

Seminoles Drop 63-46 Game to Savannah Division

DISPUTE MARS HEATED TILT

Kratzert's Ejection Draws FSU Protest

Florida State University's Seminoles, unable to shake the jinx that has dogged their play since the opening game of the new year, went down to their fourth consecutive defeat at the hands of the University of Georgia, Savannah division, Bulldogs 63-46, in the Georgia city last night.

Reported Protest

The tilt was reported to have been played under a vigorous protest after the game officials had banished big Bill Kratzert, FSU ace, on a five foul total that was apparently composed of three personal and two technical fouls.

Kratzert's removal came in the first 16 minutes of the game.

According to basketball rules a player is disqualified on five personal fouls. Technical fouls are not figured in the disqualification of a player.

The heated dispute continued for an hour and a half after the game, according to telephonic reports received here.

Kappler Hot

The Georgia five, led by Hugo Kappler, a Brooklyn boy with an eagle eye, jumped off to an early lead and held a 26-13 margin at halftime.

Kappler, hitting nine times from the field and three times from the foul line, the Bulldog scoring. John Davis, pivotman from Columbus, Ga., took runner-up honors with 15 markers.

Big Hosea Maxwell, hefty Pensacola pivotman, led the Seminoles' grim battle with 11 points. He was closely followed in the scoring by Sheldon Hilaman with 10 points.
