FLORIDA STATE:

Disappointments of '76-77 give way to high hopes of '77-78

Many collegiate basketball coaches would gladly take the 16-11 record Florida State head coach Hugh Durham recorded last winter.

Not Durham, however. For the Seminole mentor the 16 victories represented the second lowest single season winning record of his 11-year career.

"It wasn't a very good year by Florida State standards," Durham recalls. "It was disappointing for everyone — players, coaches, and fans."

Those connected with the Seminole cage program, especially Durham, hope the Tribe doesn't go through another of those 16-11 campaigns in the winter of 1977-78.

But it isn't going to be easy for the Garnet and Gold to better its mark.

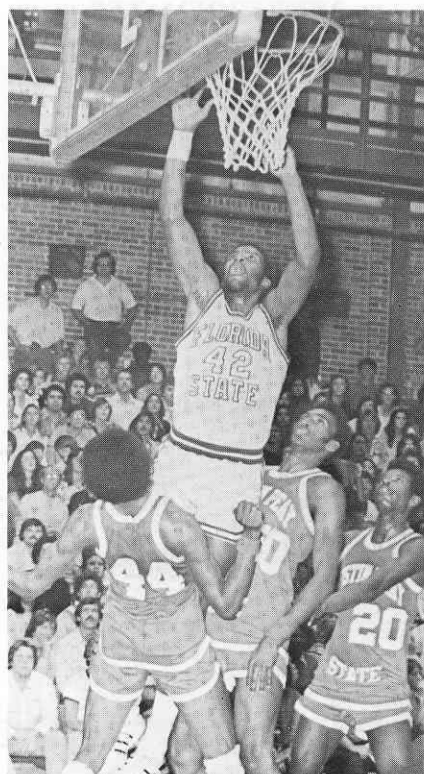

Once again Durham has lined up a formidable schedule that includes home-and-home meetings with fellow members of the Metropolitan Conference where FSU will be a second year member.

In addition to the league games, the Seminoles will play in three regular season tournaments for the second consecutive year. This time FSU will participate in the Big Sun at St. Petersburg on December 9-10, the Birmingham Classic Dec. 16-17 and the Pillsbury Classic in Minneapolis, Dec. 30-31.

Among the non-league foes on the rest of the schedule are NCAA tournament semi-finalist UNC-Charlotte, Missouri and Oral Roberts.

Player-wise the Seminoles appear in good shape. Only two members of last year's club have graduated. But they both played the same positions — guard.

The leading candidates to replace the departed Carlton Byrd and Wayne Smalls are two sophomores, Tony Jackson and Mickey Dillard, plus senior Eugene Harris, who missed '76-77 when he was red-shirted.

Seminoles always tough in small, noisy Tully gymnasium.

Jackson is expected to take over Byrd's role as the playmaker while Harris and Dillard (5.8) will fill in at the slot vacated by Smalls.

"Mickey and Tony both lack playing experience," says Durham. "Thus they will need to get their experience in actual game conditions. Jackson has all the tools to be an excellent playmaker for us. He has an uncanny ability to find the open man. He's also going to surprise some people with his shooting ability."

Inside the Seminoles have four players returning who drew starting duty at various times during the year. The combination that had the nod in the Metro Tournament game against Georgia Tech included pivot Kris Anderson (6-8) and forwards David Thompson (6-8) and James Smith (6-6). But on the bench was 6-7 Harry Davis, who Durham asked to play the sixth man role over the final six games of the season.

Anderson was just a freshman last winter, but managed to move into a starting role late in the campaign. He averaged 5.9 points per game and 5.1 rebounds.

"Kris needs to be more aggressive," Durham says. "Once he does that he's going to be a very fine center for Florida State."

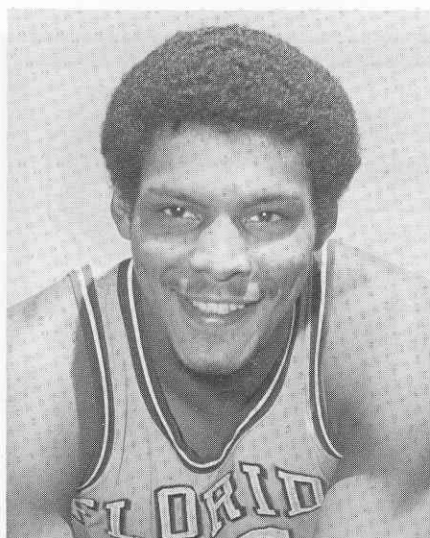

Two more sophomores, 6-7 Murray Brown and 6-9 Donnie Kuhl, are expected to provide the necessary depth in the pivot. Brown averaged 5.4 points per game while playing 131 minutes. His point total included a game-high 30-point effort coming off the bench against Baptist College. Kuhl was used sparingly but showed promise of being a very valuable commodity once he adjusts to the college game.

Thompson finished the season as the second leading scorer in the Metro with an 18.5 average. His season high was a 38-point effort against South Alabama, but he also had four games where he was credited with 10 points or less.

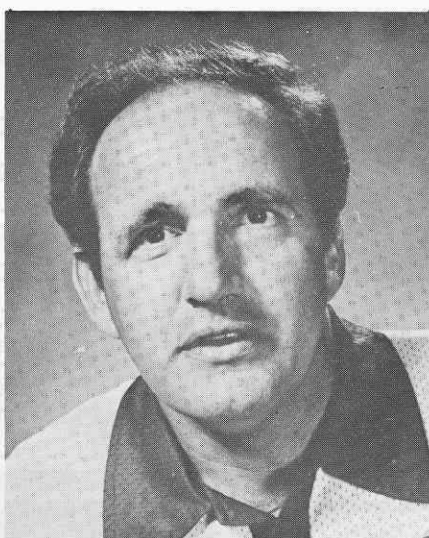

Smith finished the season with a 6.8 scoring average and 5.2 showing on the glass.

Davis, meanwhile, was the second leading scorer with a 14.8 average and topped all Seminoles in the rebounding department with 7.8 caroms a game.

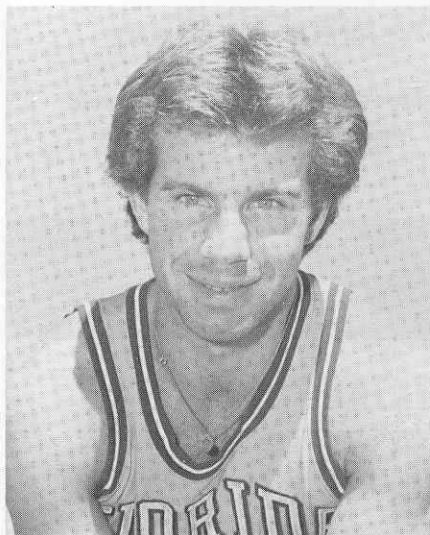

"It's too early to tell what we'll do about the pivot and forward positions," Durham says. "You can be sure of one thing — Anderson, Davis, Smith and Thompson are going to see plenty of playing time. If we think it's best for the team to have Davis continue in the sixth man role that is where he will play."

Durham's Goal of total effort wins for FSU

Florida State basketball head coach Hugh Durham reached a milestone last January 20 when the Seminoles bested South Florida, 97-74, for victory No. 200 in his career.

But, those who know Durham weren't surprised. His personality and coaching style have all the ingredients it takes to make a winner.

Strive for perfection is a phrase heard frequently in the Durham vocabulary. He strives for it in his coaching and in his off-the-court activities. It is difficult for him to accept anything short of total effort from himself, the basketball staff or players.

"I strive for perfection from within myself and look for this attitude to carry over to everyone associated with the program," says Durham.

There is no doubt the Durham philosophy has paid off for the Seminoles. This will be his twelfth season at the helm of the FSU cage program, and the report card reads 207-89 — outstanding enough to place him among the top 15 in the list of the nation's winningest major coaches.

Durham asks that his clubs "Play hard and play together. After his career is completed, a player shouldn't have any trouble moving from the collegiate world into his career because he has developed the ability to blend his individual talents into a successful unity."

Since taking over the FSU program, 12 Durham-coached players have been drafted by the pros and several are still active. The best known, is NBA all-star and Most Valuable Player Dave Cowens of the Boston Celtics.

Those players who chose not to go into professional ball have also met with success, with several going on to graduate schools, medical school or law school and others starting coaching careers of their own.

As a Florida State player, Durham was one of the finest guards to play for the Seminoles. His three-year varsity scoring total of 1,387 points ranks sixth on the all-time list. He was as much a leader off the court as on, earning membership in the Gold Key Honorary Society and being named to Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities.
