the nation's best in Europe.

Florida State offers 274 graduate and undergraduate degree programs through its eight colleges — Arts and Sciences; Business; Communication; Education; Engineering (operated jointly with Florida A&M University, a historically black institution); Human Sciences; Law; and Social Sciences (which also incorporates the School of Public Administration and Policy) — and eight schools — Criminology and Criminal Justice; Library and Information Studies; Motion Picture, Television and Recording Arts; Music; Nursing; Social Work; Theatre; and Visual Arts and Dance.

With 1,577 members, the FSU faculty currently includes five members of the National Academy of Sciences and four of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and has included five Nobel laureates.

The main library facility, the Robert M. Stroz Library, is linked via a computerized information system to other state university and national research libraries. The Paul A.M. Dirac Science Center Library is located at the heart of the university's main science research complex.

On the top floor of the Dirac Library is the headquarters of the Supercomputer Computations Research Institute program that brings together some 50 scientists, engineers and technicians. SCRI is electronically linked to an off-campus research complex at Innovation Park and the university's two powerful supercomputers.

Also providing unique research opportunities is the physics department's tandem Van de Graaff Superconducting Accelerator Laboratory, which houses two powerful atom smashers and is ranked among the top four nuclear research centers in the nation by the National Science Foundation.

FSU places a high priority on its 28,600 students and their needs and interests. The Honors and Scholars program, the Distinguished Lecture Series, Student Government, the all-collegiate Flying High Circus and intramural sports are among more than 200 organizations and activities for students.

In all areas of its mission of excellence in teaching, research and public service, Florida State University is advancing boldly into the 21st century.

What About Size?

Tommy Henry Proves That It's Desire That Counts

By Terry Fillyaw

How ironic it was to see 6-0, 175-pound Tommy Henry buried beneath 315 pounds of Tiger lineman after swiping an errant Clemson aerial earlier this season in Death Valley. And how ironic it was to see familiar number 41 squirt his gaunt body free from the wreckage unscathed. It seems Tommy Henry has found himself looking for a light at the end of many tunnels throughout his 22 years.

Born in Arcadia, a modest south Florida town that annually mixes the smells of watermelon fields with the sweltering summer heat, Henry spent every summer since junior high school working those fields trying to earn the finances that would afford him such necessities as clothes for school.

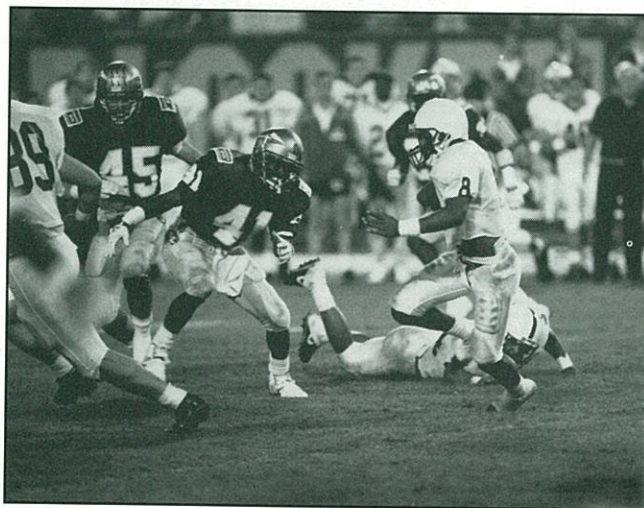

"My mom was a nurse, so she made a good salary," Henry said. "I just wanted to make money to buy clothes and help her out with some of the bills."

The oldest of three children, Henry grew up in a single-parent home — his first taste of adversity. "I remember being at home by myself and having no father-figure there for me," he said. "My mom worked all the time. She was my role model."

As a youngster he found father figures in the form of little league coaches. Athletics was the outlet in which a young Tommy excelled, although he was constantly reminded of his inferior physical attributes. "Since I was a little boy I have always been told that I was too small to play sports," Henry said. "Someone is always quick to tell you that you can't do something — what I needed was someone to tell me what I could do."

At Arcadia High School Henry waded through the illegal temptations that caused some of his friends to desert their education.

Henry gives great credit to his grandmother for teaching him important values. If Henry's mother was his role model, his grandmother was his inspiration, giving him the confidence he needed on the athletic field. Henry proved to be a fine basketball player averaging 18.0 points per game, but football was where his future lay. He earned first team All-State honors at quarterback his senior year and played in the Florida-Georgia All-Star game.

His commitment to Florida State in 1988 marked yet another blue-chip deposit in defensive coordinator Mickey Andrews' wealthy vault of defensive backs. However, the reality of the depth chart scarred his pride and confidence. Then during his first two-a-day practice, Tommy Henry's world came crashing down on top of him. A young man away from home for the first time stood alone, and listened silently as his mother's voice told him his grandmother, his inspiration, had passed away.

"She was the perfect Christian lady," said a thoughtful Henry. "She believed in us all attending church and was so family-oriented. Every Sunday was the day she cooked for the entire family at her house. She taught me right from wrong and she showed me how to live my life. I still think of her often."

His return to Florida State would be even more difficult since it would take a while for football to become a positive experience. To earn playing time, Henry was mired behind some of the finest defensive backs in the history of college football, mainly the likes of Deion Sanders, LeRoy Butler and Terrell Buckley — all currently employed in the National Football League.

"He came in when Deion, LeRoy, Terrell and Errol McCorvey were here and those are some pretty good athletes," An-draws said. "We're talking about two Jim Thorpe winners (awarded to the nation's best defensive back) in the past four years. He had some adversity to overcome. He had a weight problem and he was a quarterback so his instincts were different."

"I learned a lot from those guys, but it was so hard," Henry said. "I never knew what it was like to sit on the bench. I was hurt and lost all motivation. My confidence was gone."

Strength coach Dave Van Halanger considers Henry a special individual. "When he first came here he was 158 pounds and not very strong. He could vertical jump 29 inches. Now Tommy has put on nearly 20 pounds, increased his bench press by 100 pounds and can vertical jump a team best 41-1/2 inches. He has a real gift to motivate himself — he's just a super kid."

Coach Andrews agrees. "He's got pride about himself and a great desire to be successful. Tommy wants to be the best he can."

Looking back at those days in Arcadia and now at FSU, Henry feels the trials he once faced of being told he was not big enough to play sports, the pressure by his peers to get involved with illegal drugs, the death of his grandmother and now the four-year wait for this 1992 season, has only made him a better person. "It has definitely built character," Henry said. "There is not too much that can get me down anymore."

So if number 41 is smothered under tonight by the Green Wave, no need to hold your breath — Tommy Henry will get right back up.

President Dr. Dale W. Lick

Dr. Dale W. Lick is the 11th president of Florida State University, a senior member of the nine public universities in Florida's State University System. The president heads a coeducational, research institution with an enrollment of 28,600 students, an operating budget of $412 million and $100 million in contracts and grants.

Lick, who took office at FSU in August 1991, previously served as president of two institutions of higher education, the University of Maine and Georgia Southern College.

A mathematician by academic discipline, Lick also has held administrative positions at Old Dominion University, Russell Sage College and Drexel University.

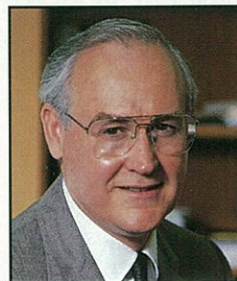

A native of Michigan, born Jan. 7, 1938, in Marlette, Lick is an alumnus of Michigan State University. He received a bachelor of science degree from MSU in 1958, graduating in three years with honors, and a master of science degree in 1959, both in mathematics. He earned a Ph.D.

in mathematics from the University of California at Riverside in 1965.

After completing his doctorate, Lick joined the faculty at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville as an assistant professor of mathematics. Two years later, while on leave, he was a visiting research mathematician at Brookhaven National Laboratory in New York. He returned to UT as a tenured associate professor of mathematics.

In 1969, Lick became head of the Department of Mathematics at Drexel University in Philadelphia, Pa., while at the same time serving as an adjunct associate professor in biomathematics at Temple University Medical School. Also, from 1966 to 1971, he was a consultant to the Computing Technology Center of Union Carbide Corp. for Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

Lick moved to Troy, N.Y., in 1972 to serve as vice president for academic affairs at the private Russell Sage College. Two years later, he was named dean of the School of Sciences and Health Professions and professor of mathematics and computing sciences at Old Dominion University.

From July 1978 to September 1986, Lick was president of Georgia Southern and a professor of mathematics and computer science, and helped to lead the Statesboro institution from a teachers' college to university status.

In September 1986, Lick became president and professor of mathematics at the University of Maine, the land-grant university and Sea Grant College of Maine and the largest of the seven institutions in the University of Maine System.

Florida State's 11th president has been married since 1956 to Marilyn K. Foster. The Licks have three children, Kitty, Diana and Ronald.

to no one in particular, "Is our plane in good condition? Has it been serviced? Who's flying us today?"

Back in the early '60s when we had to charter those old DC-3 four-prop jobs, he was always worried if we would finish the flight on all four engines. I suppose it was understandable since there had been occasions when an engine had to be feathered before landing. It was routine for Coach Pete to go out on the tarmac and inspect the plane's engines. If there was one drop of oil on the ground, Coach would head back into the terminal looking for Florida State Director of Athletics Vaughn Mancha hollering, "Mancha, what are you trying to do, get us all killed? This plane isn't fit for flying."

when Coach Pete spotted a lone figure up in Campbell Stadium looking across Pensacola Street toward the practice fields. "That's a spy," he hollered.

Those were certainly exciting days. With Coach Pete, there was never a dull moment. In spite of all his “bizarre” behaviors, I really believe that Coach Pete was one of the country’s best coaches. In 1960 when he came to Florida State, he took over a football program that was in deep trouble. When he left 11 years later, he had become the most significant coach in the first 25 years of FSU football. Under Coach Pete, the Seminoles went 62-42-11. His most memorable year was in 1964 when the “Seven Magnificents” led Florida State to a 9-1-1 record and the Seminoles’ first-ever win over Florida. I cherish the years that I had the opportunity to work with him.

Leaving the practice, he ran to the equipment truck, started it up and drove like a bat out of hell to the Stadium. Once there, he ran out of the truck, with the engine still running, sprinted 80 rows to the top and began interrogating the person. "Why are you spying on my practice and who's paying you to do it?" he asked. The perplexed suspect just looked at Coach Pete and explained that he was the stadium janitor and was getting some fresh air after cleaning the press box.

Coach Pete was always trying different ways to get his players excited and to stir up their adrenaline. This was especially true on the bus trip to the stadium on game days. There were times when he would tell me to “step on it” and turn the corners “on two wheels.” He instructed me to do this in hope that it would force the police escort to drive so fast that they would have to turn the siren on, which would get the players excited.

On out of town trips, Coach Pete would worry incessantly about the upcoming flight. He would sit on the bus and ask,

Athletic Director Bob Goin

In his third year as the athletic director, Bob Goin has been one of the leading forces in moving Florida State athletics into the future. Presently, Goin is overseeing the stadium expansion, the addition of the new state of the art Academic Center, and the building of the Daisy Parker Flory Wing of the Moore Athletic Center.

In 1991, Goin and former FSU President Bernard Sliger were widely credited with making the most important move in the school's athletic history when Florida State joined the Atlantic Coast Conference. By implementing one of the nation's top compliance programs, spearheading the development of athletic facilities and committing himself to continuing FSU's unprecedented successes both on and off the athletic field, Goin has proven himself an excellent leader in his three years at the helm of FSU's athletic program.

Among his national responsibilities, Goin was recently named to the prestigious NCAA Interpretations Committee and to the Executive Committee of the Division I-A Athletics Directors Association. Goin also begins his second year serving on the Atlantic Coast Conference Television Committee in 1992.

An assistant and then associate athletic director at Florida State from 1982-90, Goin was responsible for many aspects of the day-to-day operations.

Goin came to FSU in 1981 after two years as athletic director at California (Pa.) State College, where he was credited with expanding the athletic department. During his time there, he formed the Cal State Athletic Scholarship Fund and Athletic Booster Club.

Prior to taking the California post, he served as assistant athletic director at West Virginia. While at West Virginia from 1976-79, Goin was involved in several expansion projects, including construction of a new stadium and athletic facility.

From 1960-1976, Goin worked at Bethany College, as an associate professor and chairman of physical education and athletics, as well as taking coaching assignments in football, basketball and baseball.

Goin currently serves on many university-wide committees. As Chairman of the Compliance Committee, Goin has developed and implemented a program which protects the integrity of the university by making sure each and every regulation governing intercollegiate athletics is followed. He is also on the Campus Alcohol and Drug Information Center Committee.

Goin and his wife, Nancy, have four children — Doug, Brian, Janice and Bruce.

Call Him a Winner

Whatever You Call Him, DB Lavon Brown is as Steady as They Come

By Donna Turner

is teammates and the folks in his hometown know him as "MoJo." His mother knows him as Ellrowlyn. But most Seminole fans don't know Lavon Brown at all.

Brown is one of those "others," the unknowns, on the Florida State defense. The ones who run in on third down in key situations. The ones who start some games, play nearly half the downs, always give it their all and rarely make a big mistake. They play on all the special teams units.

Lavon Brown is hardly an unknown to Mickey Andrews, FSU's defensive coordinator and defensive backfield coach.

"He's a great competitor," Andrews said. "We never worry about his effort, or his intensity. He's one of our leaders."

In fact, Andrews and the rest of the FSU coaching staff consider Brown and fellow senior John Davis co-starters at strong safety. They have so much confidence in both Brown and Davis, that the two arrange their own substitution schedule during the game.

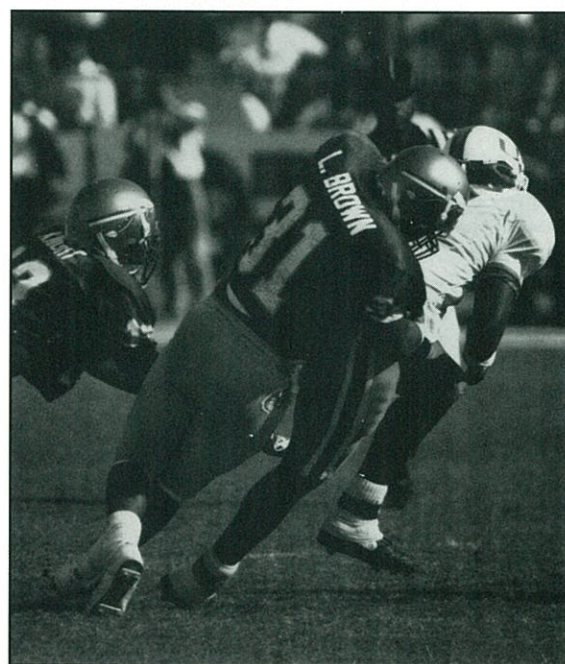

"We consider both of them starters, interchangeable," Andrews said. "We don't miss anything when one or the other is in. Once we gain confidence in the players, we allow for greater substitution. They both know when they need a rest, and they work that out between themselves."

Brown has unselfishly shared the starting strong safety job with Davis for the past two seasons. He has racked up nearly 100 career tackles while also contributing as a key member of the FSU special teams.

While he is justifiably proud of his work on the Florida State defensive and special teams units, there's one accomplishment that will surpass any he has had on the football field.

"I was always determined to make sure school was my No. 1 goal," Brown says. "I had a few misses, academically, my first year. I had to get myself together."

Get himself together he did. And in December, Brown will become the first member of his family to earn a college degree.

Strong safety Lavon Brown has registered 97 tackles during his career.

"My great inspiration is my mom," Brown says. "She raised eight children by herself. All she talks about is me getting that degree."

In a way, Brown's academic success exemplifies all that is good about college football. His mother raised eight children in Moore Haven, a tiny town on the southwest side of Lake Okeechobee halfway between Ft. Myers and West Palm Beach. During the long harvest season, Annie Brown would leave to work for the U.S. Sugar Corporation at 5 a.m. and return after dark.

A high school quarterback, Lavon was the most-highly recruited athlete in the history of Moore Haven High. Only 40 people were in Brown's graduating class, and only about 15 went on to college. Yet his outstanding athletic ability attracted recruiters from Miami, East Carolina, Mississippi State and Missouri, in addition to Florida State.

Although he could have been an option quarterback at East Carolina or Mississippi State, Brown chose Florida State, in part because of an aunt who lives in Tallahassee and helped him make the adjustment to the "big city."

"It was a big change for me," Brown said. "Adapting to college life after coming from a real small town was hard. My aunt helped me out a lot. I've matured drastically."

Fellow senior and Clewiston native Reggie Freeman has known Brown since elementary school. They grew up 10 miles apart and always competed against each other. Separately, they both decided on Florida State, and both majored in criminology. Both will graduate in December. Freeman is not surprised that Brown came out of a small town environment to succeed in Tallahassee.

"I think we just had good home training," Freeman said. "Lavon shows a lot of responsibility. It's one of his greatest assets."

Andrews isn't surprised by Brown's success either. He recognizes the hard work and dedication Lavon has displayed both in the classroom and on the football field.

"He had to reach up to a higher level to be successful," Andrews said. "Football has not been easy for him and neither has academics. He's a guy that made a commitment to help his team and to get a degree."

He has done both while earning the respect and affection of his teammates and coaches.

"Lavon is the type of guy who is not real vocal," Davis says. "He's pretty much to himself. But he knows a lot and he's a fun guy to be around."

You possibly haven't seen him doing any television interviews, or haven't read any stories about him, but as his teammates, friends and coaches will tell you, he's no unknown.

Call him "MoJo" — his childhood nickname, call him Ellrowlyn — his given name, or call him Lavon. But definitely — call him a winner.

The Last Line of Defense

Free Safety Leon Fowler is the Seminoles' Safety Net

By Jessica Reo

When you look at Leon Fowler, he is not typical of what you would expect of a football player. But looks can be deceiving. The 6-2, 195-pound senior is an impact player who hungers for the "play of the game" every time he's on the field. And he usually makes them. His intense desire to have the "big-hit" is unusual because he is generally a quiet, soft-spoken person.

For the past five years, Fowler has spent a great deal of his free time with roommate Robbie Baker. But these two teammates have known each other long before they came to Florida State.

"Leon and I played pee-wee football together and in his sophomore year, he moved to Ft. Myers High School and we played high school ball together," says Baker. "We've played baseball together since we were little, too. Leon is a great athlete at every position he plays. He's extremely talented and has good concentration when he is playing."

And Baker would know better than anyone about Fowler's athletic skills. While they were in high school, Fowler played quarterback and Baker was his center. "I had the option of being a receiver or safety when I came to Florida State," said Fowler. "I thought I'd have a better opportunity at free safety. There are times when I feel like I would like to have played receiver, but I'm satisfied with my decision."

And the team is happy with his choice. With his laid back, easy going manner, and strong desire to play, he's a silent leader on the team. People seem to like him automatically because he's very approachable and this shows in his attitude.

"One of the greatest aspects of our team is that everybody enjoys one another," Fowler explains. "If you didn't, it would be really tough to stay in there and play. The guys keep you going and there's a lot of kidding and joking around."

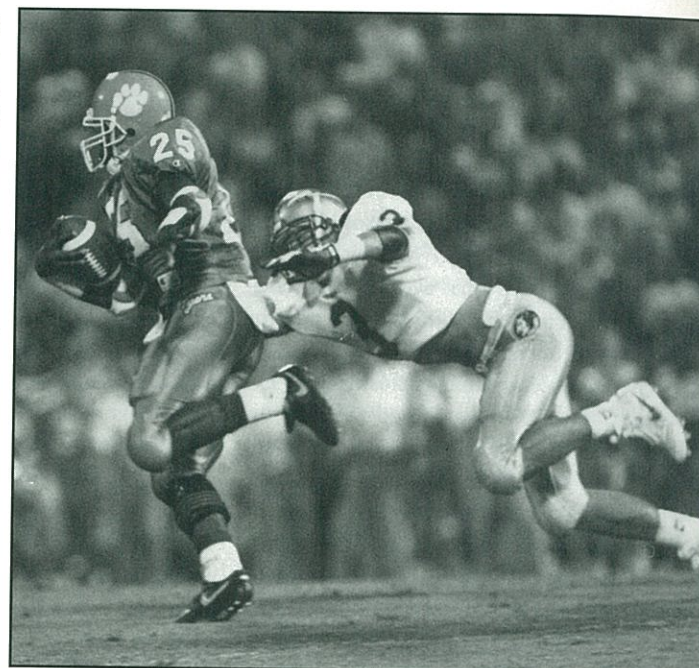

Fortunately, the jokes don't interfere with his threatening play-making abilities. Fowler was recently the Tomahawk Player of the Game against Virginia. He is currently the leading tackler among defensive backs and has been for the last two years. Coach Mickey Andrews says, "Leon is a very important part of our defense because the free safety has the responsibility of getting the coverage checks and getting the right formations. He's a smart football player and we can always count on him getting us in our proper defenses."

The senior is on pace to have a career year. With two games left, Fowler already has two interceptions for 94 yards and one touchdown. He's caused three fumbles, broken up five passes (bettering his personal best of three in a season) and with 50 tackles on the year he is quickly closing in on his season-high total of 59.

After a year as a redshirt freshman, Fowler bounded into his starting role, pulling out all the stops, so to speak. He points to the 1989 season finale against Florida as the game that launched his collegiate career. "It was my first-ever start and I was up against Emmitt Smith. I had to challenge myself against a great running back like Smith. I was too naive to be intimidated. But on the other hand, I had to be confident and believe in my capabilities. That game proved to me that I had what it takes to play at this level."

"Sweet Lee," as nicknamed by former teammate LeRoy Butler because of his fashion sense, has consistently been haunted by injuries. From nagging shoulder and ankle problems, to knee surgery, Fowler has had challenges in front of him every step of the way. In addition to the physical wear and tear, Fowler has had to endure the tremendous pressure that comes with being a member of the Seminoles' last line of defense. In a position where a missed tackle could mean six points for the opponent, Fowler's passion for the game has compensated for the injuries he's suffered. "I'm not the biggest and strongest person, but I try to be a physical player," says Fowler. "My body takes a toll because of that."

Coach Andrews agrees, adding, "Leon wasn't blessed with blinding speed, but he has good playing speed which allows him to adjust to the ball and to be in the right place at the right time. He always goes all out."

True to form, the defensive back has made a decision as to where he wants his life to lead him. As a risk management major, Fowler explains, "I realize that there's a lot more than playing football in life." With just six credit hours left before he'll graduate, Fowler has shown that he has the strength and desire to succeed in whatever he pursues.

Doak Campbell Stadium

Home of the Florida State Football Seminoles since 1950, Doak Campbell Stadium continues to grow and improve to accommodate an ever-increasing group of Seminole football fans. During the 1992 season, the stadium will actually grow right in front of the fans' eyes as the enclosure of the south end zone is scheduled for completion this fall.

The south end zone enclosure and expansion of the Moore Athletic Center on the opposite side of the field is just a small portion of the University Center project, which will provide 550,000 square feet of classroom and office space and a centralized location for student services when completed. The University Center will eventually wrap around the entire stadium, giving the structure a whole new look.

The current expansion is the eighth in the history of the stadium. It will bring the capacity of Doak Campbell Stadium to 70,123, up nearly 10,000 seats from the 60,519 it has held since the last expansion in 1985.

It's hard to imagine the first Doak Campbell Stadium, with a capacity of 15,000 back in 1950. Since then, seven expansions added more than 45,000 seats to the stadium before the current work began. In 1954, the stadium grew to a capacity of 19,000, and 6,000 more seats were added in 1961. During the Bill Peterson era (1960-70), the stadium was expanded to 40,500 seats, and it remained at that capacity for the next 14 years. Between 1978 and 1982, there were three more additions.

The new closed-in south end zone should provide even more of a home-field advantage for Bobby Bowden's Seminole football team, as if it needs any more advantage. Since Florida State defeated the Randolph Macon Yellowjackets 40-7 on Oct. 7, 1950 in the first game ever played in Doak Campbell, the Seminoles have continued those winning ways at home. All-time, Florida State is 159-66-3 in 228 home games for a winning percentage of .704. Under Bobby Bowden, that home winning percentage has improved to .831 with only 15 home losses in 16 years. Bowden's record at Campbell Stadium is 76-15-1.

An empty Doak Campbell Stadium is not exactly one of the most impressive sites in college football. But fill it with more than 60,000 die-hard, garnet-and-gold clad, screaming Seminole fans on a humid September night or a sunny November afternoon, and the stadium is transformed into one of the most exciting places in the state and even the nation. On those six Saturdays a year, it's easy to see (and hear) why FSU's football teams have found so much success at home.

Last year, the largest crowd in history, 63,442, packed every nook and cranny of the stadium to watch a classic battle between the top two teams in the nation when FSU played Miami on Oct. 16. All six Seminole home game attendances last year ranked among the top 15 all-time. Florida State averaged more than 61,000 fans per home game for the second straight year and for only the third time in school history. The Tribe home games last year attracted 367,833 fans for an average of 61,305.

Named for Doak S. Campbell, the first president of Florida State University, the stadium sits adjacent to the Moore Athletic Center on the edge of the main campus. The stadium seats, each one offering an unrestricted view, rise out of a Bermuda grass turf enclosing the field. Fans enjoy all the modern conveniences with spacious aisles, numerous concession areas and plenty of restroom facilities. A professional public address system, first aid booths and effective security system operate at every Seminole home game.

The field itself is one of the finest in college football, carefully managed and manicured year-round. A prescription athletic turf (PAT) system installed in 1988 quickly alleviates drainage problems through a series of underground pumps. The field can go from seemingly flooded to merely wet in a matter of minutes, thanks to these pumps, which allow a deeper root system in the natural turf.

Seminole football games are always a media event and the press box at Doak Campbell Stadium features seating for nearly 100 writers, as well as broadcast booths for radio and television. Rising above the west stands, the box also includes separate president and operations levels, and a photo deck area outside of the top floor.

Another change to Doak Campbell Stadium this season is the brand new scoreboard in the north end zone, which replaces the large board that used to stand in the south end zone. The new scoreboard will provide even more information and features an expanded graphics and message center.

With the enclosure of the south end zone and the start of the University Center project in 1992, the '90s promise dramatic improvements to Doak Campbell Stadium. Like its residents, the Seminole football team and its fans, Doak Campbell Stadium is well on its way to becoming a top-notch facility, and a fitting showcase for Florida State University.

Doak Campbell Stadium has been expanded eight times in its history.

Charles W. Ehrhardt

Faculty Athletic Committee Chairman

Now beginning his ninth year as Chairman of the FSU Athletic Committee, Charles Ehrhardt continues to be an important voice for Florida State on both the conference and national levels.

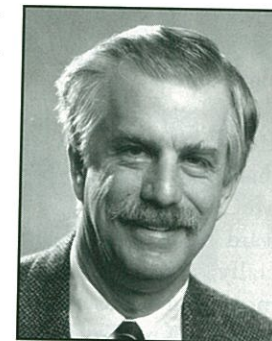

Presently, Ehrhardt is entering his fourth year as a member of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Special Committee. Appointed by NCAA Executive Director Dick Schultz, Ehrhardt and the committee review the NCAA Enforcement and Infractions Process.

Twice elected president of the Metro Conference, Ehrhardt has served as chair of the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association and has been a member of the College Football Association's Monitoring Committee since 1989.

This is Ehrhardt's second stint on FSU's Athletic Committee. A professor of law at Florida State since 1967, he first worked on the committee from 1969-71.

He was reappointed to the board in 1983, and succeeded Dr. James Jones as chairman in 1984, becoming Florida State's representative to the NCAA with the appointment.

A highly-respected expert in the field of Evidence, Ehrhardt is the Ladd Professor of Evidence in the Florida State College of Law. He is the author of the Florida Evidence Code, passed by the state legislature in 1976, which deals with the admissibility of evidence in court trials. He also has written a book on evidence which is now in its third edition.

Ehrhardt is in demand as a lecturer and speaker. He works with lawyers and judges nationwide as a private consultant on evidence matters. He currently teaches in the areas of torts, evidence, trial advocacy and sports law. He has been honored four times as the outstanding professor in FSU's College of Law and also was the recipient of a University Teaching Award in 1989.

A native of Elkader, Iowa, Ehrhardt received a bachelor's degree from Iowa State University in 1962. He went on to the University of Iowa where he earned his law degree two years later. He eventually became an Assistant United States Attorney in Iowa before coming to Tallahassee. Ehrhardt and his wife, the former Judy Sutton, have three children.

Florida State Gaining Fast in College Football

By Steve Humphries

A Florida State professor's research into college football has given a whole new meaning to the phrase "Seminole Uprising."

Harold McConnell, who teaches a sports geography course at FSU, has analyzed every Associated Press final college football poll since the first in 1936. And there's no doubt that the Seminoles are on the rise as one of the sport's elites.

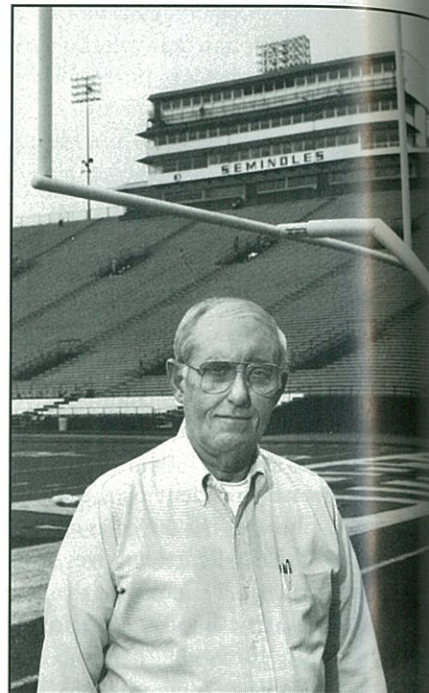

Of course, Florida State has finished among the top four Division I-A schools in the nation each of the past five years. But did you know that since 1979, FSU has had the third-best composite ranking of any team in the nation? Only Nebraska and some team in South Florida have had higher overall finishes.

"If you look at the top 25 teams since 1979, you find a different set of programs than you find in the top teams since '36," McConnell notes. "There has been upward movement by Sunbelt teams, especially in the Southeast, and downward movement by teams from the rest of the country. And Florida State is among the best anywhere."

By the way, that Gainesville team made the best-since-'79 list also — down there tied with Ohio State.

Florida State's success, however, is not limited to the past 13 seasons. McConnell points out that FSU is ranked at No. 26 all-time in AP polls — a tremendous accomplishment since the Tribe didn't start playing football until 1947. This means most other schools had an 11-year headstart on FSU in the all-time rankings.

Dr. Harold McConnell has been a professor in the Geography Department since 1972.

Barring catastrophe, McConnell says, Florida State will overtake Minnesota and Army to move to No. 24 all-time in the AP poll at the end of this season.

"(FSU's) all-time AP ranking is amazing considering they didn't get into big-time college football until the late 1940s," McConnell said. "I think we have a dominant program today. I simply hope it's dominant once Bobby Bowden retires as coach."

In case you're curious, the South Florida team is ranked No. 16 since 1936 and that other Florida team is No. 33. Notre Dame, Oklahoma and Michigan are the top three.

(North Carolina State '69)

Chuck Amato begins his 11th season at Florida State as defensive line coach and his eighth in the role of assistant head coach. He came to FSU from Arizona in 1982 as line coach and was given additional responsibilities in the administrative area three years later. Since joining the Florida State coaching staff, Amato has helped return the Tribe defense to national prominence. Among Amato's top former pupils are All-America noseguard Odell Haggins, and NFL performers Alphonso Carreker, a 1984 first-round draft pick, and Eric Hayes of the Seattle Seahawks.

Amato coached the linebackers at Arizona for two seasons before coming to Florida State. Prior to his stint with the Wildcats, all of Amato's coaching had been at North Carolina State University, his alma mater.

Amato first joined the Wolfpack staff in 1968 as a student assistant and he remained at the school for the next 12 years, eventually working his way up to defensive coordinator. After serving as a student and then a graduate assistant, Amato was hired as a full-time coach in 1971. In 1974, he was promoted to defensive coordinator and held the post for the next six seasons.

A native of Easton, Pa., Amato earned both his bachelor's and master's degrees from N.C. State. He was a three-year letterman in football and wrestling and was undefeated in dual matches. He claimed a pair of Atlantic Coast Conference titles in his weight class.

ondary as a strong unit has helped FSU to New Year's Day bowls in four of the last five years.

Andrews' most famous pupil is Deion Sanders, a first round draft choice of the Atlanta Falcons in 1989 and the 1988 Jim Thorpe Award winner as the nation's top defensive back. In 1989, LeRoy Butler joined Sanders as an All-America choice and still stars for the Green Bay Packers who drafted him out of FSU. Last year, Terrell Buckley completed a trilogy of three consecutive All-America defensive backs at Florida State. In addition, Buckley won the 1991 Jim Thorpe Award, making FSU the only school to produce two Thorpe winners.

Although Andrews came to Florida State from the Arizona Wranglers of the United States Football League, he was no stranger to the college game, having spent 17 years in the collegiate ranks before taking the Wrangler post.

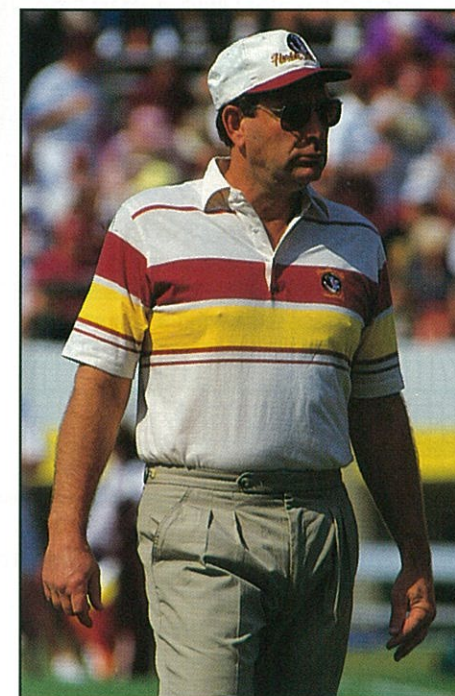

One of the most experienced coaches on the FSU staff, Andrews has made coaching stops at Eastern Kentucky, Livingston, North Alabama, Clemson and Florida in addition to Florida State. He was defensive coordinator at Florida for two years (1981-82) and held a similar position at Clemson from 1977-80. His final year with the Tigers, Andrews was assistant head coach as well. Clemson was 33-13-1 during his stint at the school.

From 1972-76, Andrews was the head coach and athletic director at North Alabama. It was his second head coaching job as he spent three years building the Livingston College program from 1970-72. During his tenure, Livingston went 24-7 and won the NAIA national championship.

Andrews starred in football and baseball for Alabama from 1961-64, earning second team All-America mention as a running back and defensive back. During his career, the Crimson Tide won a pair of national championships (1961 and 1964) and played in the 1963 Sugar and 1964 Orange bowls.

In addition to his football honors, Andrews was an All-Southeastern Conference choice in baseball. In 1964, he received the Hugo Friedman Award as the Tide's best all-around athlete.

WALLY BURNHAM

Inside Linebackers (Samford '63)

Veteran linebackers coach Wally Burnham begins his eighth season on the Florida State staff in 1992. Like defensive coordinator Mickey Andrews, Burnham came to FSU from the Arizona Wranglers of the United States Football League with plenty of collegiate experience.

While current FSU star Marvin Jones is a favorite to become FSU's most honored linebacker ever, Burnham is no stranger to producing top-notch national talent. Paul McGowan was the 1987 Butkus Award winner and FSU's recruiting classes have included some of the nation's finest prep linebackers.

The linebacker coach for the Wranglers from 1983-84, Burnham helped Arizona's defense achieve number one status in the league. Before moving to the professional game, Burnham was defensive coordinator at Lamar University in Beaumont, Texas.

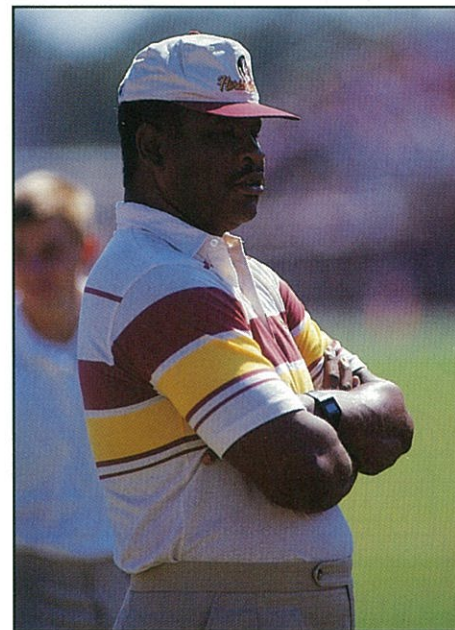

Prior to that, Burnham made stops at Memphis State, where he coached the linebackers for a year, Richmond, East Tennessee State and North Alabama. At East Tennessee State, he was defensive coordinator from 1977-79. His stint at North Alabama consisted of five years as defensive line coach under then head coach Mickey Andrews.

Like Bobby Bowden, Burnham played college football at both Alabama and Samford, playing for Bear Bryant during the 1960 and '61 seasons before transferring to Samford. He was honored as a Little All-America at linebacker his senior season.

Following graduation, he began his coaching career in the high school ranks in Alabama before getting his first college job in 1971 at North Alabama.

The native of Pell City, Ala., and his wife, Barbara, have three children — Patrick, Allison and Shane.

DR. JOHN EASON

*Receivers
(Florida A&M '69)*

Just as Penn State University has established a reputation as "Linebacker U." over its years as a collegiate football power, Florida State has established a reputation as a wide receiver factory for the pros over the last decade.

Since 1981, the man responsible for developing those players at FSU is receivers' coach John Eason. Eason has coached some of the most talented athletes on the Florida State team during his tenure, including current pros Hassan Jones (Minnesota), Lawrence Dawsey (Tampa Bay) and Ronald Lewis (San Francisco).

A native of Ocala, Fla., Eason joined FSU from Tallahassee's Lincoln High School, where he was assistant principal for student affairs for two years. He also coached on the Tallahassee high school scene, serving as offensive coordinator at Leon High from 1973-79.

A receiver and punter for Florida A&M University between 1963-67, Eason earned All-America honors his junior and senior years.

Eason holds a doctorate in Education Administration from Florida State. He received both his bachelor's and master's degrees from Florida A&M. In addition to his coaching duties at FSU, Eason assumed duties on Bob Goin's administrative staff in 1990 as the assistant to the athletic director, working with academics and student affairs.

He and his wife, Dorothy, have a daughter — Amanda.

same year Bowden started at FSU. However, he had been a graduate assistant coach for the Tribe during the 1975 season.

In addition to his on-field coaching talents, Gladden has been a proficient recruiter for the Seminoles. When assigned to Central Florida a few years back, Gladden signed some of the most highly-sought players from that area including Jamie Dukes, Isaac Williams and Sammie Smith. Gladden's move to the Tampa area three seasons ago was a factor in FSU's signing some of the top talent in that sector of the state over the past three seasons.

Gladden's responsibilities include the punt return and punt block units. Since 1976, Florida State has blocked 52 kicks and earned a well-deserved reputation as one of the country's top units.

After graduating from William Jewell College in 1962 where he was chosen to the all-conference team as an end, Gladden spent the next 15 years coaching in the high school ranks. He spent four years in the Midwest — Kansas City and St. Louis — before moving to Kentucky, where he coached at two schools. In 1970, he was the high school coach of the year in the Bluegrass State.

Following a year at Springfield High School in Tennessee, Gladden moved to Brooksville, Fla., where he headed the Hernando High program for three years. From there, he took the assistantship at Florida State, which lasted just one year before he was made a full-time coach.

Gladden, a native of Springfield, Mo., and his wife Patricia have two children — Julie and John.

JIMMY HEGGINS

*Offensive Line
(Florida State '78)*

Jimmy Heggins begins his seventh season on Florida State University's staff, but will be coaching a new position in 1992.

Heggins tutored the Seminole tight ends over the past two years but will coach the split side of the offensive line this season. Reggie Johnson, who Heggins coached at tight end in 1990, is currently playing for the Denver Broncos.

An outstanding noseguard for Florida State in the mid '70s, Heggins returned to his alma mater as noseguard coach in 1986. Heggins moved to the offensive side of the ball two years ago after four consecutive seasons as the Tribe's noseguard coach.

Before the start of the 1986 season, Heggins came back to Florida State from Southwestern Louisiana, where he spent a year as an assistant coach. He also served as running backs coach at Eastern Michigan for two seasons and at Western Illinois for one year.

He began his collegiate coaching career as a graduate assistant at East Carolina in 1980 and filled the same role at FSU for the 1981 and '82 campaigns.

Heggins originally arrived in Tallahassee in 1974 as a freshman running back from Salisbury, N.C., with impressive credentials. After spending his first two seasons at FSU as a fullback, Heggins made the switch to noseguard in Bowden's first year. At the end of the 1976 season, he was named the squad's outstanding defensive player. A year later, he helped Florida State to a 10-2 record and the Tangerine Bowl championship.

Heggins and his wife, the former Winifred Parker, have two daughters, Andrea and Lauren.

MARK RICHT

*Quarterbacks
(Miami '82)*

Mark Richt begins his third year as quarterback coach after a one-year stint as offensive coordinator at East Carolina. A familiar name to FSU fans, Richt coached the quarterbacks for the Seminoles for four seasons prior to joining ECU in 1989.

Richt has developed some of the most efficient FSU quarterbacks ever, including Danny McManus and Chip Ferguson who led the Seminoles to Fiesta and Sugar Bowl titles and back-to-back 11-1 seasons in 1987 and 1988. Peter Tom Willis, now a quarterback with the Chicago Bears, learned the FSU system under Richt before breaking 15 school records in 1989. And, most recently, Richt's protege Casey Weldon was the runner-up for the 1991 Heisman Trophy and was the winner of the Johnny Unitas Award as the nation's top quarterback.

Richt was well-schooled in the passing game before coming to FSU as a graduate assistant in 1985. The Boca Raton, Fla., native was a quarterback at the University of Miami under Howard Schnellenberger. He was the backup quarterback to Buffalo Bills star Jim Kelly during his three seasons at UM.

Richt is married to the former Kathy Francis and their first child, Jonathan, is 2-years-old.

BIG NEWS FOR SEMINOLE FANS WHO LIKE TO STAY AHEAD OF THE GAME

SunBank has something worth cheering about. The All-In-One® Account is new and improved. It now includes the All-In-One Banking Card that looks like a credit card, but works like a check. The All-In-One card gives you the easy acceptance of a credit card but the money is deducted directly from your checking account. And, just like the old All-In-One card, you can use it to withdraw cash from thousands of automated teller machines nationwide. That's important when you're on the road with the Seminoles. The convenient All-In-One Banking Card is the only one in it's league. And it's available at SunBank.

Assistant Coaches

BRAD SCOTT

*Offensive Coordinator/Off. Line
(Missouri-Rolla '76)*

Brad Scott begins his eighth season on the Florida State staff and third as the Seminoles' offensive coordinator. FSU has finished 10-2 and 11-2 over Scott's two years as the chief offensive mind for the Tribe. In addition, Scott coached the offensive line for the past two years, but will coach only the right side of the line this season.

Scott, who made a name for himself as the Seminoles' recruiting coordinator and tight end coach, assumed the role of offensive coordinator when Wayne McDuffie left for the Atlanta Falcons. The move marked the first time in seven years that a new man was in charge of the FSU offense.

Considered an excellent judge of talent and a fine game coach, Scott was heavily involved in the FSU play calling even prior to taking over as coordinator. Scott signaled in the plays to FSU quarterbacks during five seasons as tight end coach prior to 1990. In that role, Scott and Bowden developed an on-field rapport that appears to have made for an easy transition when Scott was named coordinator. Scott gained a national reputation for recruiting excellence as three of his last five classes ranked among the nation's top five. Scott is credited with bringing in the state's best talent and turning some areas not considered FSU territory into a virtual pipeline to the Seminole program.

In addition to his recruiting efforts, Scott was an effective tight end coach. Scott originally came to Florida State in 1984 as a graduate assistant coach in charge of the junior varsity squad and the tight ends. He was promoted to tight end coach a year later.

He played football at Missouri-Rolla from 1972-76 and was chosen to play in the American Bowl all-star game following his senior season. His squad was coached by Bobby Bowden.

Upon graduation, Scott returned to his native Arcadia, Fla., as an assistant coach at DeSoto County High School. A year later, he moved to Hardee High School in Wauchula for one season. Scott got his first experience in collegiate coaching in 1981 and '82 at The Citadel where he served as head junior varsity coach. The following season, he returned to Arcadia as the head football coach and athletic director.

Brad and his wife, Daryle, have two sons — Jonathan and Jeff.

BILLY SEXTON

*Running Backs
(Florida State '74)*

Billy Sexton has been associated with Florida State football as a coach since Bobby Bowden's arrival in 1976 and is one of two FSU graduates on the coaching staff. A native of Tallahassee, Sexton begins his 16th season as a full-time coach and his 10th year as coach of the running backs this season.

Over the years, Sexton has helped develop some of the top runners in Florida State history, like All-America Greg Allen, who broke 26 school records in his tenure, and Sammie Smith, the FSU single season rushing record-holder who was a first round pick of the Miami Dolphins in 1988's NFL draft. Most recently, Sexton tutored sensational junior Amp Lee who was drafted by San Francisco after last season and will join FSU alumnus Dexter Carter in the 49ers' backfield.

In 1976, Sexton was on the staff as a graduate assistant and coached the tight ends. The next year, he was made a member of the full-time staff as quarterback coach. He worked with the quarterbacks for five seasons until 1982, when he became the head junior varsity coach and handled scouting duties. He took over the running backs in 1983 and has made the group one of the most effective on the FSU offense.

A standout at Leon High School in Tallahassee, Sexton played his first three years of college football at Alabama as a backup quarterback before transferring to Florida State. He was the Seminoles' starting quarterback for the opening half of the 1973 season.

Sexton earned a bachelor's degree in business from FSU and began his coaching career as offensive assistant coach at Leon. He worked with the Lions for the next three years before returning to FSU.

Billy and his wife, Joy, have three children — Wyatt, Leslie, and Taylor.

DAVE VAN HALANGER
Strength Coach
(West Virginia '76)

Dave Van Halanger begins his 10th season as Florida State strength coach this year. Van Halanger, who played for Bobby Bowden at West Virginia, has instituted a year-round strength program for Seminole football players which has paid huge dividends. Prior to his arrival at FSU in July 1983, Van Halanger was the strength coach at his alma mater for five years. He is credited with starting West Virginia's first organized weight training program. He was on the WVU sidelines when Florida State defeated the Mountaineers in the 1982 Gator Bowl. Van Halanger lettered four seasons under Bowden and was a co-captain of the 1975 West Virginia Peach Bowl team. An offensive tackle, he earned All-East honors his junior and senior seasons and was an honorable mention All-America selection as a senior. He played professionally with the Atlanta Falcons in 1976 before returning to WVU as a graduate assistant and head junior varsity coach. He was awarded full-time status in 1978.

Van Halanger is a former state director for the National Strength and Conditioning Association and is a member of the National Board of Ethics for the National Football Coaches Association. In addition to his work with the football athletes, he teaches several classes on strength training to students and to the Tallahassee community. Van Halanger leads FSU's Fellowship of Christian Athletes group.

Van Halanger, a native of Turtle Creek, Pa., and his wife, Michele, have two daughters, Danielle and Julie, and a son, Matthew.

RONNIE COTTRELL
Recruiting Coordinator
(Troy State '83)

Ronnie Cottrell begins his fourth season as recruiting coordinator at FSU. Cottrell is charged with continuing the recent Seminole recruiting successes which have seen the last five Seminole classes ranked among the top five in the nation.

The Brewton, Ala., native came to the Seminole program with two years of coaching experience at the collegiate level, assisting at Troy (Ala.) State in 1981 and '82.

A 1983 graduate of Troy State, Cottrell has two children — Kevin and Meredith.

The Greatest Show in College Football

From the pregame ritual to the fourth-quarter fanfare, from the opening kickoff to the last tick of the clock, nothing can compare to the pageantry and excitement of Seminole football. On a warm September night or a sunny November afternoon, fall Saturdays in Tallahassee mean only one thing — Florida State football.

The fun of FSU football Saturdays has become a tradition for Seminole fans, just as winning has become a tradition for their Seminole football teams. The excitement begins with the pregame tailgate parties and builds as game time gets nearer.

Minutes before kickoff, the drama comes to a fever pitch. Every eye is riveted on the north end zone. Suddenly, FSU mascots Chief Osceola and Renegade burst out of the tunnel onto the playing field, followed by Head Coach Bobby Bowden and the Seminole team.

Renegade, a beautiful Appaloosa horse owned by Tallahasseean Bill Durham, gallops the length of the field. Riding Renegade, holding a 10-foot flaming spear, is Chief Osceola. The Chief, an FSU student carefully chosen and groomed for this moment, wears an authentic costume designed specifically for Florida State University by Seminole Indians. His face is covered with grease-based makeup with garnet and gold stripes added in FSU fashion.

Meanwhile, the nationally-ranked Seminole cheerleaders encourage the packed and frenzied Campbell Stadium crowd and the Marching Chiefs, FSU's 400-strong marching band, pound out an intimidating beat. The fans move their arms in unison to the now familiar and much-imitated Scalp 'Em cheer, following the beat of the drum. Renegade fidgets and shakes his head, awaiting the end of the coin-toss proceedings: Chief Osceola shakes the still-flaming spear over his head and the crowd roars its approval.

The game captains and referees leave midfield. The excitement reaches a crescendo. Renegade and Chief Osceola gallop to the middle of the field, where the huge Seminole head is painted. The horse rears up on his hind legs and Chief Osceola plants the fiery spear into the turf.

The roar of the crowd is deafening. A thrill goes through the crowd. The moment the spear hits the ground, an even larger cheer goes up while the Marching Chiefs start the FSU fight song in the background.

Unique to Florida State, this opening show has become a trademark of Seminole football, featured on national television and recognized by fans across the country. Nothing can compare.

Chief Osceola and Renegade are part of the pageantry of FSU football.

FSU Marching Chiefs and Cheerleaders

For all the pageantry, excitement and tradition of collegiate football, nothing tops a Seminole Saturday. Every fall weekend, led by the Marching Chiefs, Renegade and Chief Osceola, and the FSU Cheerleaders, raucous Seminole crowds cheer on their Florida State team to victory after victory.

The Marching Chiefs, almost 400 members strong, are the band behind the Florida State fight song. They are as much a part of college football in Tallahassee as the game itself. Since 1951, the Chiefs have provided football fans with the best in musical entertainment in their pregame and halftime shows.

Through their colorful and exciting presentations, the Marching Chiefs have earned international acclaim with their performances.

The Chiefs' entourage includes feature twirlers, majorettes and flag girls representing every school and college in the University. In addition to home game performances, the Chiefs travel to many out-of-town games to provide the Seminoles with the sounds of home.

Under the direction of Patrick Dunnigan, director of the Chiefs; Charles Carter, associate director and arranger; graduate assistant John Lavery; and drum major Greg Johns, the 1992 Marching Chiefs will once again greet Seminole fans with the familiar style that has entertained millions over the last four decades.

Florida State's 32-member cheerleading squad promotes the FSU football team wherever it goes, which lately has included national competitions. Annually one of the top squads in the nation, their enthusiastic cheers and precision stunts, pyramids and tumbling bring out the Seminole spirit in every fan.

Coach Bobby Bowden says:

"Saint Bobby and the Barbarians comes about as close as you can get to what it feels like on the inside of college football."

You rooted for them throughout the euphoric highs and devastating lows of the unforgettable '91 season. Now, get closer to the Seminoles and the man who took them within two plays of a national championship. Here's the story behind the headline-grabbing team that sought to make history. Discover the real Bobby Bowden, the battlefield commander behind the good-ol'-boy myth. See how assistant coaches push and pull their young players to excel. And learn what really happened to Casey Weldon, Amp Lee, and the other stars in a pressure-filled season. Saint Bobby and the Barbarians tells you their story in their own words and reveals the personalities, politics, and philosophies of college football as never before.

Available wherever books are sold.

Seminoles in the Pros

Five top five finishes in the last five years have Bobby Bowden's troops receiving plenty of attention from NFL scouts and coaches. As a result, more and more Florida State alumni are playing every Sunday in the National Football League.

The number seems likely to increase in 1992 as an unprecedented 12 Seminoles were drafted or signed free agent contracts last April. It was the largest FSU contingent ever to join the professional ranks in a single season. Cornerback Terrell Buckley led all Florida State draftees when the consensus All-American became the 10th Seminole ever selected in the first round. He also matched Deion Sanders as the highest draft choice ever at FSU when the Green Bay Packers made Buckley the fifth selection overall.

Of the six Seminoles picked in 1992, five were taken in the draft's first four rounds. The Tribe's entire 1991 starting backfield was drafted. Tailback Amp Lee was chosen by San Francisco in the second round, with fullback Edgar Bennett and quarterback Casey Weldon going on successive picks in round four to Green Bay and Philadelphia, respectively.

The '92 draft was significant for Florida State in that a pair of underclassmen, Buckley and Lee, opted to forego their senior years to enter the draft. The Tribe also had two quarterbacks taken in the same draft as backup signal-caller Brad Johnson was selected by the Minnesota Vikings in the ninth round.

From 1969, when Ron Sellers became the first Seminole ever taken in the first round, to 1992, 10 other Tribe football players have been NFL first round selections. Twice, Florida State has had two players selected in the first round. The 1973 draft saw FSU career touchdown reception leader Barry Smith and free safety J.T. Thomas become first round picks of the Green Bay Packers and Pittsburgh Steelers, respectively. Thomas would go on to play in three Super Bowls with the Steelers during his eight-year career. More recently, All-America cornerback Deion Sanders and single-season rushing leader Sammie Smith went in the first round of the 1989 draft to the Atlanta Falcons and Miami Dolphins, respectively.

It hasn't always been the first- or even second-round FSU selections who have made the greatest impression on the NFL. Jesse Solomon and Garth Jax are examples of late round selections who are still in the league after five years, while Jamie Dukes and Zeke Mowatt signed as free agents and went on to enjoy successful pro careers. Marion Butts, who lagged in the shadows of Sammie Smith at FSU, was drafted in the seventh round in 1989, and has become an NFL Pro Bowl selection for the San Diego Chargers.

Since 1951, when Mike Sellers became the first Seminole ever drafted to the present, the list of Florida State players selected is heavily weighted with Seminoles who played under current head coach Bobby Bowden. Overall, 65 of FSU's 119 players drafted have been chosen during Bowden's 16-year tenure at Florida State. Of those 65, 40 spent at least one season on an NFL roster.

Without a doubt, FSU's greatest pro ever was Oakland Raiders wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff, who started for 13 seasons with the Silver and Black and made the Pro Bowl four times during a five-year span. In 1988, he became the first former Seminole elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Entering 1992, 27 former Seminoles are on professional rosters and several have had long and illustrious careers. Offensive tackle Ken Lanier is the prime example as he enters his 12th season with the Denver Broncos, with whom he has started four Super Bowls. Last year, Washington Redskins cornerback Martin Mayhew joined a select group of nine former Seminoles who have played in a Super Bowl. Five former FSU stars, including two-sport standout Deion Sanders, have been selected to the Pro Bowl.

Seminole Tradition

While more and more teams celebrate their 100th year of college football in the 1990s, Florida State remains a virtual baby when it comes to years of tradition. But not when it comes to years of excellence.

In just 45 seasons of football, the Seminoles have matched and surpassed some of their older brethren — in victories, in 10-win seasons, in bowl games and bowl wins, and in the individual honors and awards picked up by Florida State alumni.

The list of honors begins with Florida State's nine consensus All-Americans, many of whom made that recognition only the first of many accolades in a stunning career.

Last year, for the first time in Seminole history, two players joined FSU's All-America list in the same season when sophomore linebacker Marvin Jones and junior cornerback Terrell Buckley became consensus choices. In its first 39 years of football, Florida State had only six consensus selections. In the past five years, five Seminoles have earned that status, including four of Coach Mickey Andrews' defensive backs.

The Seminoles recent five-year run of Top Four rankings has brought more and more attention to Florida State players. Since 1987, FSU's trophy case has grown to overflowing. A walk through the Moore Athletic Center now reveals a pair of Jim Thorpe trophies won by Deion Sanders (1988) and Terrell Buckley (1991), Paul McGowan's 1987 Butkus Award, and the Unitas Golden Arm Award won by Casey Weldon last year.

In addition, the retired numbers of a pair of College Football Hall-of-Famers, Ron Sellers (34) and Fred Biletnikoff (25), are prominently displayed as is that of Ron Simmons (50), FSU's greatest defender. Biletnikoff is also the only former Seminole enshrined in the National Football League Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

The 1991 season was a banner year for Florida State football. The Tribe's 12-week run at No. 1 made names like Casey Weldon, Terrell Buckley and Marvin Jones household words. As a result, those Seminoles attended award ceremonies across the nation. Weldon's runner-up placing in the Heisman Trophy balloting was the top finish ever by a Florida State player and earned the Tallahassee native a trip to New York City. Buckley also finished in the Top 10 in Heisman voting, marking the first time two FSU players received that many votes in the same year.

Buckley made Florida State the first school with two Jim Thorpe Trophies, which have been awarded annually to the nation's top defensive back since 1986.

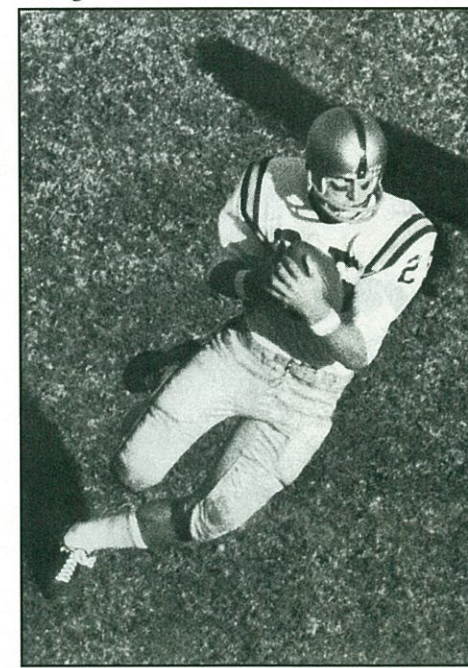

Jones made history as the first sophomore finalist ever for the Lombardi Award while Weldon also finished as one of the top two candidates for the Maxwell and Davey O'Brien awards. In fact, just about the only award a Seminole didn't contend for in 1991 was the Outland Trophy. However, FSU can claim a finalist for that trophy in its history as center Michael Tanks attended ceremonies in New York City for the 1989 award, which is presented annually to the nation's top interior lineman.

A short history of each Seminole award winner and hall-of-famer:

Fred Biletnikoff

1988 National Football League Hall of Fame, 1991 College Football Hall of Fame

Fred Biletnikoff started catching passes in high school in Erie, Pa., continued at Florida State and went on to star with the Oakland Raiders.

By his junior season at FSU, Biletnikoff and quarterback Steve Tensi formed an unbeatable duo. In 1964, Biletnikoff ranked fourth in the nation with 57 receptions for 11 touchdowns. The Seminoles' first consensus All-America choice, he capped a super year with four touchdown catches in the Gator Bowl.

Biletnikoff was selected by the Oakland Raiders in the second round of the 1965 draft. He went on to make the AFL all-star team twice and four AFC-NFC Pro Bowls in five years. He played in nine AFL/AFC title games, two Super Bowls and was MVP in Super Bowl XI. When his 14-year professional career came to an end after the 1978 season, Biletnikoff had caught 589 passes, seventh on the all-time list. He had amassed 8,974 yards and 76 touchdowns. The Raiders never had a losing season during Biletnikoff's tenure; he caught 40 or more passes in 10 straight years and his 76 touchdowns are the most by a Raider.

In 1988, he became the first, and only, Seminole inducted into the Professional Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio. Last December, he joined another FSU wide receiver, Ron Sellers, in the College Football Hall of Fame.

Terrell Buckley

1991 Jim Thorpe Award Winner

Terrell Buckley capped the best season ever by a Florida State cornerback by becoming the second Seminole ever to win the Jim Thorpe Award as the nation's top defensive back.

In his junior season of 1991, Buckley blew away the Florida State record for interceptions with 12, four more than the previous record holder. Buckley had two interceptions on four occasions and intercepted passes in eight of FSU's 12 regular season contests to lead the country in pickoffs. Against Michigan in Ann Arbor, his interception and 40-yard return for a touchdown on the game's second play set the stage for a 51-31 FSU win.

Fred Biletnikoff is a NFL and College Football Hall of Famer.

Terrell Buckley captured the Jim Thorpe Award in 1991.

Buckley also demolished the Florida State career record with 21 pickoffs in three seasons. His 501 career interception return yards broke an NCAA record that had stood since 1974. Buckley and fellow FSU Thorpe Award winner Deion Sanders share the school records for most touchdowns on interception returns in a season and a career. Following his junior year, Buckley was selected by the Green Bay Packers in the first round of the NFL draft.

Paul McGowan

1987 Butkus Award Winner

Calling the Butkus Award for linebackers, "the Heisman of the Bad Guys," FSU inside linebacker Paul McGowan accepted the award from Dick Butkus himself in December 1987.

The 6-1, 230-pound McGowan won the award by a one-point margin over Ohio State's Chris Spielman. McGowan won the award based on a senior season in which he totalled 150 tackles, including 97 solo stops and 11 behind the line of scrimmage. He was named to the Associated Press, Sporting News and Football News first-team All-America squads.

Deion Sanders

1988 Jim Thorpe Award Winner

Sure to be remembered as one of the best athletes to wear a Florida State uniform, cornerback Deion Sanders won the Jim Thorpe Award as the top defensive back of 1988 in a January ceremony in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Sanders won the award after a career which saw him gather 14 career interceptions, not including three in bowl games. During Sanders' career, Florida State teams attained top national rankings and amassed a 38-9-1 record and four bowl wins. In his junior and senior seasons, FSU went 11-1 with a pair of New Year's Day bowl wins. In 1988, Sanders ranked in the top 10 nationally with five interceptions in nine games. He was the nation's top punt returner, averaging 15.2 yards per return.

Sanders ranks third on the FSU career charts in interceptions and holds most of the punt return records as well.

A three-sport star in football, baseball and track at Florida State, Sanders is a two-sport athlete as a pro, playing professional baseball and football for the Atlanta Braves and Falcons, respectively.

Ron Sellers

1988 College Football Hall of Fame

In December 1988, former Seminole great and 1968 consensus All-American Ron Sellers became the first FSU player inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame.

The Palm Beach, Fla., native owned the NCAA receiving records for over 20 years, until 1987. During his FSU career from 1966-68, Sellers caught 212 passes for 3,598 yards. He averaged 119.9 reception yards per game and caught passes in a record 30 consecutive contests. He had 18 games of 100 yards receiving and five of 200 yards. He remains the top man to ever play the position at the school and still owns nearly all the Florida State receiving records. Sellers caught 13 or more passes in a game seven times during his career.

Deion Sanders was a consensus All-American in 1987 and '88.

The Seminoles played in three bowl games during the Sellers era. A player labeled "can't play, too fragile" by Coach Bill Peterson at first, Sellers was later called "simply the best college receiver I ever saw."

Casey Weldon

1991 Johnny Unitas Award

Widely considered one of the finest quarterbacks in FSU history, Casey Weldon capped a stellar senior season by accepting the 1991 Johnny Unitas Golden Arm Award as the nation's best quarterback.

The Tallahassee native had one of the most productive seasons ever for an FSU signal caller in 1991. He threw for 2,527 yards and 22 touchdowns last year in leading the Seminoles to an 11-2 record and a win in the Cotton Bowl. Weldon led the Seminoles to an unprecedented 12-week run as the nation's top-ranked team and guided the Tribe in one of FSU's most impressive wins ever, throwing three touchdown passes en route to a 51-31 win over Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Weldon's 4,643 career passing yards rank him second on FSU's all-time list. His 41 touchdown passes also rank second on the FSU career chart. Florida State was 17-2 in games that Weldon started and the Tallahassee native led the Tribe to wins in his first 16 consecutive starts.

Weldon earned first team All-America honors from Walter Camp and Football News, among others, and was also a finalist for the Davey O'Brien and Maxwell Awards. His runner-up finish in the Heisman Trophy voting represents the highest finish ever for an FSU alumnus competing for the prestigious award.

Yes, Florida State University may have one of the shortest traditions in college football when it comes to years. But when it comes to quality, success and excellence — in its All-Americans, its many bowl teams, its hall of fame selections and its national award winners — Seminole football has a tradition few schools can match.
