Texas Tech University

ABOUT TEXAS TECH

Texas Tech University was created by legislative action in 1923 and has the distinction of being the largest comprehensive higher education institution in the western two-thirds of the state of Texas. The university is the major institution of higher education in a region larger than 46 of the nation's 50 states and is the only campus in Texas that is home to a major university, law school and medical school. Originally named Texas Technological College, the college opened in 1925 with six buildings and an enrollment of 914. Graduate instruction did not begin until 1927 within the school of Liberal Arts. A "Division of Graduate Studies" was established in 1935 and eventually became known as the Graduate School in 1954. By action of the Texas State Legislature, Texas Technological College formally became Texas Tech University on September 1, 1969. As a member of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, Texas Tech began competing in the Big 12 Conference in 1996 after a 35-year membership in the former Southwest Conference.

University of Virginia

ABOUT VIRGINIA

The University of Virginia was founded in 1819 by Thomas Jefferson, who outlined the institution's purpose, designed its buildings, supervised construction, planned the curriculum and directed the recruitment of the first faculty. As the first Rector of the University, Jefferson presided over the school's governing body, known as the Board of Visitors. James Madison and James Monroe were members of the board in early years. When it opened for classes in 1825, the University of Virginia represented a dramatic innovation in American education. In an era when colleges trained students almost exclusively for teaching and the ministry, Jefferson dedicated his university to the education of leaders in practical affairs and public service. The university is an iconic public institution of higher education, boasting nationally ranked schools and programs, diverse and distinguished faculty, a major academic medical center and proud history as a renowned research university. The community and culture of the university are enriched by active student self-governance, sustained commitment to the arts and a robust NCAA Division I athletics program.

Dear students, families and fans:

Thank you for coming, and welcome to the 2025 spring sports championship season! During championship season, the atmosphere changes. Cheers echo nationwide. Objects take on a gold hue. There's an electrifying energy in the air within the Association, in conference offices and on campuses.

Each championship is a culmination of years of sweat and perseverance, and the passion of student-athletes and coaches is on display as they compete for a national title. As a former student-athlete from a family of former student-athletes, I understand the dedication you all give. Those late nights, early mornings and tough practices are now recognized in the pinnacle of this championship moment. Whether you're a returning national champion or this is your first championship experience, I hope this moment makes you proud.

I believe college athletics is the largest human-potential development program in the world. It opens doors to opportunity, forges friendships and captivates a nation. It teaches you about accountability, teamwork, getting back up after being knocked down and many other valuable skills. The NCAA has more than 500,000 student-athletes and 1,200 schools and conferences across three divisions.

It's no secret college athletics are in a time of change. There are challenges ahead, but with challenges come opportunity. Past, present and future student-athletes play a vital role in the NCAA's development, and their poise and collective wisdom encourage the Association to keep improving. Together we can usher in meaningful change. Student-athletes aren't just competitors; they're the leaders, the champions and the game-changers of tomorrow.

Our championships showcase the best of the best. I look forward to attending them each year and hope one day I'll get the chance to watch your team raise the national championship trophy. To the fans, event hosts, volunteers and countless others who make these events possible, thank you. We couldn't do it without you. To the student-athletes and coaches, savor every moment and embrace the journey. We hope the memories you create here last a lifetime. Enjoy the championship.
